A New School Year Brings . . .

August 29, 1984, the first day of the new '85 school year. This school year brought heartaches, heartbreaks, laughing, achieving, and dreaming of tomorrow. Tomorrow will bring new horizons, new people, and new places.

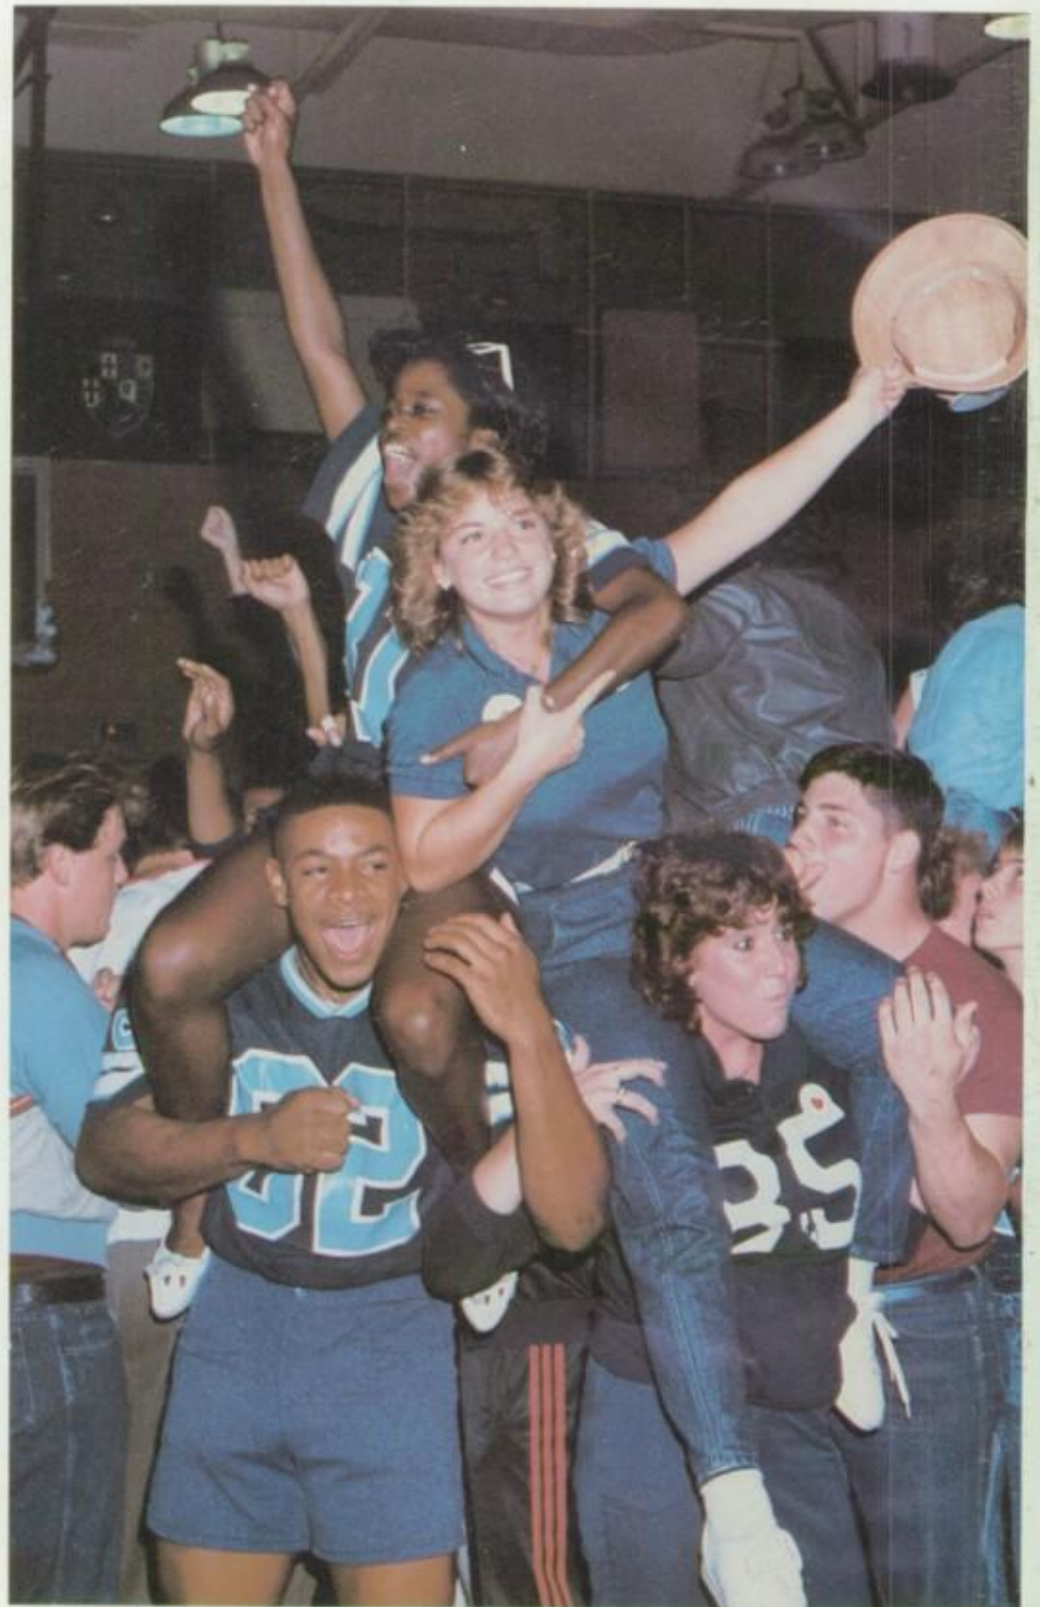

You have already discovered there's no third floor C wing and to your disapproval, you are likely to get caught by Mr. Curry when lingering in the hallways. As a result, he will be more than happy to give you cafeteria duty for the next 3 weeks. You have by now experienced the "real" Northwestern and you feel more confident realizing you fit in just right.

As school progressed, you began to discover there was more to Northwestern than getting up at 7:30 every morning just to finish last night's homework during homeroom. There were pep rallies, football players dressed as cheerleaders, class night, tug-of-war, football and basketball games, Spirit Week, graduation, and the prom. There were clubs, sports, and organizations to join. Soon you were juggling five activities at a time including homework.

Finally the weekend came, a time to lay back and relax, take off your shoes and watch television. But as soon as your RCA television shot a picture on the screen it was time to drive a carload of screaming fans to Northwestern's Friday night football game. Then it was off to College Park Mc Donalds only to sneak in at 2:00 a.m. and have your parents waiting for you at the door.

All of these special times are a part of your high school life. You treasure the good times and there's never a dull moment.

The journey has begun, the journey through the memories of '85 and how you helped make Northwestern A World Of Difference. These memories will linger in your heart and will be stored away until you bring them out just once more to remember . . . the most precious time of your life . . . High School.

... A New Wave Of Spirit

A wide variety of people exist at Northwestern. We share similar experiences and yet we all react differently. We have a unique advantage—the opportunity to share with each other the special aspects that make us so different. We are artists and athletes, philosophers and comedians. Although distinguished from others by our personalities, we share the enthusiastic bond of spirit.

The various clubs open to students at Northwestern each have something special to offer each participant. Some special clubs at Northwestern are the Northwestern Drama Club, Backstage, who puts on two dramatic productions a year, and the French and German Clubs both of which sponsor international exchanges.

Another large part of Student Life is Homecoming and the events that accompany it. Each year students look forward to the parade, building floats, the Pep Rally, Dress-Up Days, the competition between classes in Hall Decorations and Class Night, as well as the game and the dance.

Northwestern's student body has a lot of spirit and has even won awards for "Most School Spirit" at the annual Cheerleading Competition hosted by Parkdale High School.

There is also a quiet spirit that exists in our building. This spirit comes from friends supporting each other, giving votes of confidence before play tryouts, before cheering for the big game or playing in it. This friendship and spirit carries us when we fail to win or succeed at our attempts. We give each other moral support by attending games and plays.

We all make up Student Life. We are all special, unique in some way. Each of us on our own journey. A world of difference—Unique and united we travel.

A WORLD OF DIFFERENCE IN

STUDENT LIFE

Battle Of The Classes

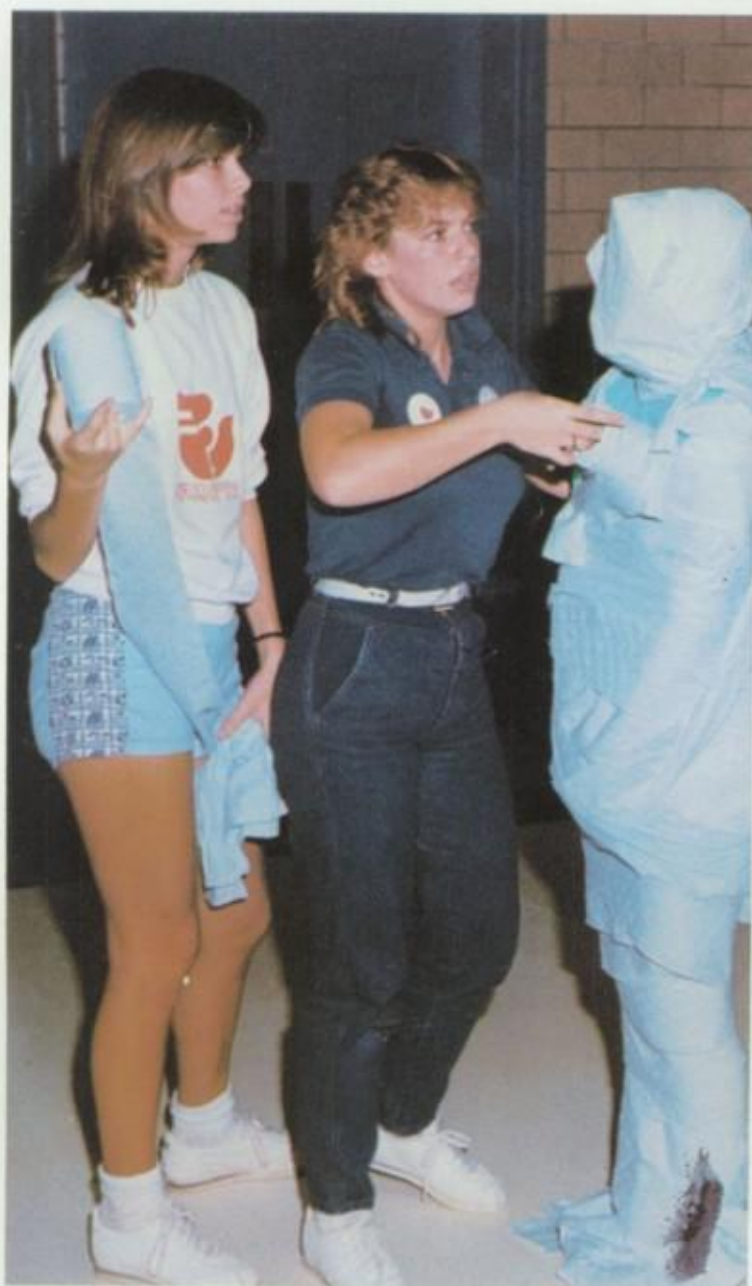

Class Night provided an opportunity for students to release the energy and frustration that built up during Spirit Week. By Thursday evening, October 11, 1984, the competition among the four classes was at its peak. Some sophomores showed their spirit by painting their bodies blue and white. A large part of the Junior Class supported their class by wearing white T-shirts saying, "Class of '86" Juniors Are #1."

The competition was close but when it was time to add up the scores, the Seniors were victorious. The spirit was high in all four classes, making Class Night the success it was.

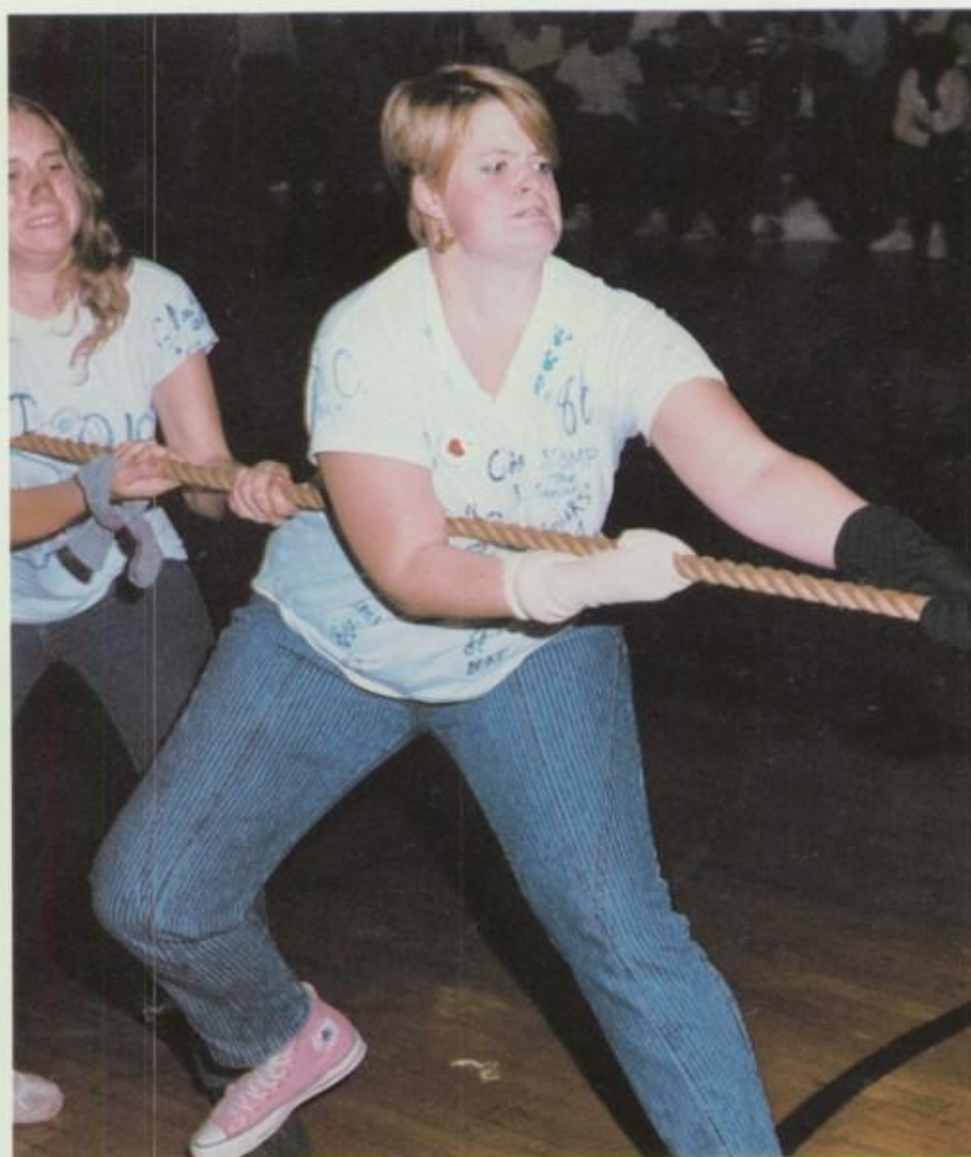

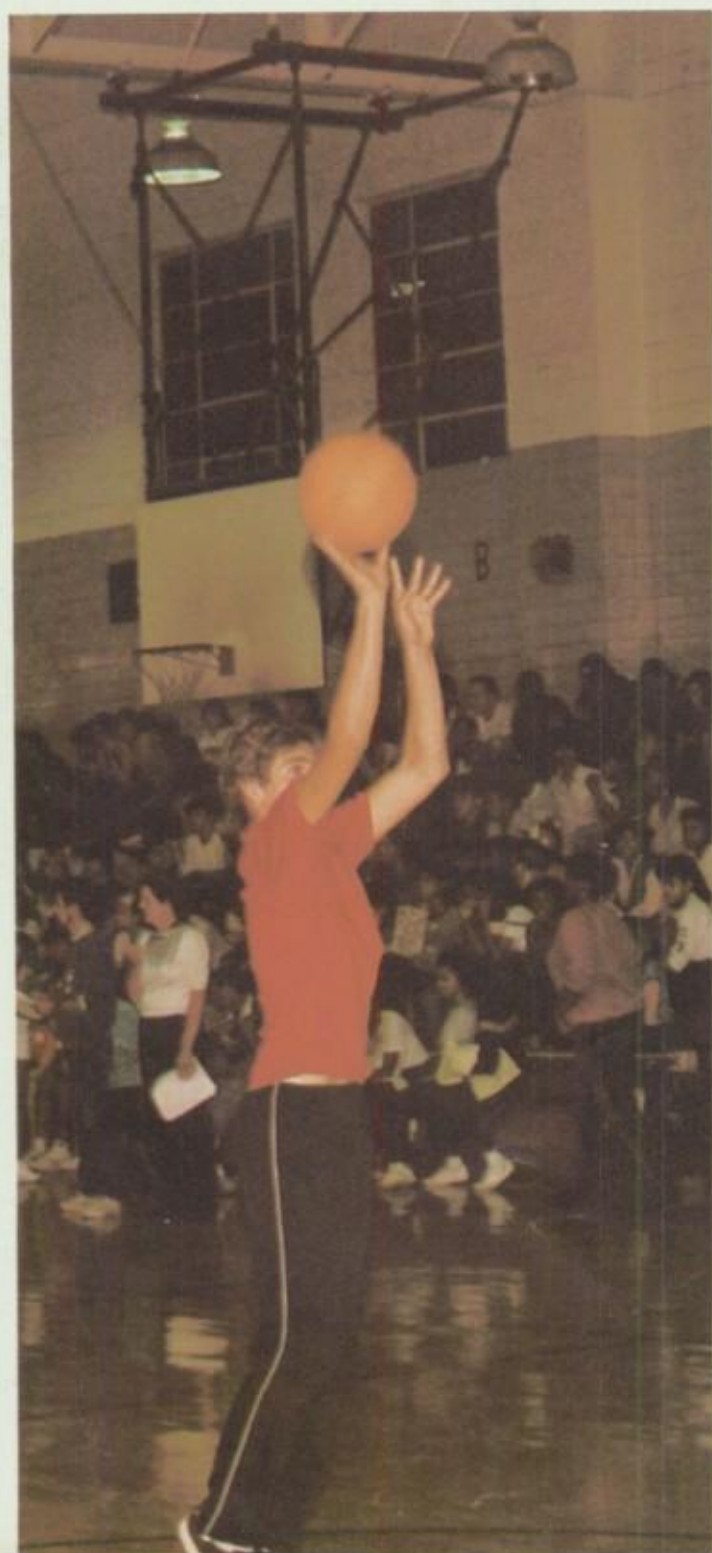

With checkered faces, and blue and white painted bodies, sophomores Tom Abbott and Dan Blandford show their spirit. Audrey Panichakoon and Chelece Martin raise their arms as they cheer on their class.

"Will we have it?" Sophomores wonder as they await the announcing of the next item for the scavenger hunt.

Disturbed by the judges decision, Chris Bailey and Laura Jarvis listen closely to the instructions for rewrapping Sandy Broadwater.

The cheer said, "All for the Juniors, stand up and die." The Seniors, however, were anything but dead during the Class Night competitions.

During the tug of war between the Juniors and the Seniors, Junior, Amy Servis gains some leverage by stepping on Laura Carcione's foot.

"Dribble, shoot, shoot, get that ball in the hoop, hoop!" The pressure is on Junior Louie Rhome as he competes to shoot the most baskets in one minute.

Seniors Float To Victory

Saturday, October 13, 10:30 A.M.. The showdown. It was time for all the floats to meet at Riverdale Presbyterian Church to prepare for the parade. Curious classmates carefully eyed the competition sizing it up against their own creations. The Freshmen did not enter a float in the competition, but instead marched in the parade carrying bunches of helium filled balloons. The Sophomore float entitled "Spreading Our Wings" received third place. The Junior float boasted a large wildcat head on a football field along with a Spartan. The theme for the Junior float was "Lash Laurel" and the Juniors received second place for their efforts. However, the seniors showed their superiority with their first-place float "Era of the Wildcat Invasion". The crowds were dazzled by the special effects used on the Senior Class float.

The Senior float takes on a whole new perspective when photographed in a rear-view mirror.

The Senior class won the float competition for their entry entitled "Era of the Wildcat Invasion."

These Juniors show their spirit by marching in the parade alongside their float.

Riding on the Sophomore float are Todd Britt, Leslie Fishel, Homecoming Court Duchess, Chrissy Bass, Carl West, and Mark Grant.

"Lash Laurel" was the theme of the Junior float which was awarded second place in the competition.

Onward We March

The parade began its march at Riverdale Presbyterian Church on Queens Chapel Road. It marched down Queens Chapel Road, and up Adelphi Road ending at the school. The Colorguard led the parade. NJROTC impressed the spectators by their synchronized steps.

The Cheerleaders as well as the Pom-Poms motivated the crowds with their cheers and created anticipation for the big game against the Laurel Spartans. A steady beat was kept by the Marching Band for the parade participants to march to.

While playing the fight song, the Marching Band was overpowered by the cheering of the spirited classes. The floats surely were the highlight of the parade. By the time the parade reached the school all were rowdy and cheering the Wildcats on to victory!

Due to overcrowding of the Senior float, Seniors Jayne Sullivan, Darryl Freeman, and Felicia Mitchell ride in a pick-up truck preceding their float.

"Go, go Seniors," cheers class President Marsha Lessley, while Sandy Broadwater inspects the turnout for the parade.

The discipline in the march of the NJROTC Girls Drill Team was clearly demonstrated throughout the parade.

The NJROTC Boys Drill Team are impressive with their uniform marching.

The sign is not needed to tell those watching the parade who is marching down Adelphi Road.

Leading the Cheerleaders, Yvette Williams, Laura Jarvis, and Melanie Miller begin the next cheer.

Dancing The Night Away

The theme for this year's Homecoming Dance was "Purple Rain" and the gym was appropriately decorated with purple teardrops. The music for the dance was provided by Capital Entertainment. Many people attended the dance which was a most enjoyable finale to the Homecoming Day activities. Much work and preparation went into the dance which lasted from 7 to 11 P.M. and was held in the boys' gymnasium. Quite a few of the German Exchange students also attended the dance and it gave them an opportunity to experience a typically American tradition with American teenagers. Many Seniors attended the dance and thoroughly enjoyed their last Homecoming at Northwestern. "Purple Rain" was a definite success and a fabulous time was had by all.

Enjoying themselves at the Homecoming Dance are Fawn Marsh and Brian Williams.

While taking a break from dancing, a German exchange student, Katarina Berger, expresses her contentment with a smile to her host sister, Carrie Davis.

"Sunglasses at Night" seems to be a favorite of Senior Mark Williams.

A Wildcat Victory For Juniors

Tuesday, October 9, was not an ordinary Tuesday. It was the beginning of Spirit Week and the day of the Hall Decorations competition. Ordinary halls were turned into masterpieces. The competition was fierce with each class battling to be the best. The Freshmen received fourth place for their hall. It was located on third floor A-wing and was decorated with brightly colored balloons and streamers. The Sophomores received third place for their hall "Dawn of a New Era", which was located on third floor B-wing. The Senior hall in the Auditorium Lobby was awarded second place. The theme for the Senior hall was "Welcome to Wildcat Country." The Juniors put forth a spectacular effort on their hall which was located on second floor B-wing. Their hall entitled "Wildcat Victory" received first place.

Hard at work on their hall are Sophomores Mark Grant and Todd Britt.

The Senior hall boasted the theme "Welcome to Wildcat Country". The Senior hall was awarded second place.

The Freshmen hall, located on third floor A-wing, was decorated with brightly colored balloons and streamers.

The theme for the Sophomore hall was "Dawn of a New Era." The Sophomores received third place for their efforts.

The Junior hall located on second floor B-wing was most impressive. The Juniors received first place for their "Wildcat Victory."

Coming Together

Enthusiasm in their float and in their class is evident on the part of the Juniors.

The parade march continued around the track, as the spectators gradually arrived. The spirit was kept high by the enthusiasm of the Cheerleaders and class members riding their floats.

The High Steppers performed a routine to the tune of "Whop Shoo-bie" by Rare Essence, and the Cheerleaders did a dance routine to "Let's Get Crazy" by Prince. Just before kick-off, Vickey Klimek sang the National Anthem.

The crew of the Senior spaceship blasts past the crowd to display their victory.

Stepping out for the first time this fall, the Highsteppers show us all what they can do.

During the Pre-Game festivities, the Color Guard presents the flags for the National Anthem.

The Girls Drill Team strikes a pose for the crowd.

The Pom-Pons congratulate Patrice Pereira as she is named Homecoming Princess of the Junior class.

A Peek Behind The Scenes

They make the difference! The pride in their set is shown by Melanie McGraw, Addie Strain, Scott Antoniak, Tom Wilson and Simone Thompson, members of the stage crew.

In his fifth year as our Drama Coach, Mr. Dennis Dulmage directed his eighth successful production at our school with "You're A Good Man Charlie Brown." This marked our third annual fall play produced by the drama club, Backstage. The tryouts were held in October when 35 students came to audition for a part in the limited cast of six.

Again, Backstage had the benefit of talent in our community. Mrs. Sharon Starling served as the vocal director and Miss Cheryl Branham, a doctoral piano major at the University of Maryland, was the accompanist for practices and all four performances. It can truly be said the cast benefitted from their talent and experience.

Tom Provenza, Matt Warnick, and Woodie Miles brought sound and light to the set as the sound and light technicians. The set changes were made smoothly due to the stage manager, Tom Wilson's experience. The stage crew can take credit for building the set as well as for bringing it to life with its bright eye-catching colors.

These and other "Backstage" talents played an enormous role in the success of the play.

Relaxing before the performance, Eric McGraw waits patiently while Pat Black puts the finishing touches on his make-up.

18 STUDENT LIFE

The transformation from girl to beagle begins as Lilace Mellin applies her make-up to prepare for her role as Snoopy.

Make-up Advisor Tonya Hyman uses her expertise to bring life to Peppermint Patty's face.

The cast of "You're A Good Man Charlie Brown" shows their character while they pose at dress rehearsal for a costume and make-up check.

Putting complete trust in his make-up artist, Jim Miller "Linus", sits patiently while Amy Servis applies translucent powder to his nose.

The Peanuts Gang On Stage

"I'll get you Red Baron!" says Snoopy in his imaginary biplane.

The production of "You're A Good Man Charlie Brown" was a real success. The set was very simplistic yet highly colorful and creative. The play of Charlie Brown was a really enjoyable experience for student actors, crew, and the well entertained audiences from our school and community.

Two performances were done for other schools where over 500 students attended. Two evening performances were given where the audiences were charmed by the light hearted script and the character development by the actors. Everyone loved discovering the child within himself through the antics of the familiar Peanuts characters.

Charlie Brown hides from the little red headed girl.

The Glee Club goofs off during their practice of "Home, Home On The Range", yet it goes unnoticed by Schroder who is so intense in his music and directing.

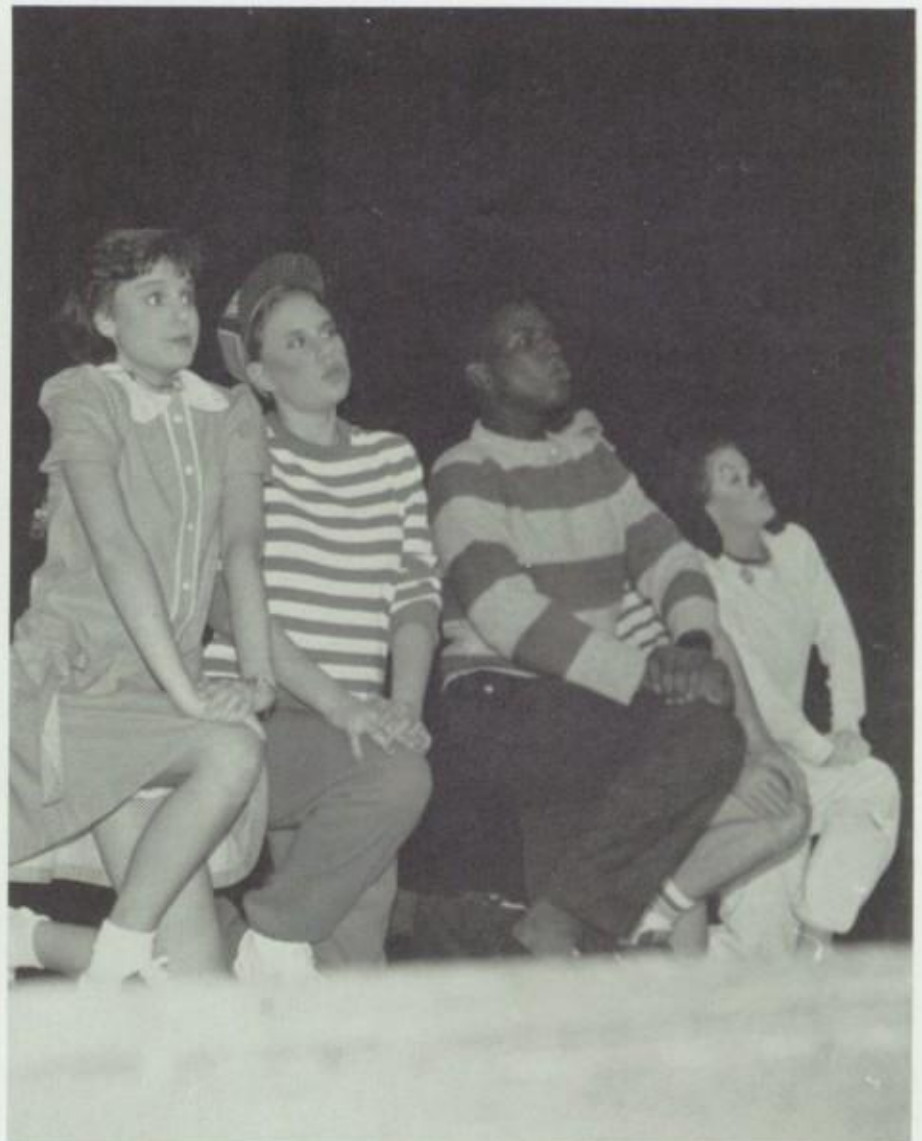

Cast

Charlie Brown	Eric McGraw
Linus	Jim Miller
Schroder	Al Chiverton
Lucy	Jayne Sullivan
Patty	Lara Carcione
Snoopy	Lilace Mellin

Overjoyed by finding his lost blanket Linus sings about his intense, "foolish" attachment to it.

Lucy is devastated by the results of her survey indicating that she is in fact a very crabby person.

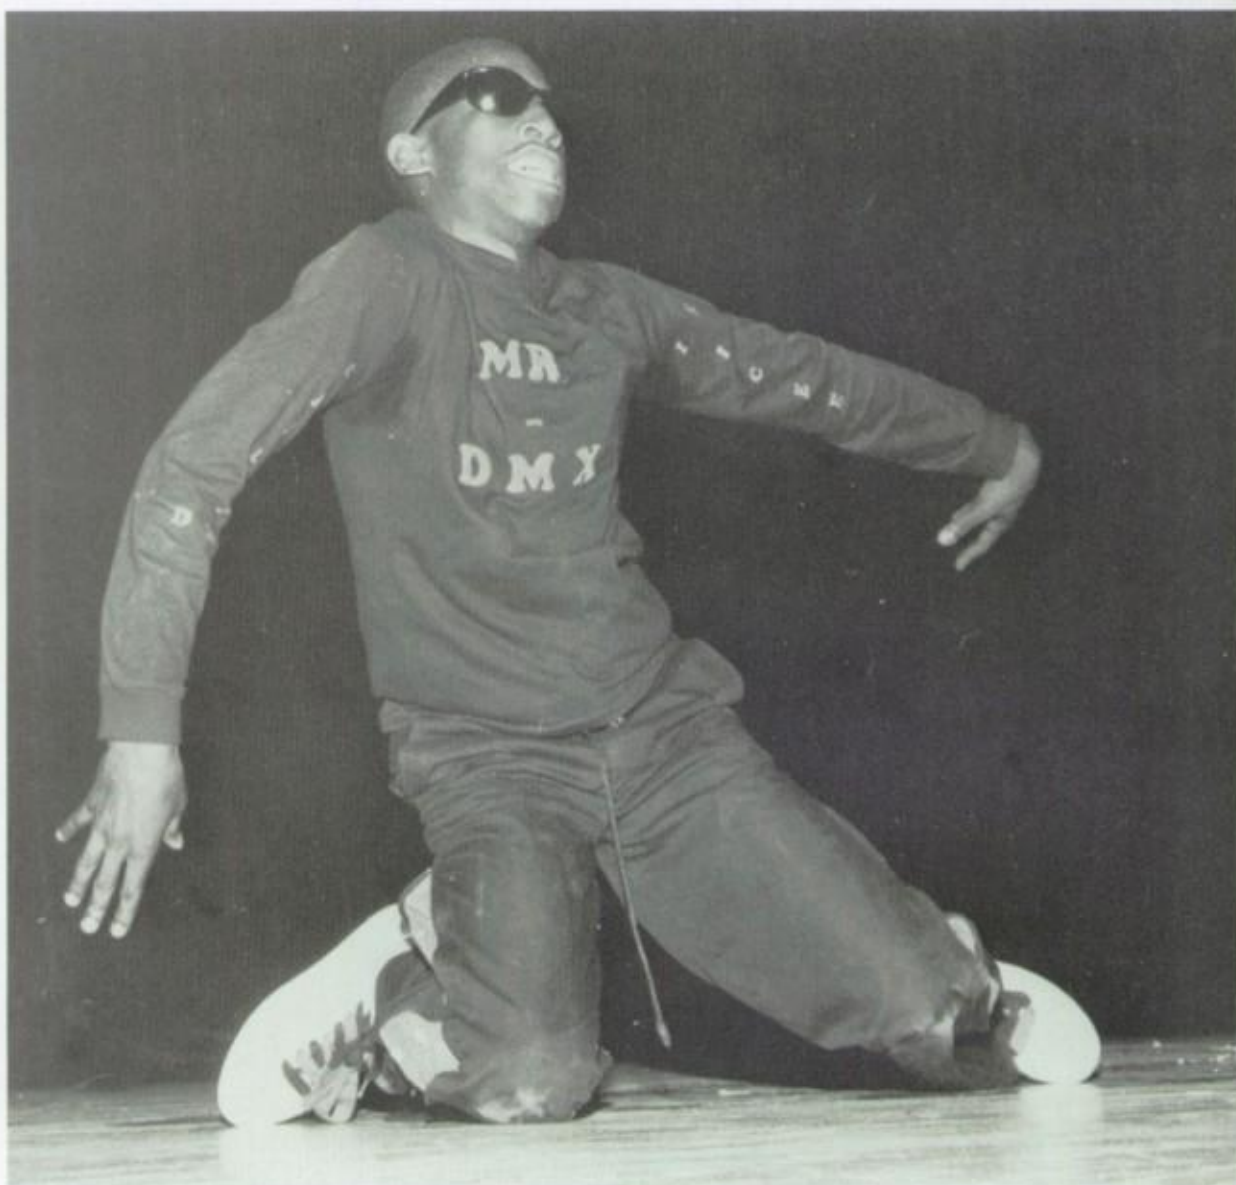

"You are thoughtful, brave, and courteous", sings the cast in their opening number "You're A Good Man Charlie Brown."

Wildcats Strut Their Stuff

Breakdancing is one of the most popular fads around, and Lee Cloud enjoys performing for his classmates.

On Monday October 1, fifty anxious students, all with talent, showed up to audition for the talent show to be held on Friday November 9. The competition was tough because only 15 acts would be performed. Sponsored by Ms. DePlatchett, she and Mr. Hall were the talent scouts at the auditions, while Mr. Braccia served as Master of Ceremonies. Some of the judges for the talent show were Mrs. Sharon Starling—vocal musician, Mr. Edward Griffen-P.G. County Art Supervisor, Ms. Pauline Bade-Music Supervisor from New York, and our own Nick Fuchs.

Placing third was Alvin Willians with his pantomime-dance to Michael Jackson's number one hit, "Billy Jean". Placing second was the performance of "Home" from the musical "the Wiz" performed by vocalist Darlene Turner, drummer Maurice Simmons and pianist Kalisa Roberts. Stealing the show with first place was the S-R Crew Breakdancers.

Proving that Northwestern students aren't the only ones with talent are Mrs. Sharon Conway and her daughter.

Performing in the Fall Talent Show, Alvin Williams does his impression of Michael Jackson.

Giving it her all is Pamela Johnson as she shares her singing ability with the rest of Northwestern's students.

A member of the S-R Crew, Trung Nguyen, displays his breakdancing ability.

A Twist Of Fate

This fall, the members of the Junior class looked forward to receiving their class rings in November. These rings symbolized class unity and indicated the rise to the rank of upperclassmen.

Choosing a class ring was a difficult decision because there was a wide variety of metals, stones, and special features to choose from. Students could design their rings to suit their individual tastes.

There were also many traditions that go along with class rings that were followed. For example, some people have their friends "turn" their rings for good luck. The rings were turned the same number of times as the student's year of graduation. However, you couldn't just turn a ring. There were certain rules to be followed. You always turned the ring towards the pinky finger (but you were careful not to touch the stone, or the person would have to start counting "turns" all over again) and you had to kiss the last person that turned your ring.

But most importantly, class rings meant that soon the waiting would be over and the Juniors would finally become Seniors.

Taking a break from her work. Christine Thompson's ring gets turned by Cricket Kovalakides.

Hand in hand in hand in hand. These four students share in the enjoyment of their new class rings.

Anxious for everyone to see his new ring, Junior Brian Toth shows it off to his classmate Yoon Chang.

Trying hard not to touch the stone, Laveeta Harris turns Tami Hunter's ring.

A Typical Day At Northwestern

Students use a variety of methods to get to school. Here, Tonya Latham gets a ride from a friend.

The start of a Northwestern student's day begins with his or her arrival at school. Students utilize a variety of methods of transportation in order to get to Northwestern. Some ride buses, some walk to school, and some get rides with their parents or friends.

Most students arrive with time to spare before Homeroom. Students use the extra time to socialize with their friends, go to their lockers, visit counselors, buy supplies in the school store, or even get some last minute studying done in the library. But no matter how students spend their extra time in the morning, it is just the beginning of another typical day at Northwestern.

The cold weather doesn't stop this student from bicycling to school in the mornings.

Most of Northwestern's students arrive by bus. This is just a typical scene of a morning at Northwestern.

Strolling down the hall on their way to Homeroom are Annie Pietropaoli and Cassandra Gardner.

Students enjoy socializing before school, and this group is no exception.

Discussing the day's upcoming events are Jennifer Jarman and Sarah Headley.

This Is Our Time

Students always rush to "Ye Olde Lunch Room", the favorite place to eat in school. A quick look at the menu always confirms that pizza and french fries are still available on any given day.

This was our time. Some could be found hurriedly eating so they could join friends in Senior Court for socializing and fresh air. Some could be found studying for future tests or getting a headstart on their evenings homework. Whatever we did, the lunch scene was truly one of the most anticipated periods during our day.

Books and rules are not the only thing in school, as you can see, students are busy socializing on Senior Court.

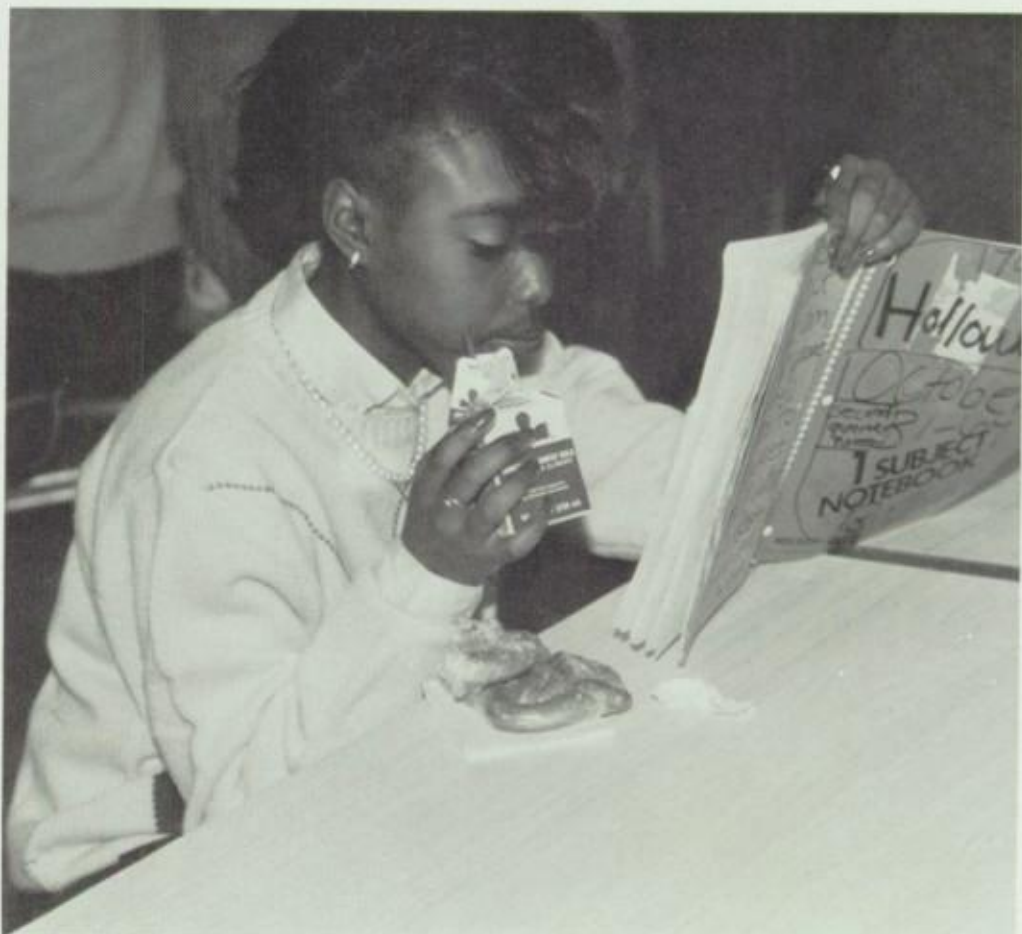

In the cafeteria, during lunch, Seniors Dennis Sawyers, Kechia Kirksey, and Felicia Jones enjoy exchanging class portraits.

Julio Ortiz explains an interesting tale to Susan Medina.

The brisk weather outside doesn't stop crowds from gathering at Senior Court at the start of first lunch.

Eating hearty, Keith Sayers chows down on the famous Friday's Fishwich.

Spending her break wisely, Marcia Robinson sits and reviews her notes.

The End Is Near

A typical day at Northwestern ends at 3:30, after a full day of classes. As the end of the day draws near, students find it increasingly difficult to concentrate on their classwork, and students find themselves daydreaming and thinking about their afterschool plans and activities. Students also find themselves checking the clock constantly, counting down the minutes until the school day ends. When the bell finally rings at 3:30, students are anxious to go on to their afternoon activities. After finishing with their club meetings, team practices, and visiting with friends, students return home to start on homework and to prepare themselves for another typical day at Northwestern.

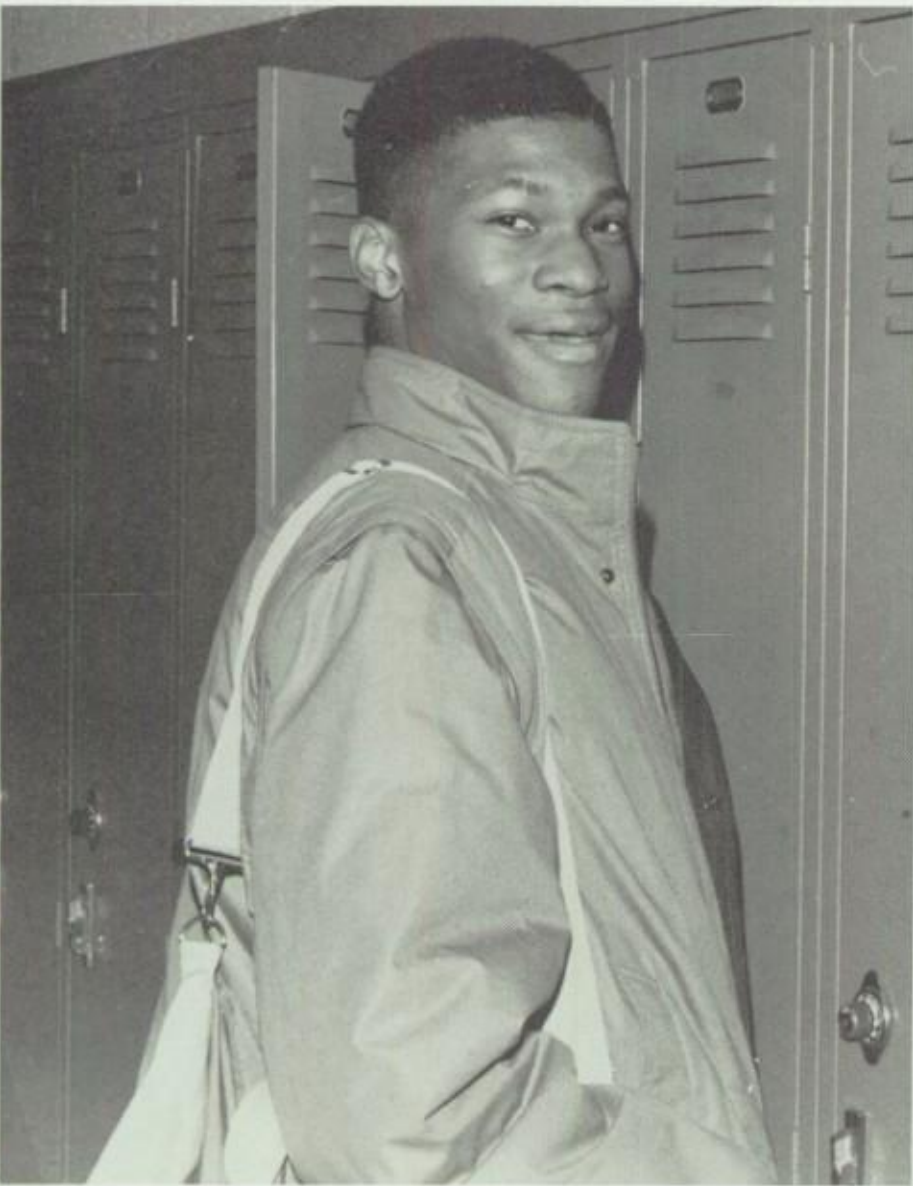

As the day draws to a close, Wendell Boyd takes time to rest.

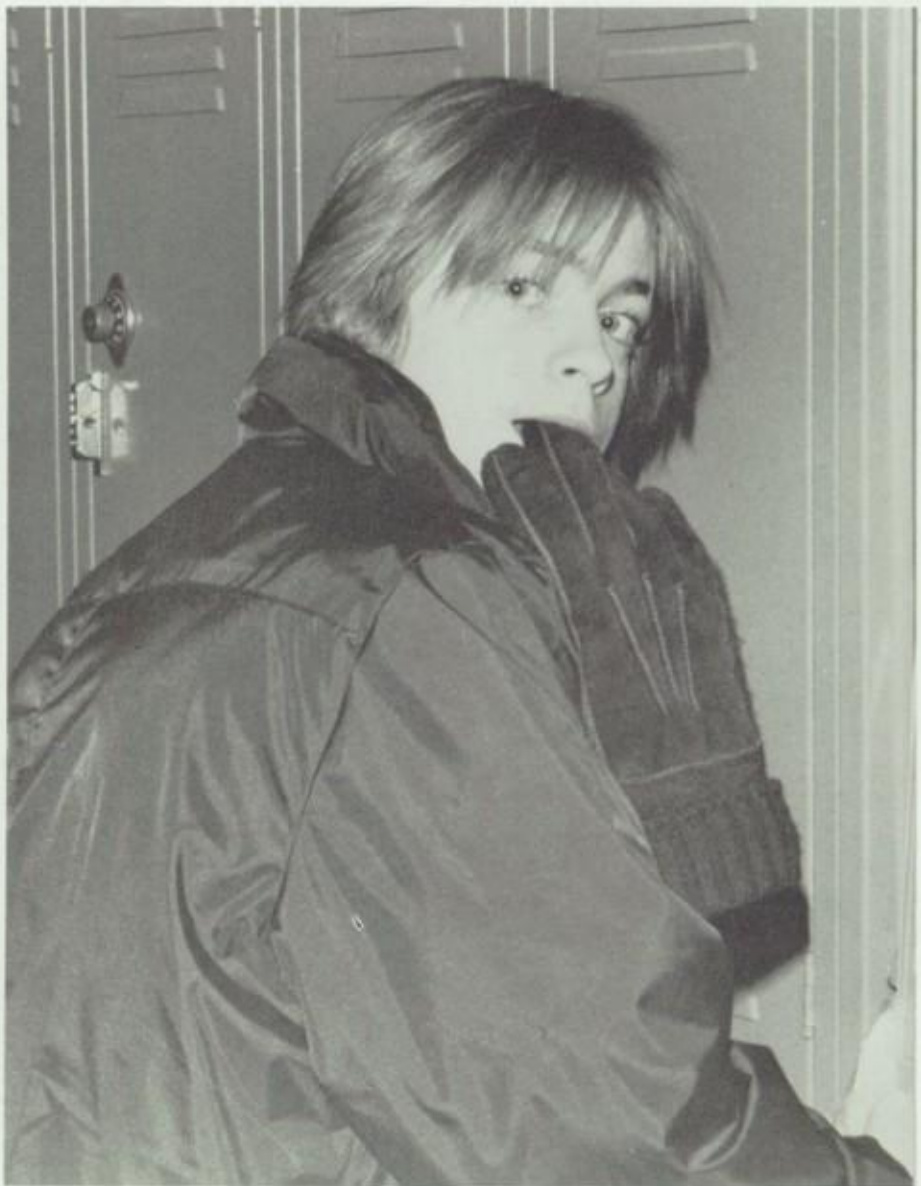

That magic moment, 3:30 P.M., when classes are dismissed for the day.

Patiently awaiting the bell, Rhonda Thompson thinks about the afternoon's activities.

A smiling Michael Brewington is happy that the day is over.

Preparing to leave for the day, Robert Flynn is caught by the photographer.

Before leaving for the day, Mari Mulhare stops to collect her books for homework.

Anxiously awaiting the dismissal bell, Tonya Moore tries to concentrate on her teacher's lecture.

Academics—studying, tests, education. They all sound so intense, but are they? NO! Studying all that homework, sweating through all those tests, struggling through all those classes—that wonderful feeling of accomplishment; that is what academics are all about.

There is a world out there to be prepared for and a world of classes to prepare you for it. Northwestern offers that wide variety of classes, ranging from Advanced Placement (A.P.) courses to business courses to courses in foreign languages.

A.P. courses offer people a slight edge when entering the college world. Some examples are A.P. English with its extensive reading list which introduces students to a variety of times, cultures and ideas. Students discover the world inside a cat or shark in A.P. Biology.

After students are introduced to different worlds and cultures through these classes, sometimes they go on field trips to the places they have learned about. For example, the A.P. History classes going to London, England; foreign exchanges with Belgian students and German students, trips to Williamsburg to discover what our country was like when it first began, and many other cultural experiences.

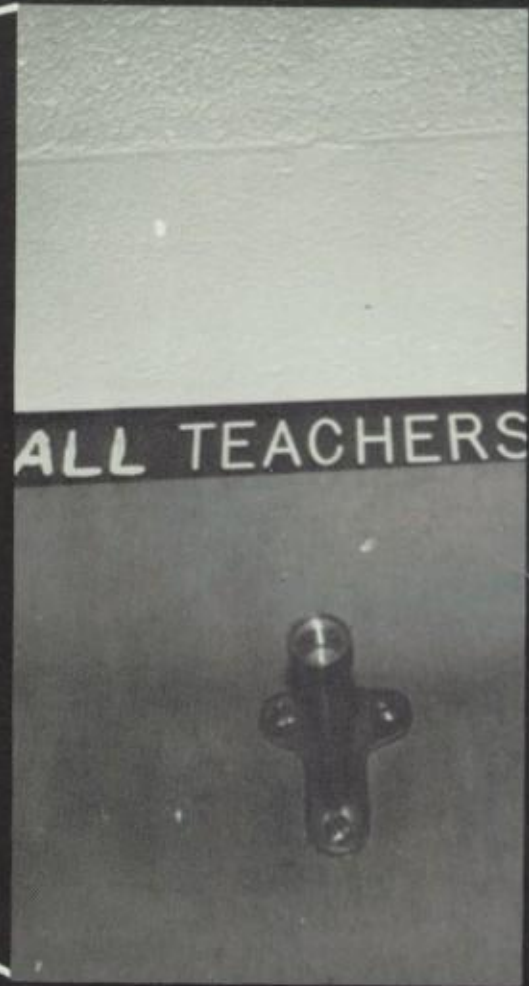

You do not have to take all A.P. courses to be prepared for the "real world." There are many classes in business, such as typing, shorthand, accounting, and data processing. Another way to introduce students to the working world is through the work study program. This is where students take classes in the morning and obtain experience in the business world during the afternoon.

As you can see, there is a huge world out there and you must to be prepared for it. Northwestern is where you could start to make a world of difference.

A WORLD OF DIFFERENCE IN

ACADEMICS

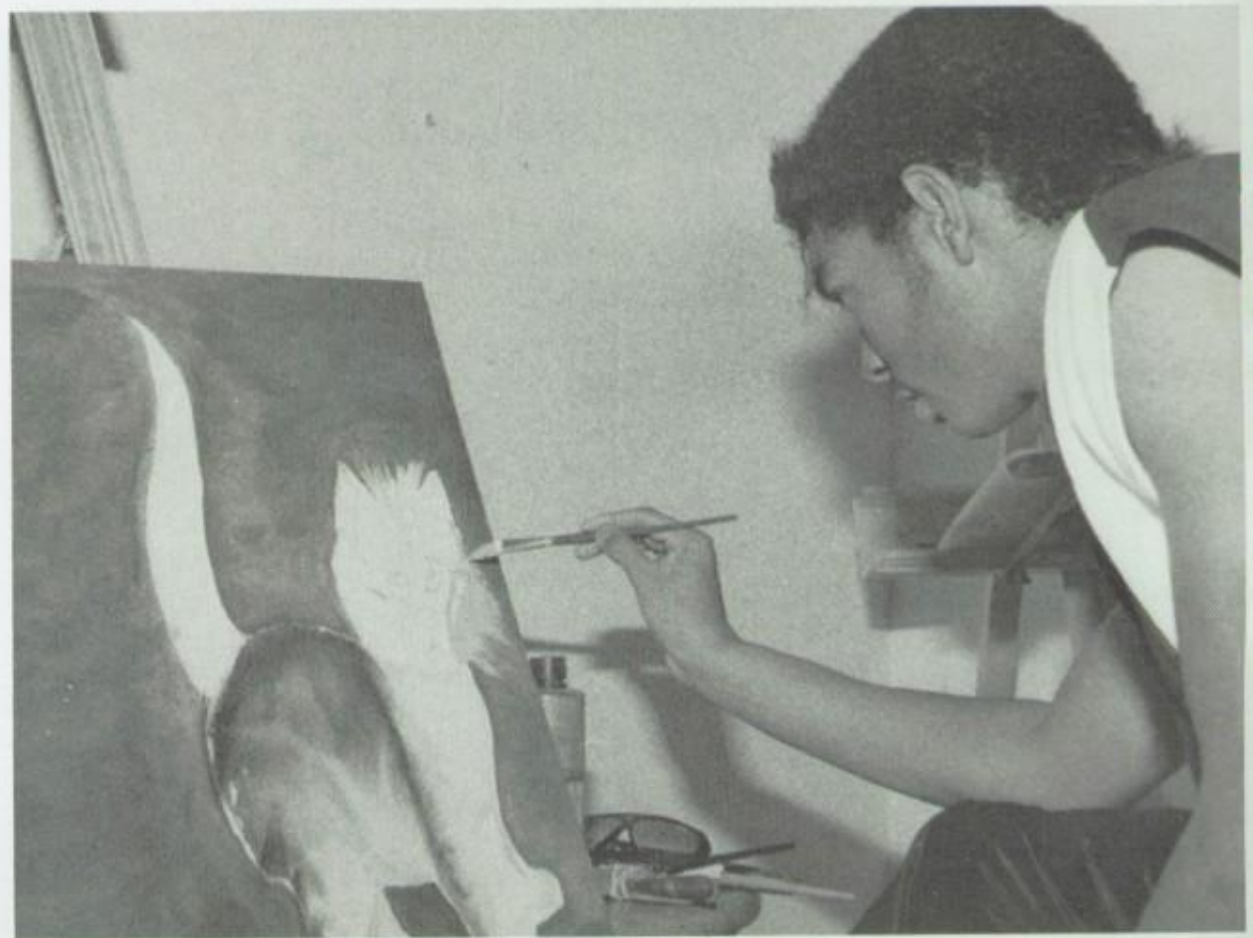

Crafts, Colors, And Creations

In the art classes offered at Northwestern, students learn how to create "compositions" through basic design. This is done through drawing, painting, printmaking, and sculpture. Advertising techniques are studied for future career interests. There are also the classes in Basic Design which stress such areas as design elements in drawing, painting, and printing. Graphic Design classes enforce the skills needed to develop a student's ability to use printing and stenciling along with lettering and layout techniques.

In the second year of this class techniques used in etching, silkscreen, linoleum, and woodblock are introduced.

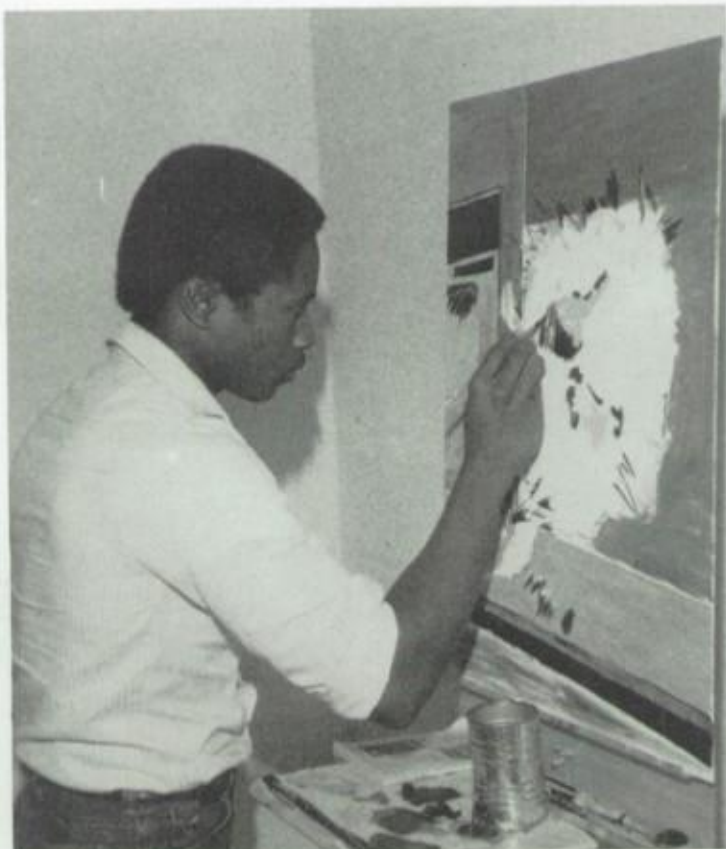

Designs in two and three dimensions are also areas in which students can take classes. Within two-dimensions, students use drawings, sketchings, and paintings to express their creativity; while in three dimensions, students use clay, metal, wood, wax, stone, yarns, and fabrics to mold, carve, weave, or construct their artistic ideas.

Whichever art class the Northwestern student takes, each enables the student to express his or her individuality through the expressions of art.

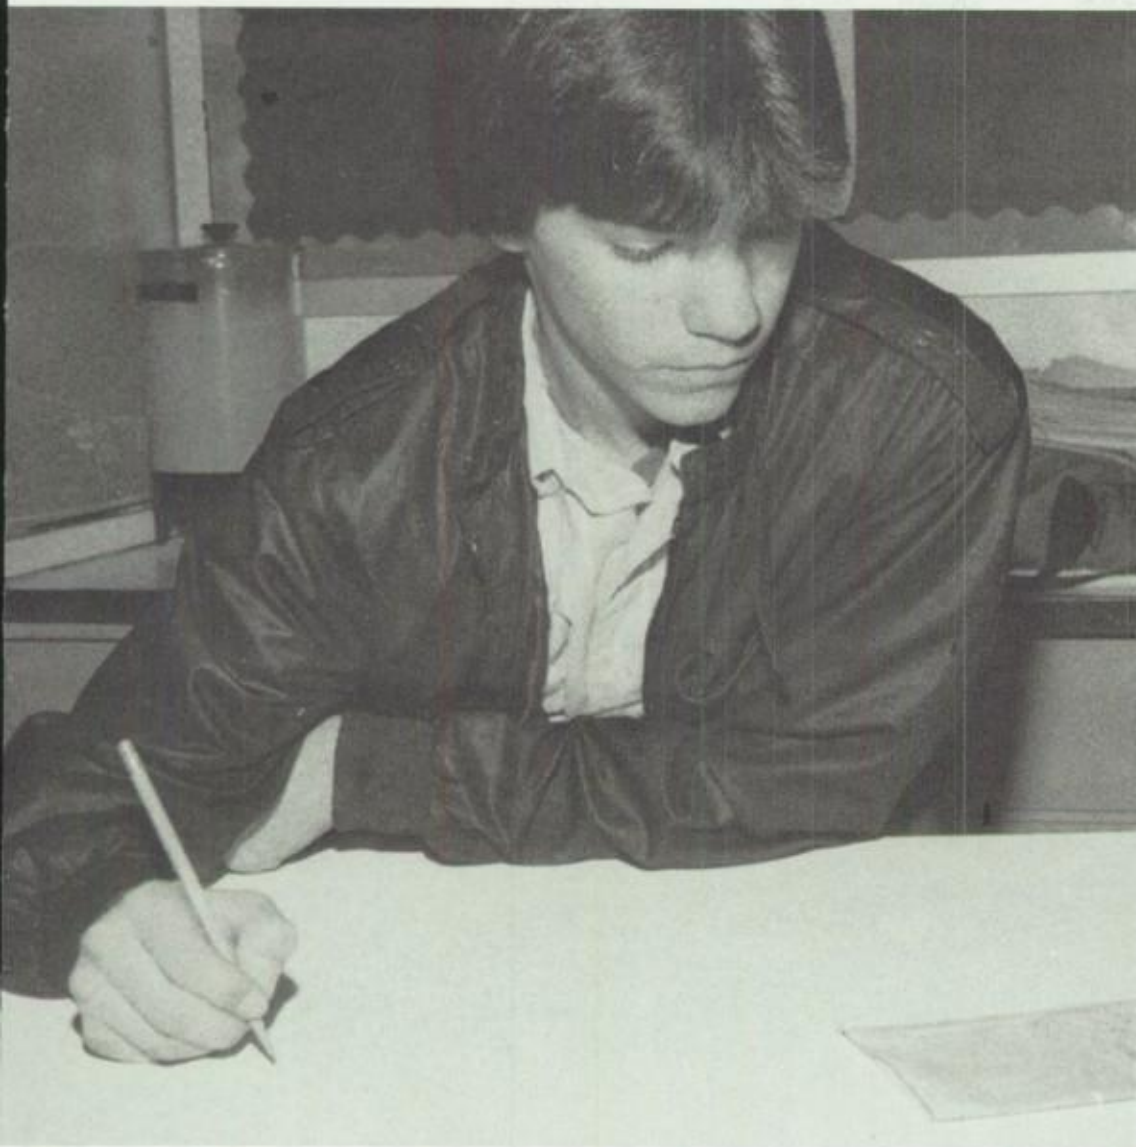

Painting his dream car, Jerry Smith puts on the finishing touches.

Painting by numbers is the thought of Javier Cruz as he fills in the etching of a cat with paint.

Creativity with a splash of color, artistically painted by John Sabbot.

Comparing his drawing to the original, Tommy Scibert is careful not to leave out any detail.

Aspiring artist, Martin Gedra mixes a unique color while creating a new masterpiece.

Cutting paper is only one of the jobs that Wendy Weaver does as an Art Student Aide.

A future artist, Amar Sher concentrates on every stroke.

The Musical Score

The Northwestern band keeps the school's spirit high by playing at football and basketball games. As a class, Band develops the musical skills within each student. The orchestra displays their musical talent when playing during the school's performances. Thanks to Mr. Lou Scarci and his musical classes, we can put on an outstanding "musical" each year.

Not only the Band, but also the chorus, perform at the annual Christmas program held in the Auditorium at Northwestern. Both the Mixed Chorus and the Concert Chorus participate in many programs throughout Prince George's County.

The Band as well as the chorus make their last appearance at the graduation ceremonies where the seniors can sing with the chorus for the last time.

Playing the drums is Tony Benson a member of the Northwestern Jazz Band.

While playing a duet Matalaba Rowell and Chris Bailey concentrate on staying together.

While trying to learn how to play the xylophone, Eric Cox shows Dennis Baltimore where the notes are as Philip Bennet looks on.

Practicing daily, Jeannine Pilgrim, Kimberly Stokes, and Carrie Lavelly keep their voices in tune.

Reaching each note, Kamallata Singha and Gloria Justice keep in harmony.

A member of the Northwestern Jazz Band, Kevin Ramsey practices during his third period class.

A freshman this year, Cynthia Brunson is one member of the Northwestern Mixed Chorus.

The Real World

Perfecting her typing skills, Caroline Shackleford makes sure to keep her eyes on her book and not on her hands.

Northwestern's wide variety of business courses prepares students seeking jobs directly after graduation.

In typing class, students learn basic typing skills as well as how to arrange business letters. Students develop accuracy and speed. Shorthand emphasizes the ability to transcribe and take dictation. Notehand enables the students to take sufficient notes which will be beneficial during a lecture. The ability to prepare and keep financial records can be acquired through several Accounting classes. Recording and analyzing business transactions is also a part of these courses. Students who plan Business Administration as their major in college find Accounting to be most helpful. Data Processing classes are designed for those students looking ahead to the computer world. Students learn the computer languages of Basic and Cobol. Using the computers, students have the opportunity to test the programs they have written. Becoming proficient in a variety of these skills increases a student's chance of getting a job as a secretary or as an assistant in a business situation.

Striving for accuracy, Tabby Hendershot completes a practice drill.

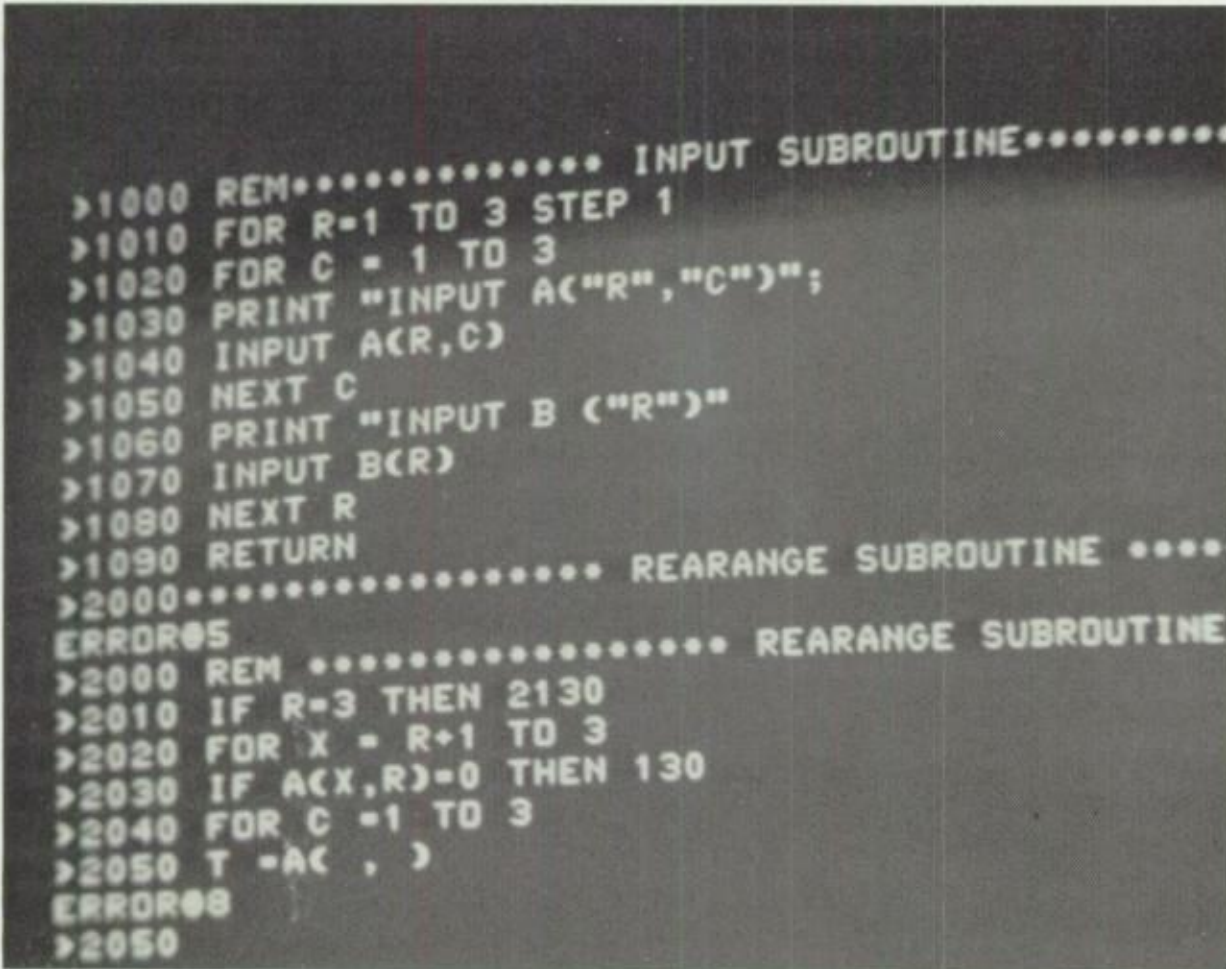

Learning a shorter and easier way to take notes is Felicia Mitchell.

Focusing on the assignment, Grady Howie attempts to strike the correct keys.

Displaying good posture, Lisa Michel continues on with her typing assignment.

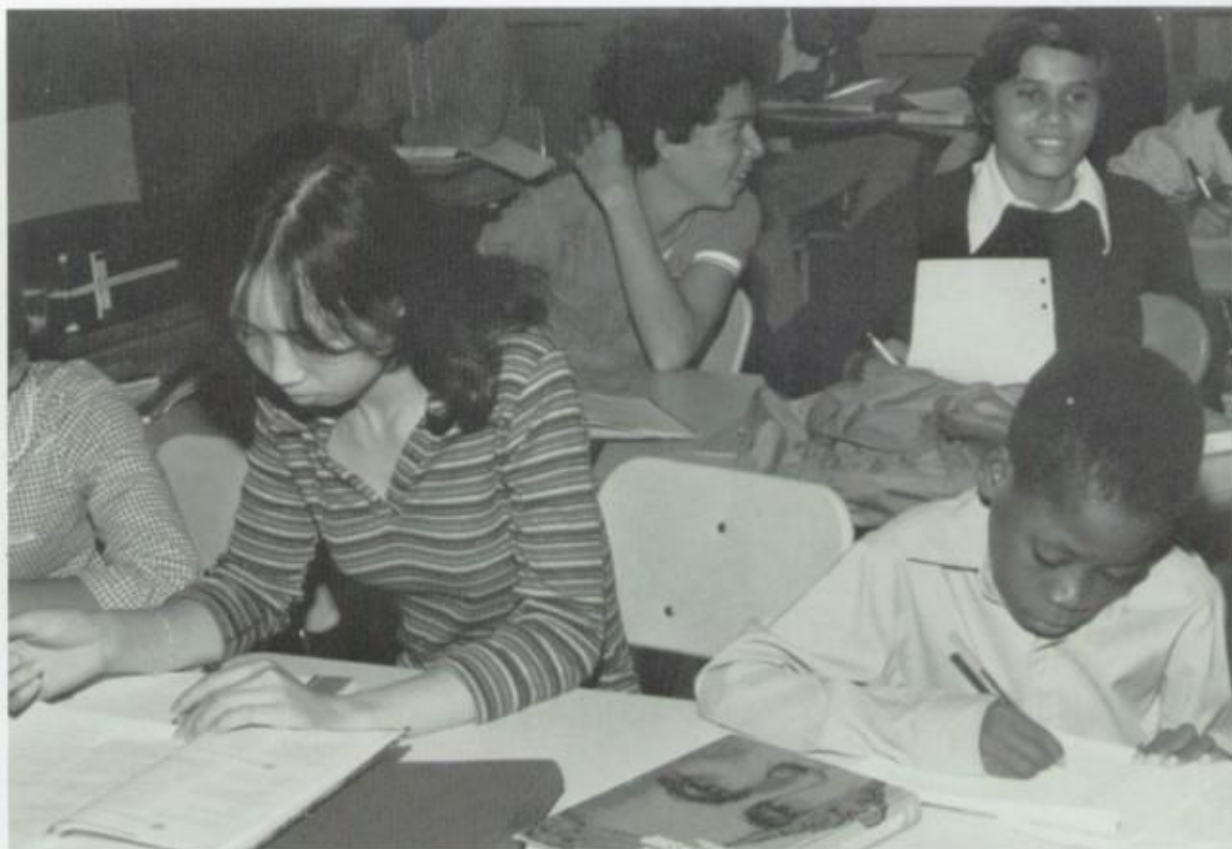

Business not only relates to typewriters, but to computers also.

The Classics Class

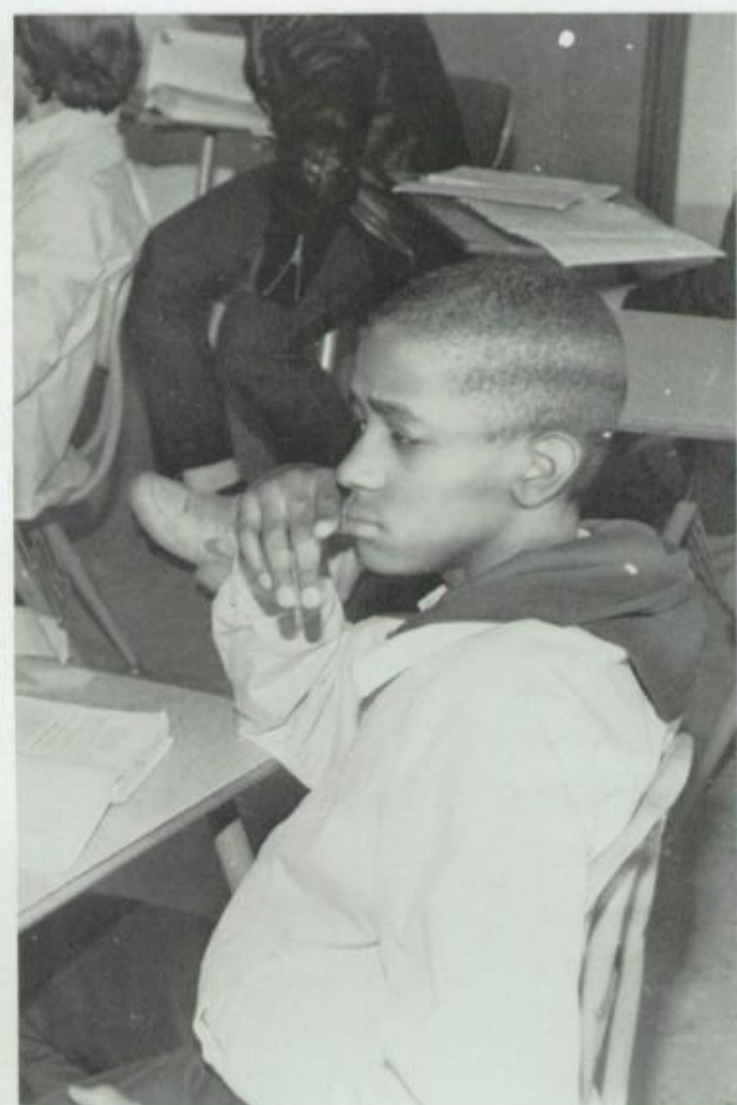

In English class, which is one of the required subjects for the four years of high school, students learn the basic concepts of grammar and composition. Literature classes provide the opportunity to read and comprehend short stories as well as several classics. A few of the often read classics are Chaucer's Canterbury Tales, William Shakespeare's MacBeth, and Charles Dickens' Great Expectations. The Advanced Placement English class is required to read an average of four books each month. Students compare and contrast these books as if they were literary critics.

English is not just grammar and reading; to some, English is a foreign language. ESOL classes help foreign students to understand our English language a little better. English classes develop writing abilities and prepare students for college and the job world.

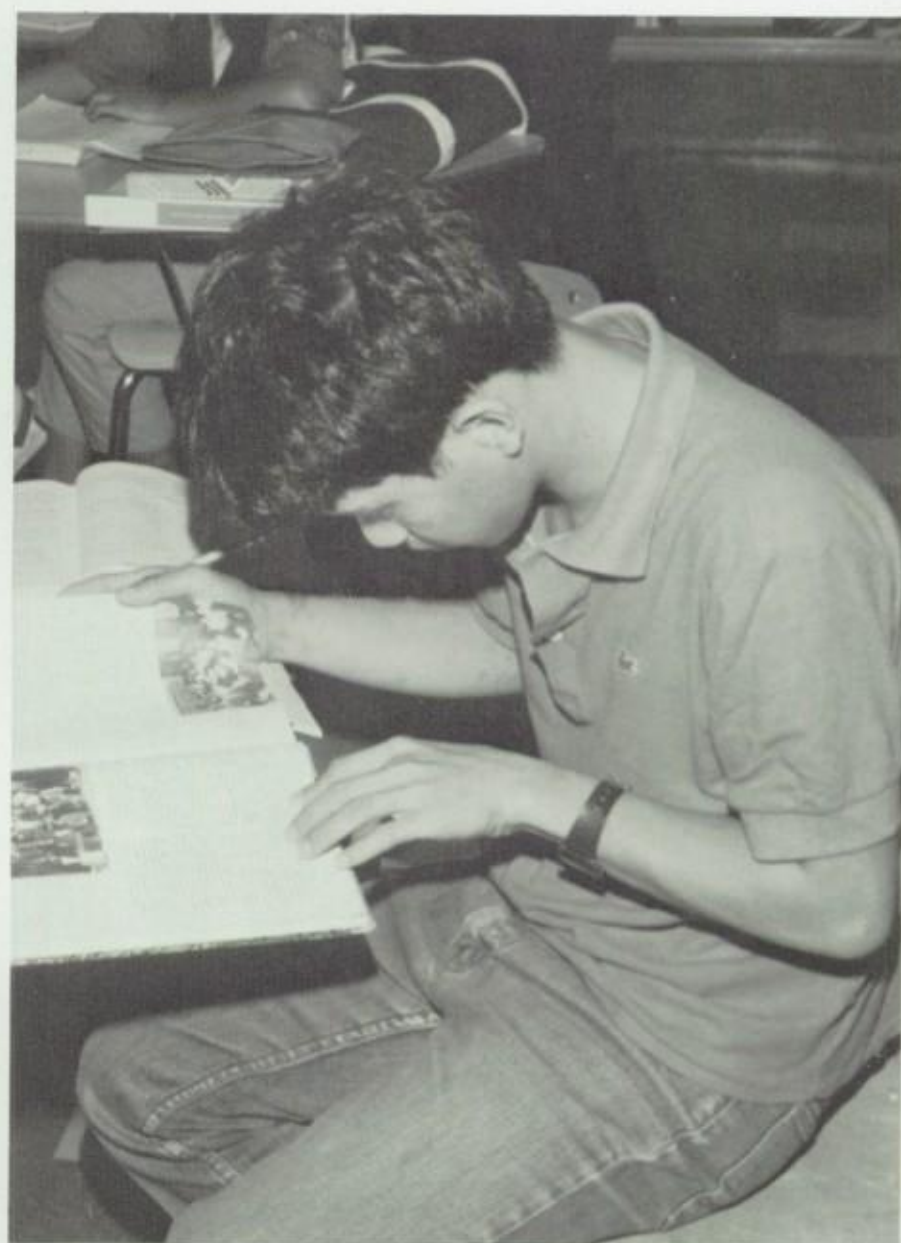

In ESOL class, Belande Pierre and Xiao Thang learn how to obtain American citizenship.

These classic novels are examples of those studied this year in great detail by the AP English class taught by Mrs. Marjorie Summerall. These students would NEVER turn to the Cliff Notes as an aid to the classics as others have done in the past.

Such intense thought will surely bring this student success when it comes to grammar usage.

Preparing for the SAT's will result in higher scores for David Mills, Louie Kerdock, Roy Longanecker, and Nancy Mesa.

Studying American Culture is Weiching Huynh during his ESOL class.

Totally engrossed in her grammar book, Shorn Joseph learns the basic use of verbs.

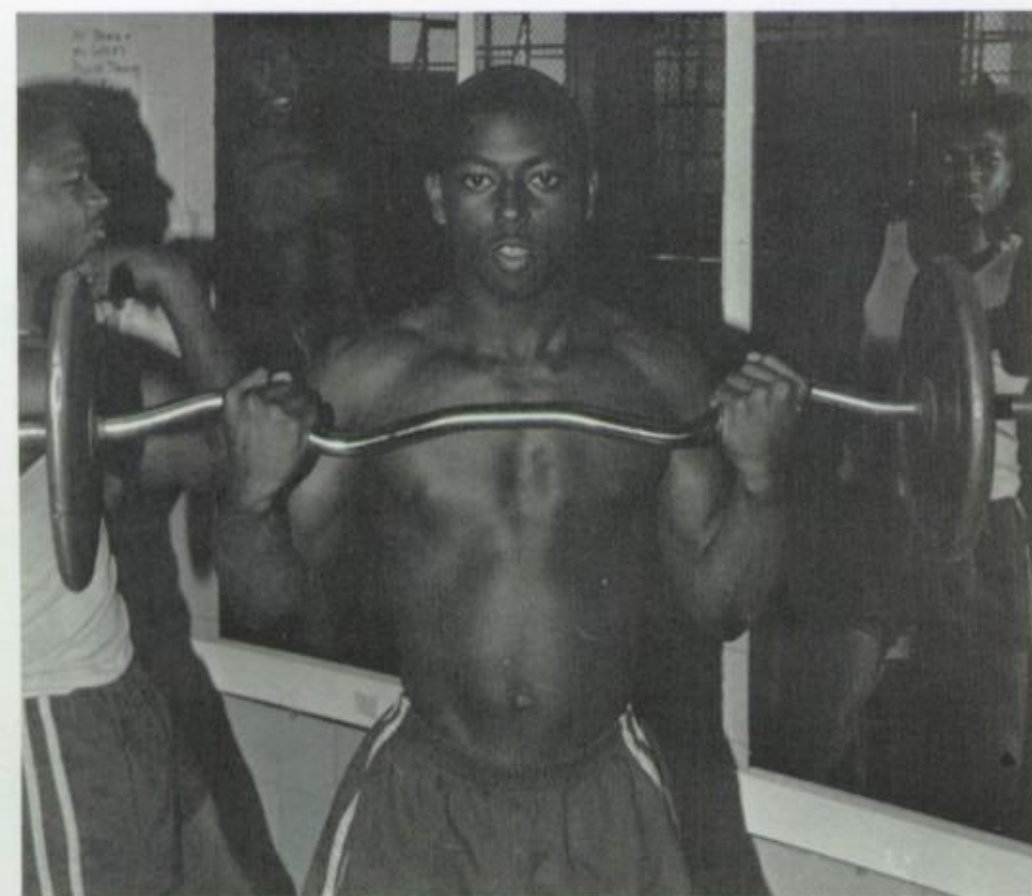

Working together, Lisa Morris and Travis Davis learn about advanced reading skills.

Just Playing Around

Physical Education classes offer an opportunity for students to get some exercise. They provide ways to burn off some of the stress that is acquired throughout the day. Competency and coordination through complex movements are obtained through such activities. All sports undertaken in gym classes concentrate on strategy and skills. Skills are developed through organization and participation in team sports. Often teams are formed from each gym period. These teams compete and may land in the "playoffs" of Northwestern.

Physical training is also a type of physical education. Students wishing to improve their strength and endurance are found in the weightroom. Fundamental theories of body conditioning and body mechanics are considered in this class.

One final aspect of the physical education classes at Northwestern is the dance program. In this class students learn to express themselves through tap, ballet, folk, square, social, jazz, and modern dance. The Michael Jackson moon walk might even be taught.

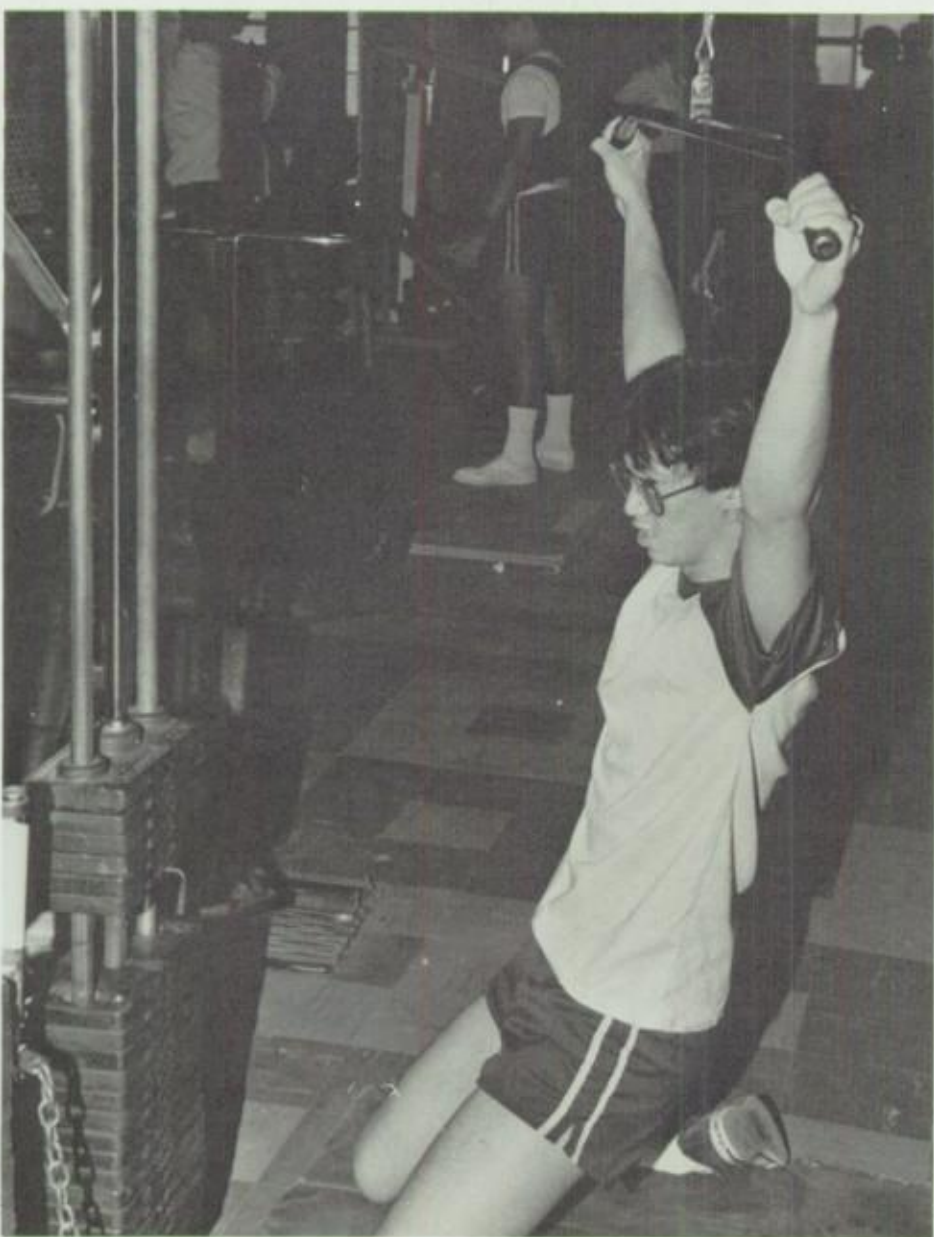

Displaying Herculean strength is James Holmes, while George Bass admires himself in the mirror.

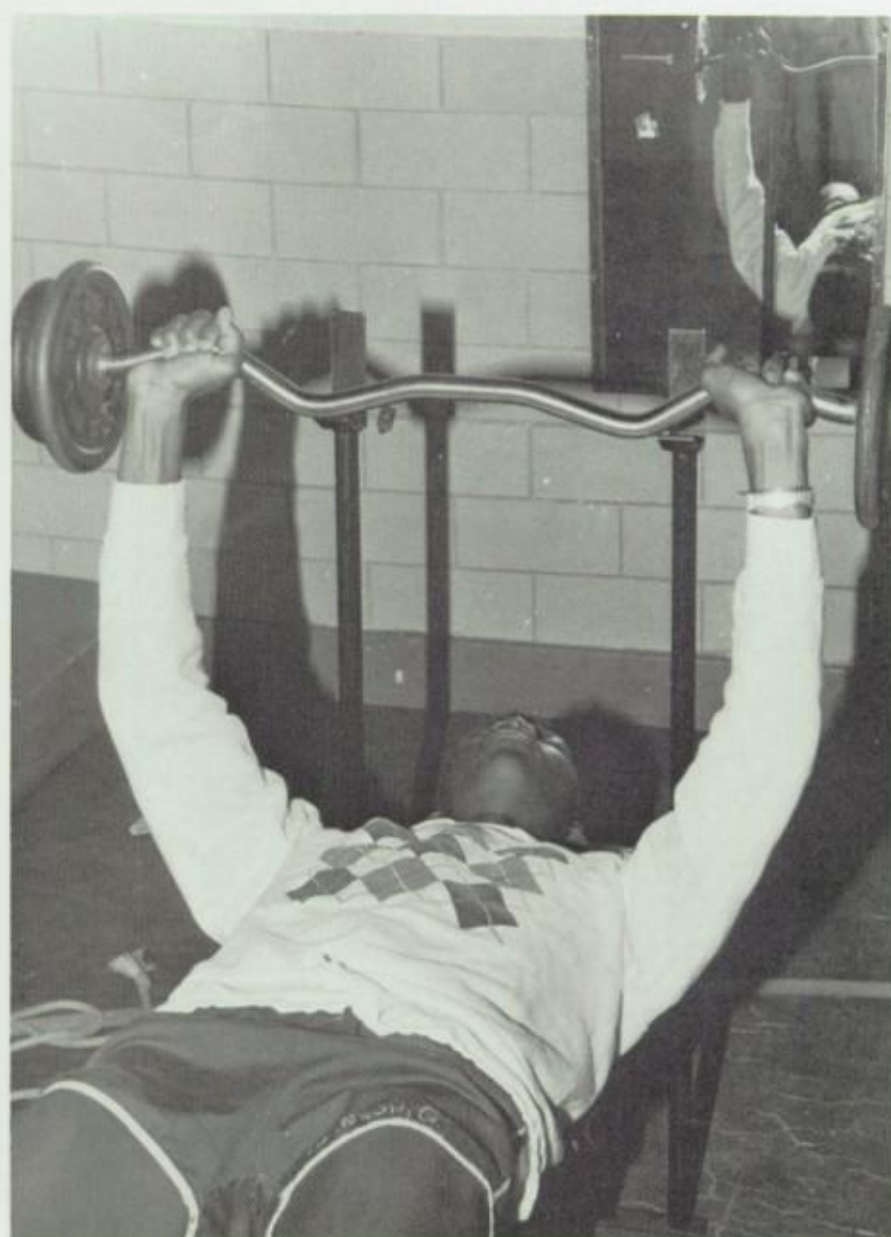

During weight training, George Welbourne spots Brian Cook to insure his safety as he struggles to raise the bar.

Pete Brighindi, Manfai Fong, and George Bass perform strenuous exercises in weight training.

During a strenuous workout, Minh Luong concentrates on perfecting his curling technique.

Showing his determination, this weightlifter practices hard daily.

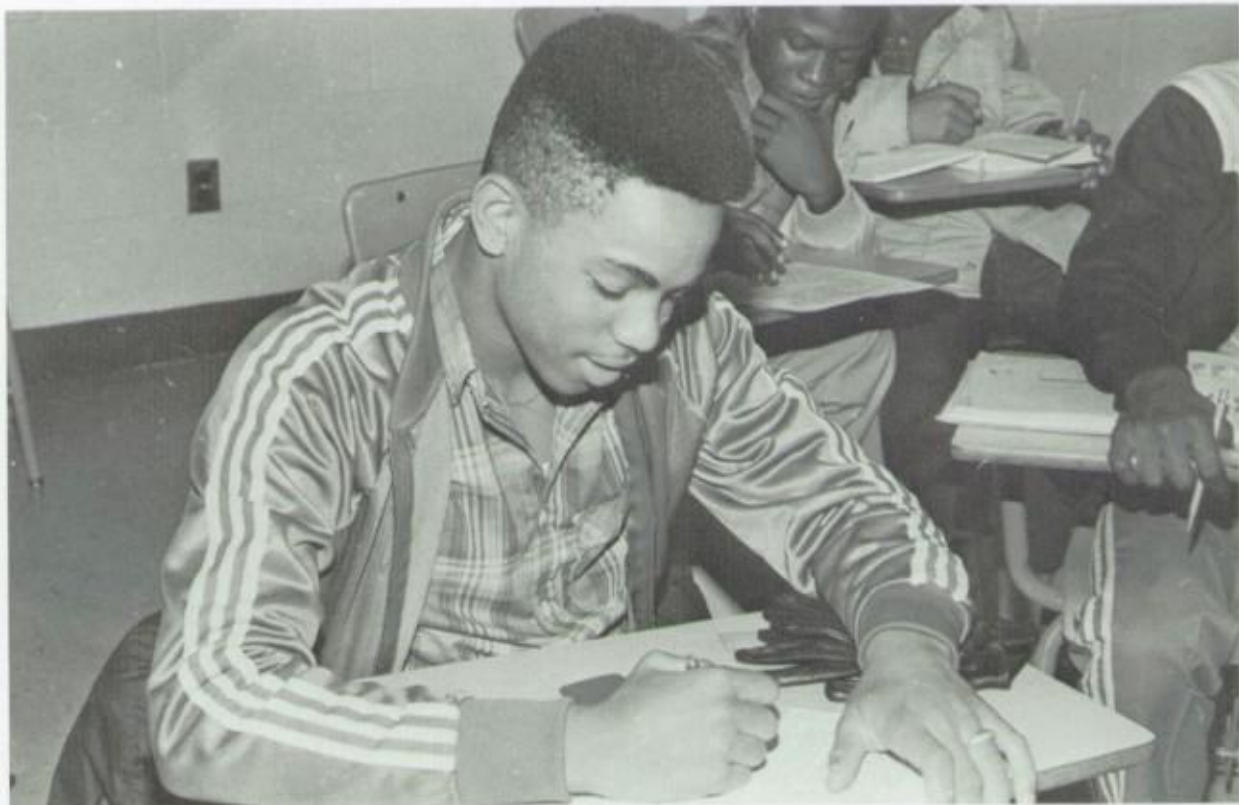

As a part of his physical training class, Gary Johnson displays the fine art of benching.

The Past, Present And Future

As of last year, the incoming students are required to have 4 credits of History for graduation. The Freshmen increase their understanding of our democratic society through a Civics class. Civics deals with the local, state, and national governments. Early Western Civilization and Modern European History, designed for the Sophomores, discuss the historical developments and world conflicts in Europe, Asia, Africa, and Latin America. American History classes begin with the formation of our government. This course reviews the growth of America, as well as investigating American involvement in world affairs. The only two advanced placement History courses offered are Advanced Placement World History and Advanced Placement American History. Both subjects go into broader detail as the classes venture to various places such as Williamsburg. Political Issues, a one semester course, emphasizes the processes of the American political system. Basic individual rights and leadership are discussed. Social Issues focuses on the problems facing our society.

History prepares us for the future. The knowledge we have acquired will be beneficial as we explore our world, therefore making a difference in the history of our world.

Without a doubt, Terrence Britt knows the right answer.

Listening to the lecture, Sandy Christianson and Wayne Fenner intensely take notes.

Current issues are examined by Wendy Bright through commentaries in a Reader's Digest.

Important events of our nation's past history are studied by Bubba Crampton, Jemilda Williams, Martin Bennet, and Patty LaQuay in their Senior history class.

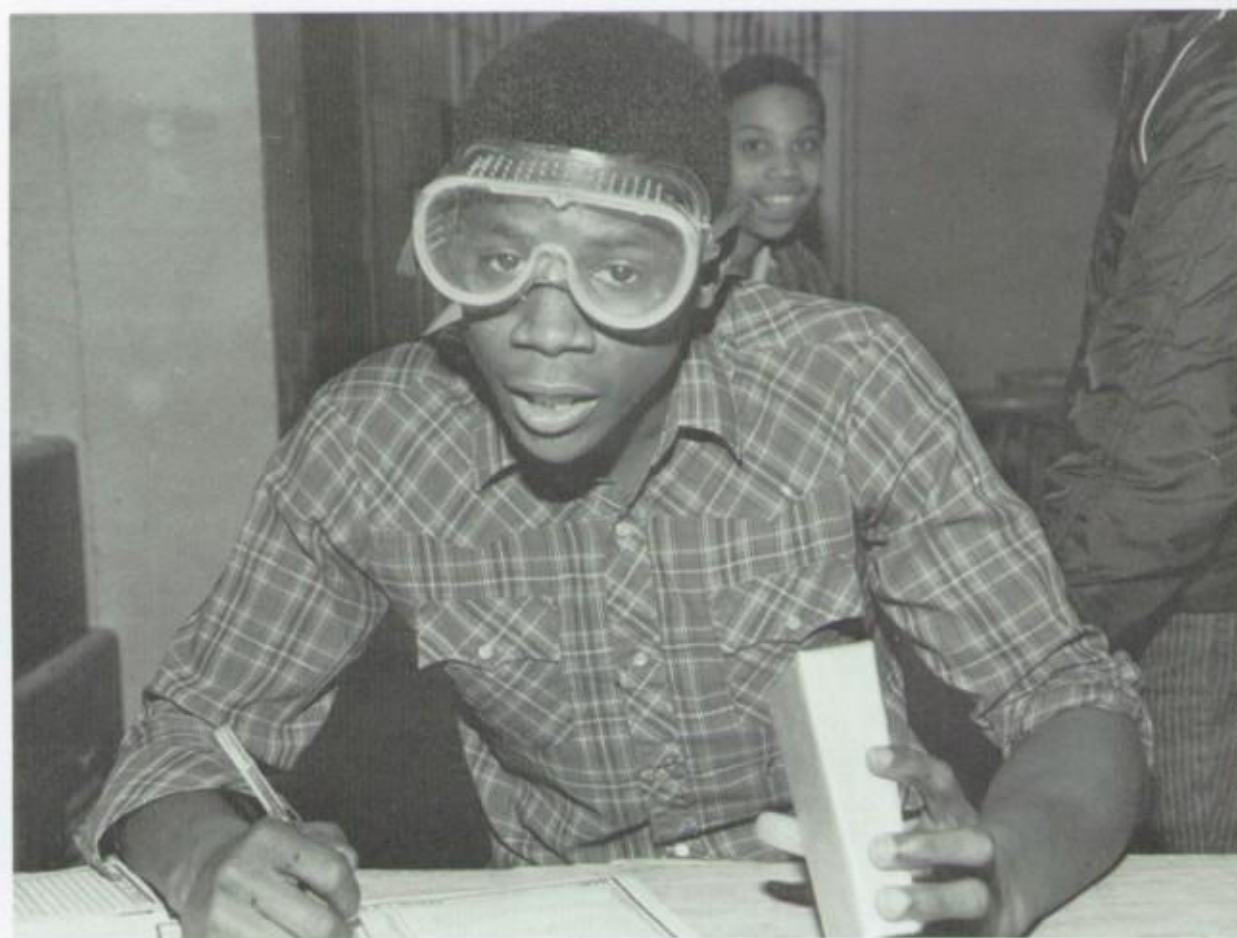

Being an election year, the presidential candidates and current issues are among the topics discussed by the Political Issues classes.

Under Construction

A wide variety of Industrial Art classes offer experience in manufacturing, technical graphics, and photography. Students create and construct objects by using the provided machinery. Guidelines are set, sketches are made, and the students go to work. The ability to use certain type of machinery will prove to be most beneficial in the future. Concentration, creation, and a steady hand are necessities. Industrial Arts is not considered a class just for the guys anymore. Girls who enroll gain and benefit from the same experience.

Concentration on his cutting, John Iischel holds the metal with steady hands.

Making sure everything is accurate, Kevin Carr marks off where he will make the next cut.

By wearing goggles, Andrew O'Newl takes one safety precaution.

The Little People

In this class, students go over the growth and development of children between the ages of three and five. In the Course Offerings and Descriptions Booklet it states that this course offers "practical experience in observation and participation in a child development laboratory on the school premises." The Northwestern Child Lab is located on C-wing, room C203, and is under the direction of Ms. Dunn.

Reading further in the description of this course, it states "the child laboratory which students operate for children three to five years of age provides the learning experience." So, these students are not merely baby-sitting for a period or two a day; they are operating in the lab with the children.

There is also Child Growth and Development/Parenthood Education II which is a double period. In this class, students are let out of the lab and venture off to local pre-schools or elementary schools throughout the year.

In both classes students learn about the characteristics and needs of preschool children, they learn how to know children as individuals, guide children in creative activities, and learn about the emotional, physical, and intellectual growth of children.

In the Child Growth and Development class on Halloween, Raymond Shulter adjusts his hat before the parade.

With Halloween fast approaching, Suhna Lee tries on her mask for size.

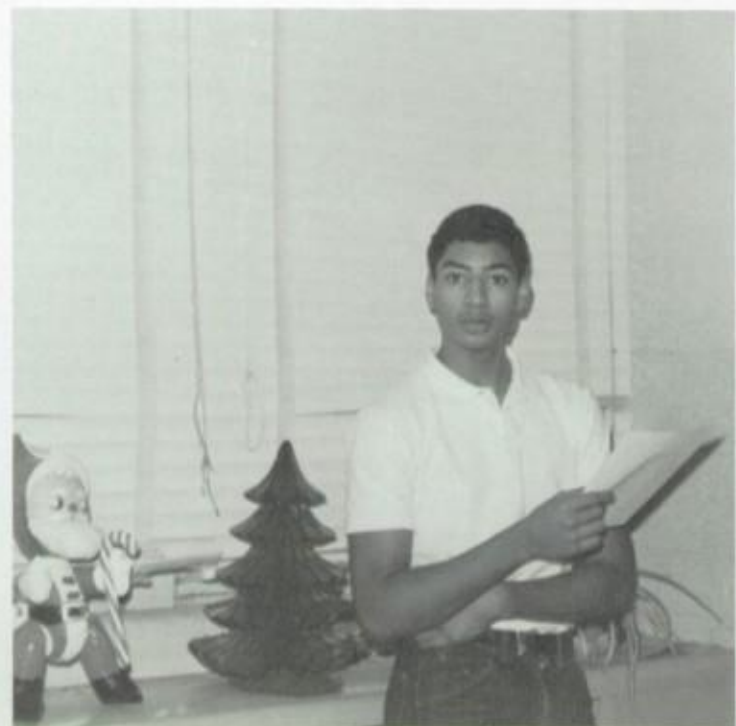

Speaking To The World

Busily working, Anthony Mealo, a Spanish I student, concentrates on his classwork.

Many Northwestern students have become involved in the foreign language department. All courses in this department are given as electives. Four different languages are taught: French, Spanish, German, and Latin. French and Spanish are the most popular. Students can take either of these two languages through level five. Very few students reach this high level though. Through Latin classes a better understanding of our own English language can be learned since it is from Latin that many of the English root words come.

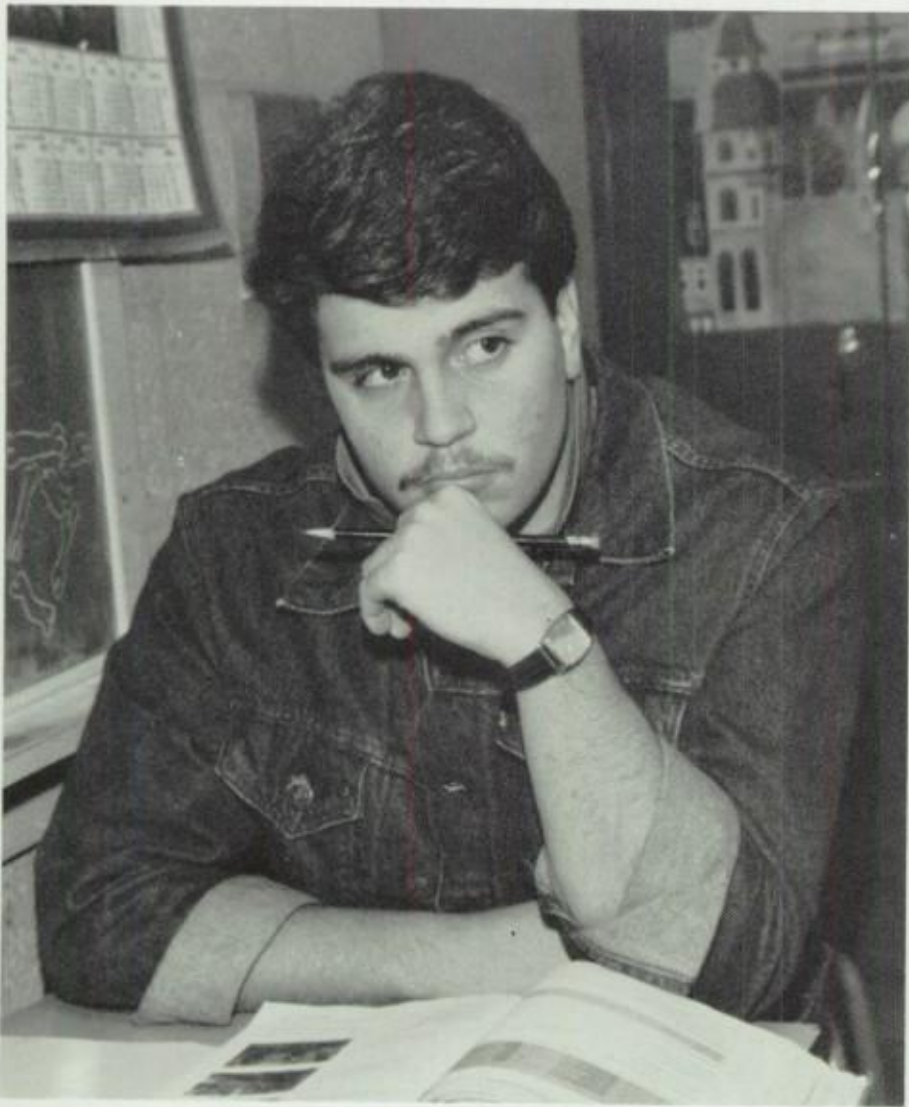

Learning vocabulary is a big part of learning a language, but this is not the only subject area that is explored. Students receive a better understanding of the peoples' lives from the countries which speak the languages that they are learning through such events as Culture Days. On these days students bring in foods from the respective countries. Field trips are also taken. For example, the french classes have gone to Georgetown to see French movies. Cultural activities are also undertaken, like the Spanish class making pinatas.

Through each of these classes students not only learn the language of a different country, but they also learn about the customs of the people that live in these foreign lands.

A week before Christmas, Odis Bradford continues to look confused about his Spanish work.

Perhaps thinking of the answer, Marlene Bruce finishes up her German assignment.

Practicing verb conjugation and dialogue is a part of Bubba Crampton's German class.

A Spanish 4 student, Pat Black, is also a Spanish student assistant.

Making Piñatas is just one of the projects Miss Candie Burr's Spanish 4 and 5 classes do during the Christmas season.

The Universal Language

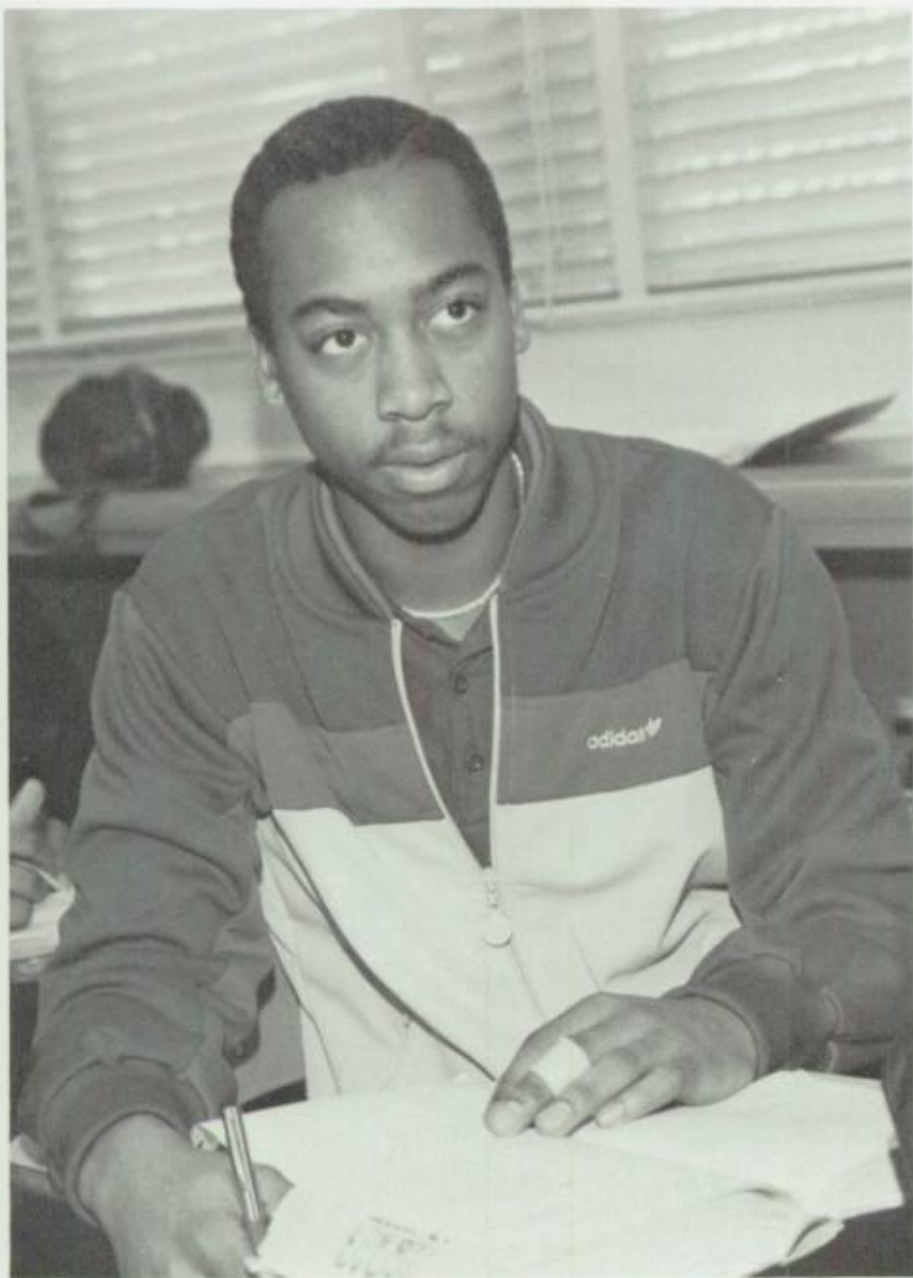

Athletics and academics both come very easily to Kim White.

Each ninth grade student was required to have three credits in math to graduate, and all tenth through twelfth grade students had two credits in math to graduate. That does not necessarily mean that all students must take the same math classes. Within the mathematics department at Northwestern there was every class from General Mathematics to Calculus and Analytic Geometry. There was a wide variety of math classes between these two extremes. Some of these classes were not centered specifically around math. For example, Computer Math included programming in the computer languages Basic and Fortran. Some math classes were set up to help those students who aren't particularly strong in this subject. Introductory Algebra provides the students with a basic knowledge of algebraic notations and equations. From there students moved up to a regular Algebra class. Courses in Geometry, Algebra II, Trigonometry, and Elementary Analysis are also offered at Northwestern. Each of these classes were slightly more challenging than the previous ones and offers students a better understanding of the universal language of mathematics.

A typical question from Mr. Richard Pell- "What is the cube root of 362 multiplied by one half of its reciprocal, divided by the square of 4?"

Staying attentive is always difficult in Calculus, but an excellent effort is put forth by Byung Cra.

Listening intently, Brian Taylor concentrates on learning new information.

During his computer math class, Matt Sheridan chuckles as he finishes his classwork.

During her math class, Elizabeth Carroll practices problem solving.

An Honorable Honor

An award of honor is presented to Stephanie Gray by Mr. Koch.

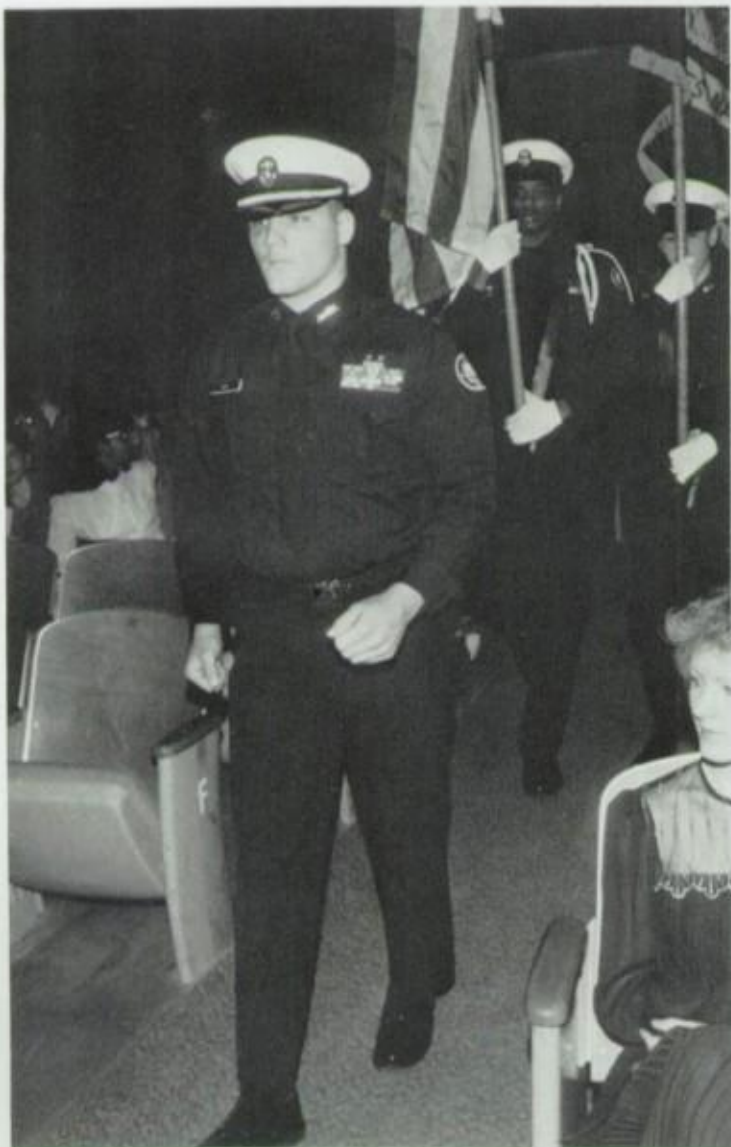

Twice a year, in the fall and in the spring, students were inducted into the National Honor Society. These students must of had a cumulative 3.0 grade point average and must show leadership abilities. Community involvement is also a prerequisite to become a member of the club. Just started this year, a teacher recommendation is also a requirement.

It is truly an honor to be considered a member of this prestigious organization. Throughout the year members of this club take time out to do such things as tutor other students in areas where they need help. A picnic was also held at the end of the year.

In past years the National Honor Society has always had a rather low profile with a minimal number of members. This year they have grown to sixty members and are making themselves known through their activities, size, and reputation.

A very inspirational poem by Richard Kipling was read by Meg Bedessem

Leading the procession to the National Honor Society Induction is Demetrius Maxey and the Color Guard.

Offering his arm and a flower to new inductee Rosanna Consorti is Honor Society member Odis Bradford.

Lighting the candle of character is Darryl Freeman, with the other Honor Society officers behind him.

The members of the National Honor Society; Jeff Trimminghan, Marie Kelly, Denise King, Pat Vieira, Darryl Freeman, and Meg Bedessem.

After receiving her flower from Karyn Addison, Dianna Allen is escorted to the stage to be inducted.

National Honor Society members, Emily Brooks, and Andrew Hartness stand ready to induct the new members.

A World Of Discovery

Working together, Nanoska Johnson, Clive Souvenir, Tom Provenza, and Kenny Qualls gather the data to complete a Physics lab.

A wide variety of science classes was offered here at Northwestern. Students began with Earth Science to increase their knowledge of the earth. The earth's process, material, history, and location were studies in this course. The next course a student took was Biology which dealt with the functions and development of living things. Dissecting frogs, worms, and starfish was a part of this class. Some students took Advanced Placement Biology classes in which they advanced to the dissection of sharks and cats. Chemistry, another popular science course, was designed to give students a basic understanding of chemical problems and theories. Labs in Chemistry familiarized students with chemical reactions. The physical properties of matter and energy were studied by some students in Physics' classes. Force, heat and electricity were also among the topics discussed.

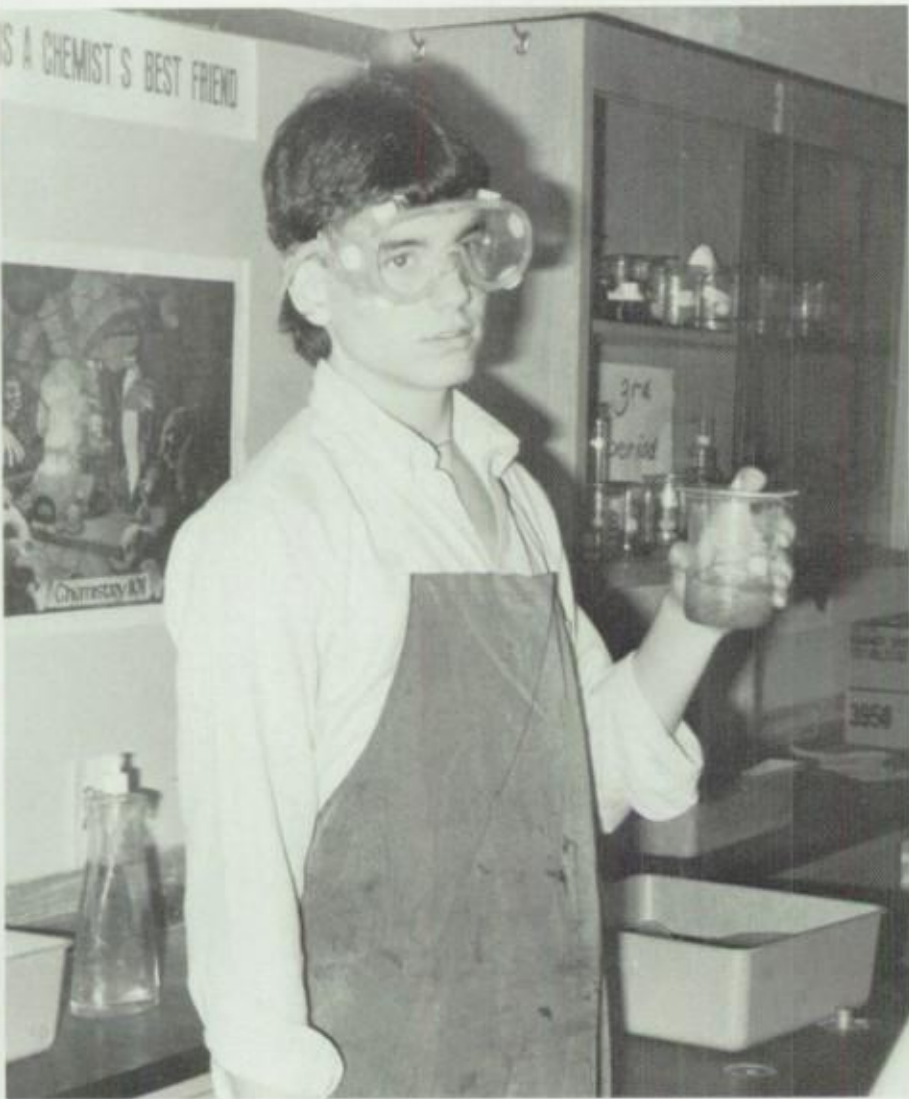

Two of the newest courses offered by the Science department were Microbiology and Physiology. Microbiology students studied the form of microbes. Physiology classes focused on the functions of cells, tissues, and organs.

A wide variety of science classes were offered this year at Northwestern. Although only two credits of science were required, students take the opportunity to continue on with the Science classes.

One of the more intriguing science teachers is Mr. Tom Stickles, seen here sitting behind his prestigious desk.

Wearing his apron and goggles, Greg Schmigel holds the results of his chemistry lab in a beaker.

With his "out of the closet" friend, Al Chiverton attempts to dance the night away.

With close examination, Charles Thomas discovers what makes a rock a rock.

An intimate table for dinner is set in the A.P. Biology lab.

A Home Away From Home

A few years ago, Home Economics was thought of as a feminine class, and Industrial Arts as a masculine class. In this vastly changing world, those classes were no longer thought of that way.

There was a wide variety of Home Economic classes which dealt with everything from foods and nutrition, to classes in independent living. Through such classes students, both male and female, learned how to plan and prepare nutritious foods and meals, develop skills in the construction of clothing, consumer buying, and energy conservation.

Through Home Economic courses, students were able to learn more about the "real world" and how to cope with what to expect once they have left High School.

Managing not to cry, Alberto Howard chops onions in his cooking class.

Unable to wait, John Quartey munches while John Parker, Derryck Nelson, and Robert Wright prepare the meal.

Pinning and measuring are only the first steps for Victoria Asiedua, in her sewing class.

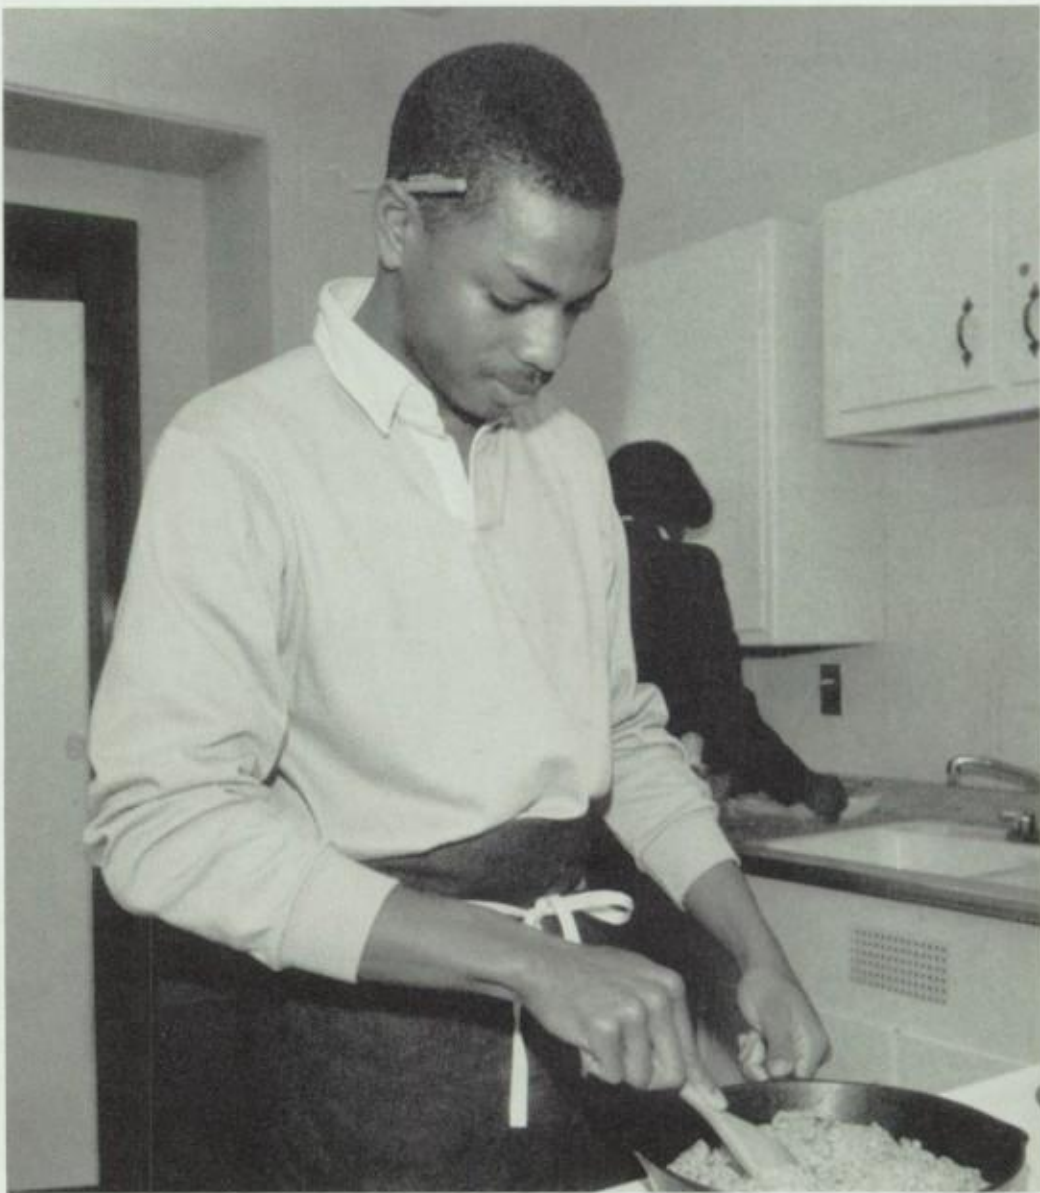

Enjoying their "finished product" are Kevin Kincaid, Kim Jenkins, and Donnell Thomas.

While concentrating, Shana Reams sews the pieces together to create a new outfit.

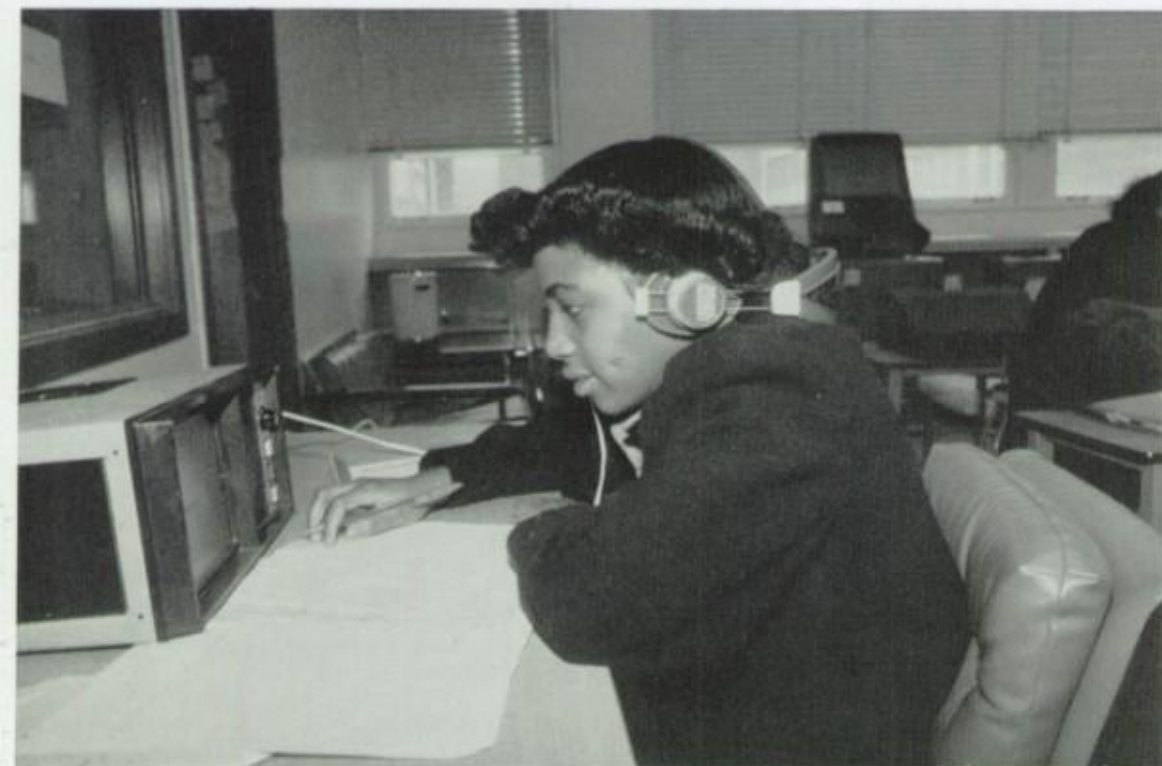

Making an addition to her wardrobe, Lolita Clark lays out her material.

Showing that cooking is not just for girls, Marcus McCombs browns some hamburger meat.

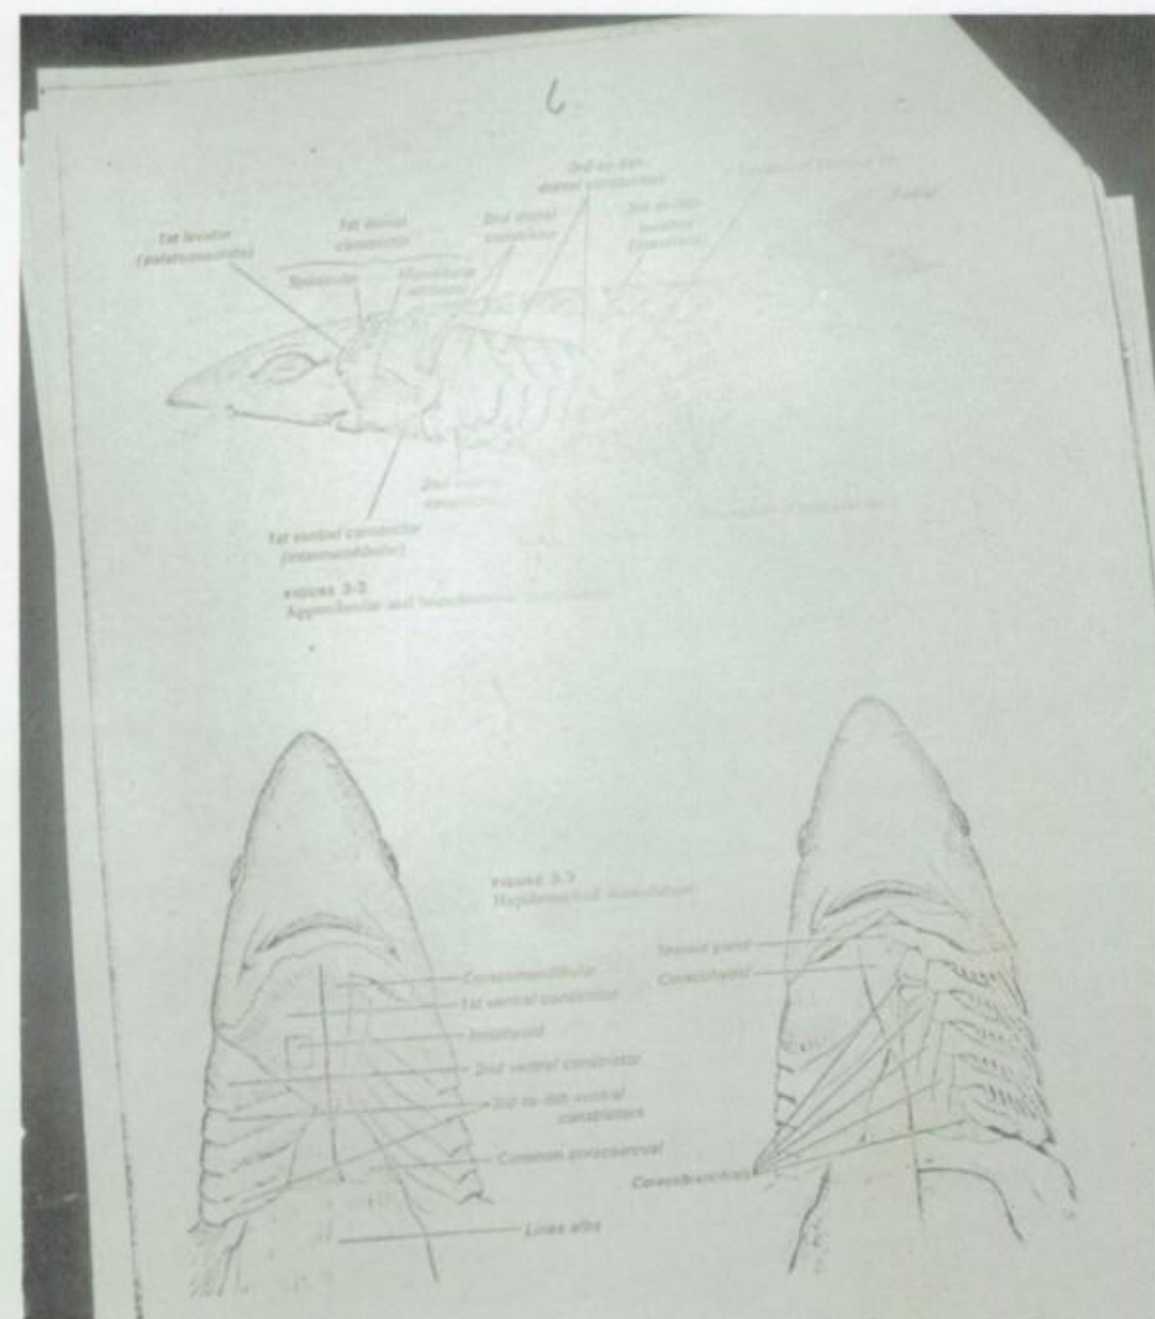

Different Classes For Different People

Preparing for the business world is Theresa Calhoun.

Creating an electrical putlet is Johnathan Nichols in his construction class.

A.P. Biology students had to learn all the muscles of the shark.

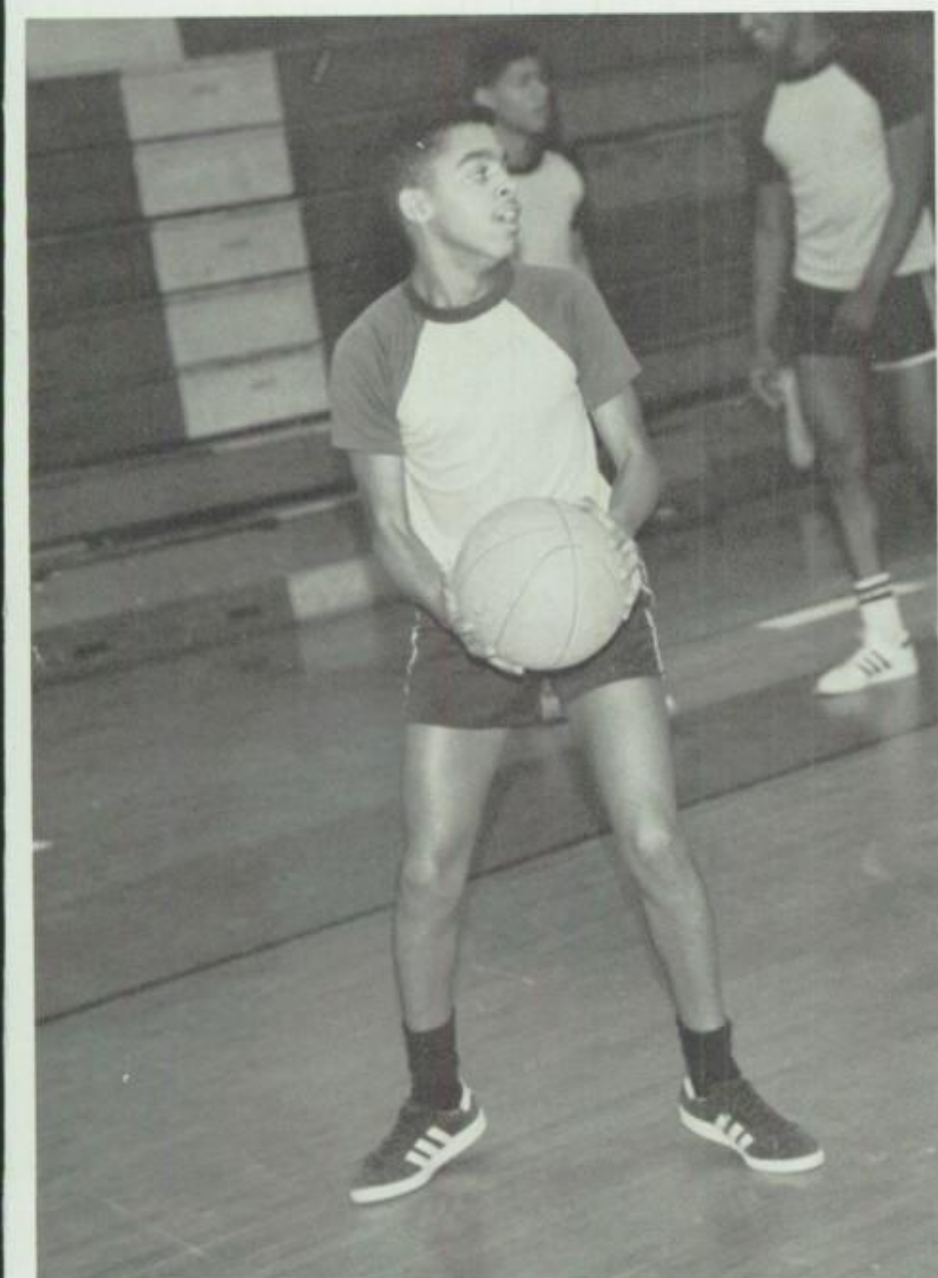

While playing badminton, Naren Chhay reaches for the oncoming serve.

During their lunch break, Norita Wallace and Voncia Howerton take time out to socialize.

As Marc Sparacino takes the final weight, Tom Schaffer observes the melting of the ice.

Contemplating whether to dribble the ball or pass it, is Kedron Kitchens in his gym class.

Piled up with books, Jeff Trimmingham continues to do one of his many assignments.

A world of jobs, a world of politics, a world of education. This is the metropolitan area and this is the home of our school's community. This is where some of us will go on to contribute our time, our ideas, and our talents.

Some of us are already contributing to our community in the workforce, through school clubs, or on our own as volunteers. A few of the many businesses who employ our students are Peoples, Big Boys, Swensons, various fast food restaurants, gas stations, and clothing stores in the area. Mt. Rainer Fire Department, Red Cross, and Leland Memorial Hospital are some of the institutions that our students give their free time to. Their reasons are either for the experience or just as an act of goodwill. Some of the less obvious involvements are a few parents who help individually in bettering our school. Mrs. Rodenhuis, Mrs. Anzelmo, Mrs. Bozman, and Mr. Brannan are just a few of the hardworking crew of parents.

The majority of seniors in school this year, who are college bound, will go on to attend the University of Maryland. We have the good fortune of having the University right next door. For this reason, the students often participate in concurrent enrollment with the University of Maryland, then finish their studies with a college degree from there.

Here, they start their career in the field of their choice, shaping the future world into their own and making great contributions.

Students should never forget that their good, solid backbone to grasping everything within their reach, was due to their education and experiences learned at Northwestern High School.

..... A world of jobs, a world of politics, a world of education— we make it a World of Difference!

A WORLD OF DIFFERENCE IN COMMUNITY

The Community Socials

The spirit is still running rampant after a football game or a basketball game. Everyone is together celebrating a victory or looking toward the next game, hoping for a win, and no one wants the night to end. "So, where to go?" Always the answer is "Meet you at College Park McDonald's," and what a time we have! Over the years, the booths inside have seen many N.W. faces from as far back as 1970. Still, alumni return here to catch the old Wildcat fever! College Park McDonald's will long be remembered for laughter, good times and friends made along the way.

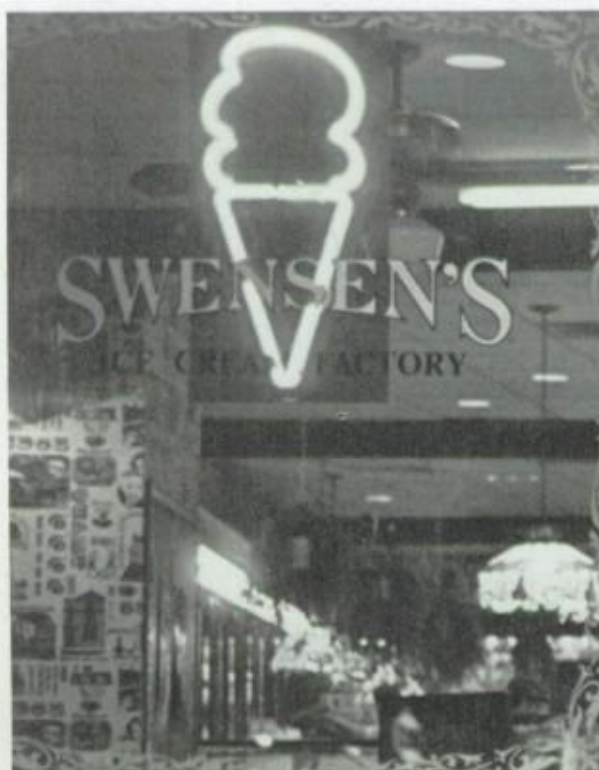

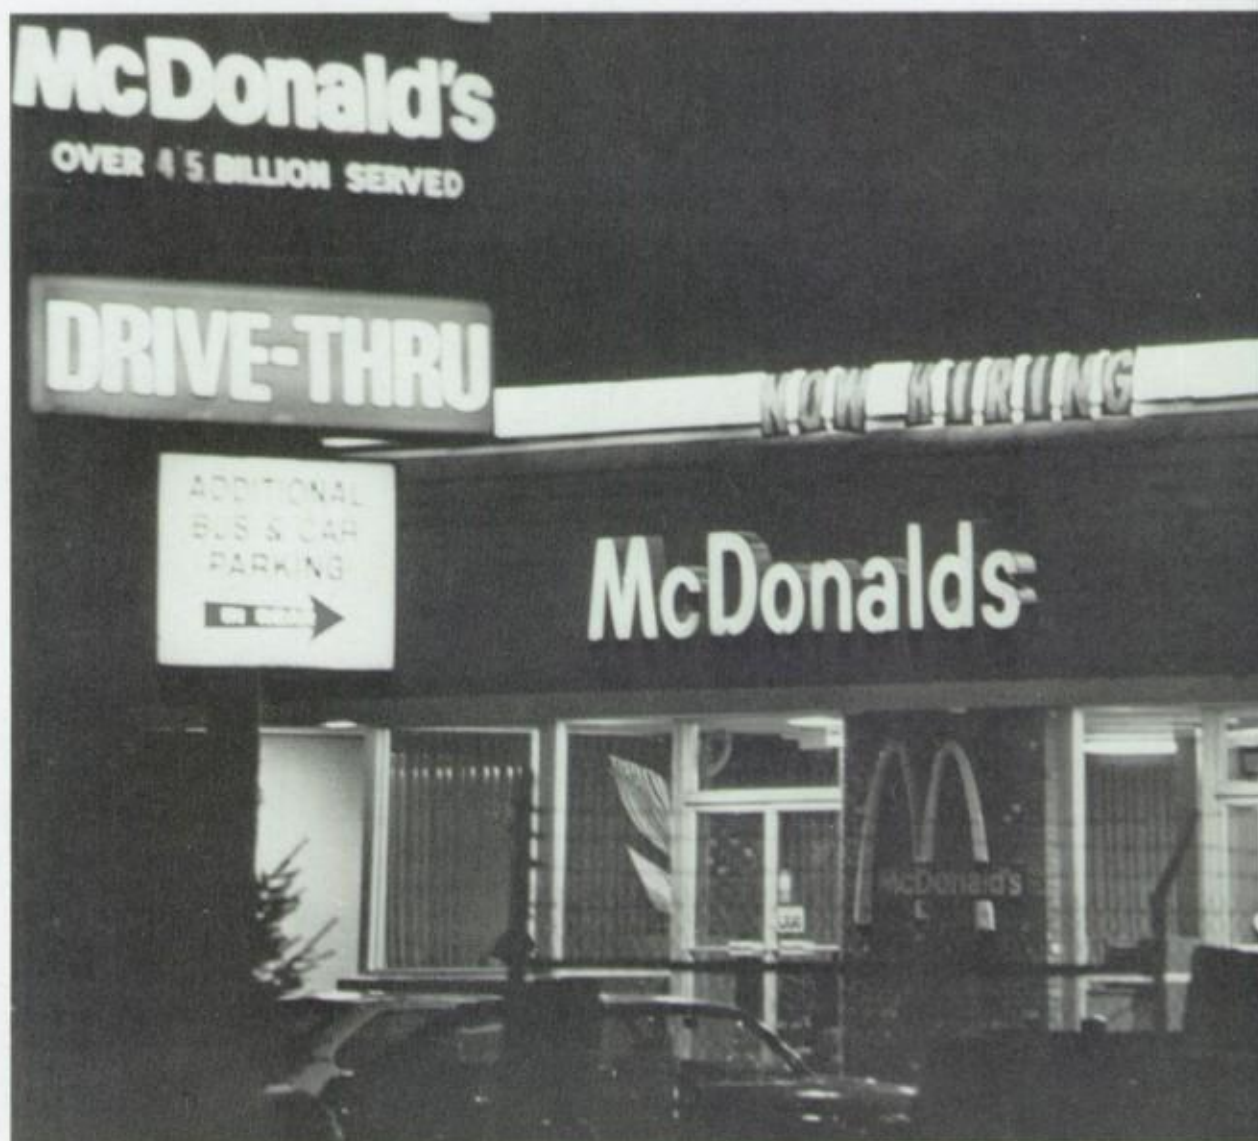

The Home of the Whopper, Burger King, is a hop, skip and a jump up the road from McDonalds. So, always a variety is offered.

If you are not able to find buddies in McDonald's, the other possibilities are Beltway Plaza, or stores throughout the College Park area. Swensons is for the ice cream buff and Howies caters to the "arcasers" and "pinballers."

Armand's Pizzeria creates an atmosphere for the more quiet, personable outing. Yet, it is the perfect place to get down and dirty for finger-eating pizza!

These hangouts are merely a few of the many hotspots of Northwestern students. They all will hold special memories for each of us as we reminisce about the old times at Northwestern High.

Being the hangout for the past 10 years, the booths inside College Park McDonald's have seen many Northwestern faces after games, competitions, and parties.

Home of the big scoop, Swensons Ice Cream Parlor, which was rated #1 in the Washington Magazine poll, employs many N.H.S. students and provides a friendly atmosphere for ice cream maniacs.

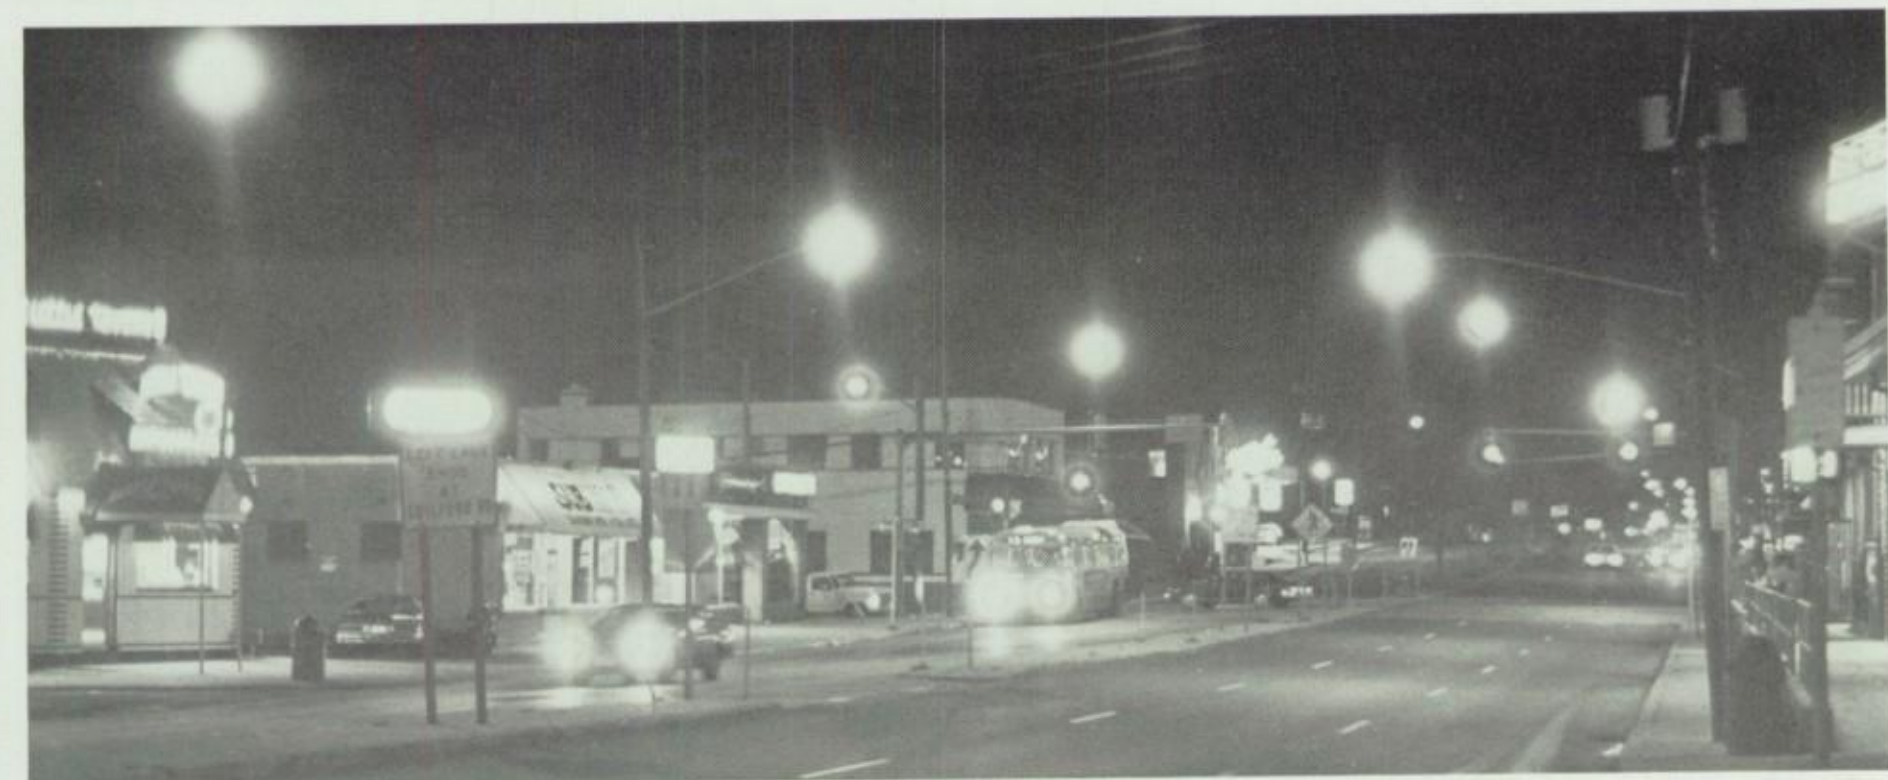

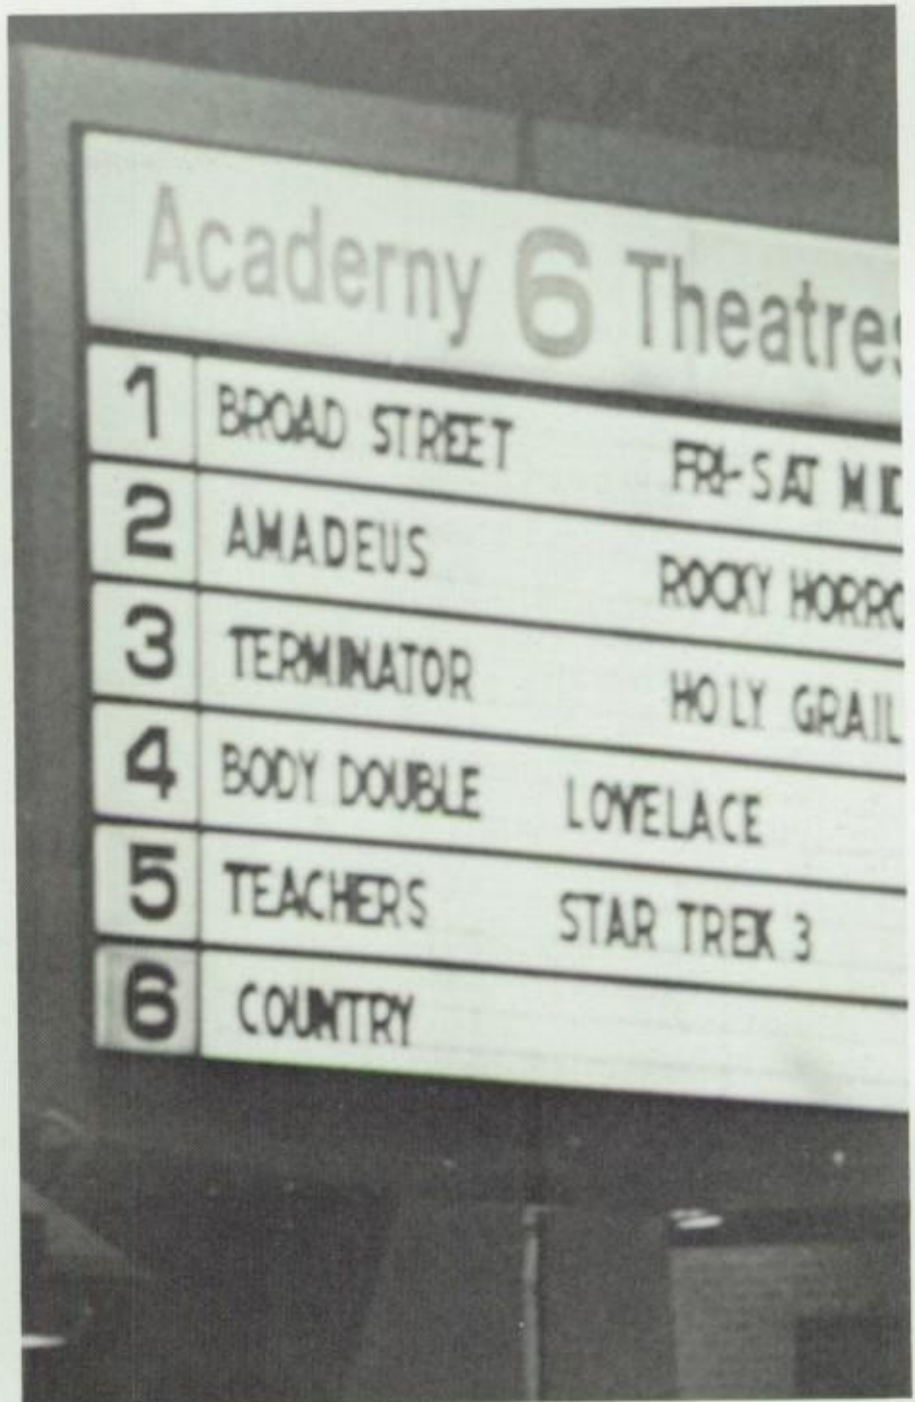

One of many College Park hangouts, Howie's exudes an atmosphere of levity and camaraderie.

College Park isn't quite Chicago, but thanks to Armand's we can all enjoy a taste of the windy city.

Here we have the great movie listings for the week of October 29, 1984. Will we be able to look back on any of these as classics?

What a busy town! College Park is loaded down with students and shoppers either rushing to go bar hopping or window shopping.

The World Of Work

31 flavors can make for a hectic work day, but Robert Strain smiles on while working at Baskin Robbins.

One's first job. It is what helps to instill a sense of pride in work, a sense of responsibility and a sense of self-importance and self-discipline. It is what foreshadows what life in the world of business will be like. It can help a person to decide what he wants from his future.

At Northwestern, many of our students have after school jobs. After six and a half hours of classes and under an ever-present cloud of homework they go off to earn money for entertainment, clothes, college tuition or just to earn that feeling of accomplishment that one gets from having a job.

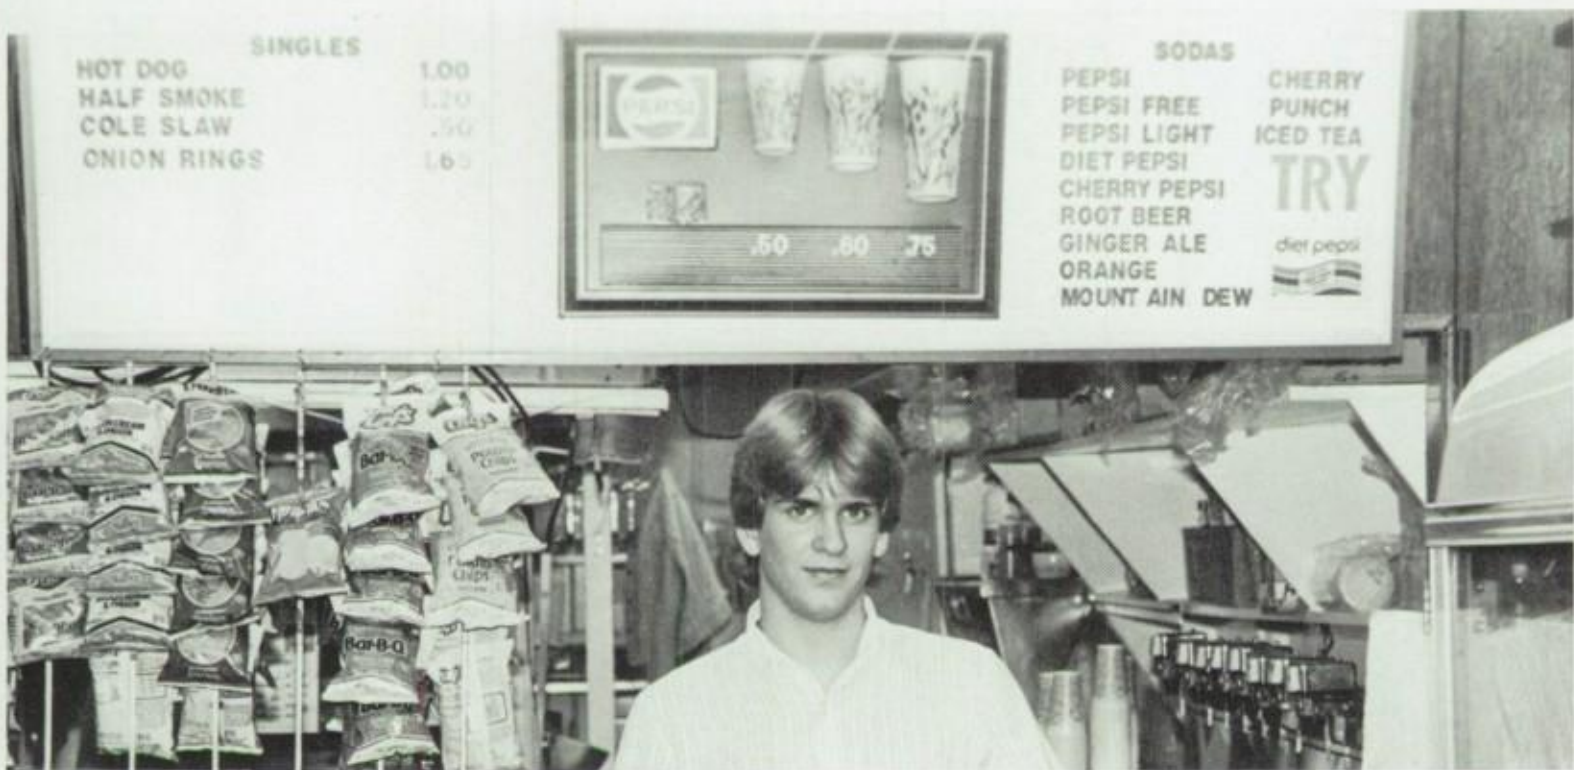

The main sources of jobs in our area are Prince George's Plaza—consisting of various clothing stores, restaurants, department stores, and so on, and the many establishments on Route 1 in College Park. Flipping burgers may not be the most exciting job, but it is an excellent way to meet new, interesting people and earn some always welcome extra money.

Some of the students even leave school after their third or fourth period classes to go to work. There are two programs which cater to these students, the Work Study program and the release time program.

Looking very professional, senior Nancy Lewis rings up a sale at Peoples Drug Store in P.G. Plaza.

Always ready with a smile, Howie's worker Ray Gretz takes the order of one of the many pinball and video players attracted to the establishment.

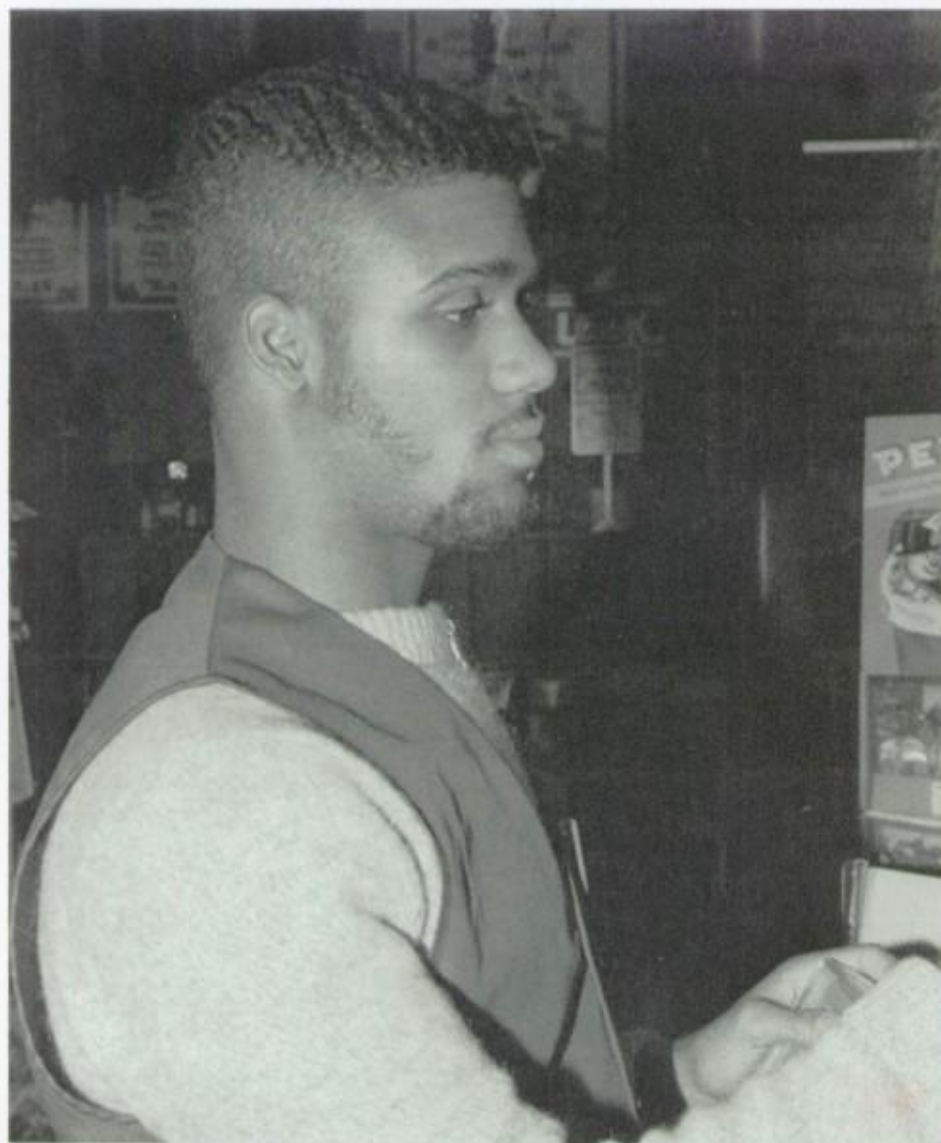

A trusted Sam Goody employee, Todd Rubenson greets all of his customers with a smile.

Surrounded by cute furry animals, Sarah Stamper works in a wonderland of "Fluff and Stuff" after school hours.

At Work And At Play

Peoples employee Brian Cook seems to be engrossed in the arranging of merchandise.

Working at Peoples Drug Store in Queenstown Shopping Center, Brian Toth is "reaching for the gold star."

With a pleasant smile, Alice Caberra welcomes customers into Baskin Robbins to indulge in some delicious ice cream.

Proud grandfather and father of Jayne Sullivan, Clyde and Don Sullivan, are amused with the appearance of "Lucy."

These students and parents, after their hard day of working, come to Northwestern to view the Backstage Fall production of "You're a Good Man, Charlie Brown." Backstage is the name given to the Northwestern Drama Club. The show was directed by Dennis Dulmage, who also teaches Speech, English, and Dramatics at Northwestern.

The production was a great success and was enjoyed greatly by all who attended. We would like to thank all of the parents and students who took time away from their busy schedules to participate.

There was a large turnout at the Saturday night performance of "You're a Good Man, Charlie Brown", as the audience congratulates the performers after the show.

Groups of admirers cling around the stars as that magic feeling lasts after the play.

What We Were And What We Will Be

The young working parents in our community bring their children of pre-school age to Northwestern for a day of school. This offers our students great opportunity for on-hand experience in working with young children and learning about their growing and learning processes.

While the parents of young children return to school to pick up their children, the parents of high school children come in to Northwestern to attend the weekly NIPPS meeting on Thursday evenings. NIPPS, Northwestern Involved Parents, Students, and Staff, has contributed much time and effort to our school. With great results, they can be given much of the credit for the strides Northwestern has taken in the last year. We thank them profusely, but not half as often as they deserve.

In between sucks on her lollipop, little Crissy Ellis gives a reproachful look to the photographers.

Able to work magic with the teachers by her innocent looks, Angelo Cho enjoys Halloween dress-up day.

Neighboring Academics

While there are students who leave school and rush off to work to make a hard day's earnings, there are also students who leave school to attend college classes. Everyday, after three or four tough classes here, these academic students head to the University of Maryland where they can take a variety of courses. To be qualified for this privilege, the students must maintain a 3.0 average.

The University of Maryland plays an important role not only in the life of a Northwestern student, but also in the life of our alumni. The majority of the college bound seniors attend and graduate from U.M. We are fortunate in having such top-notch education facilities so close to home.

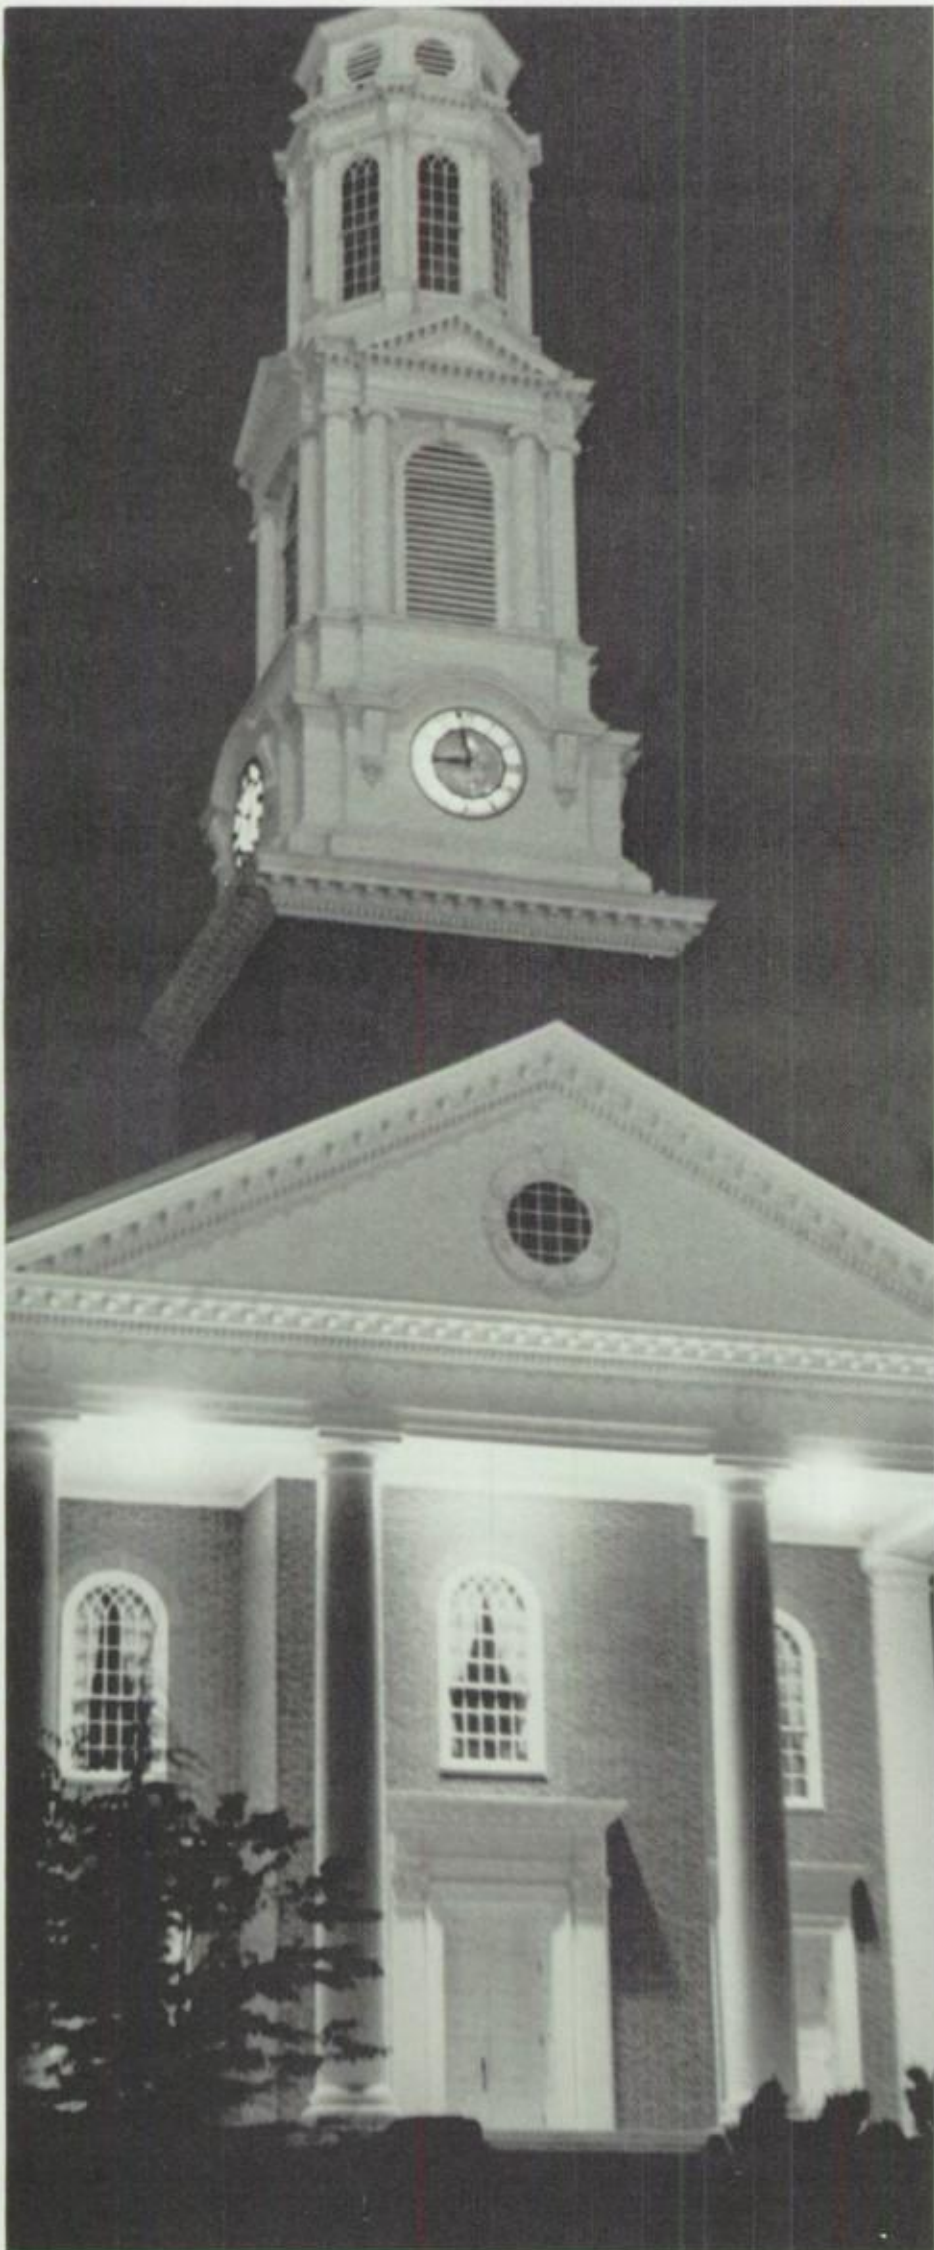

Many Northwestern Seniors go on to attend and graduate from the University of Maryland. A few seniors take courses at the University as well as Northwestern.

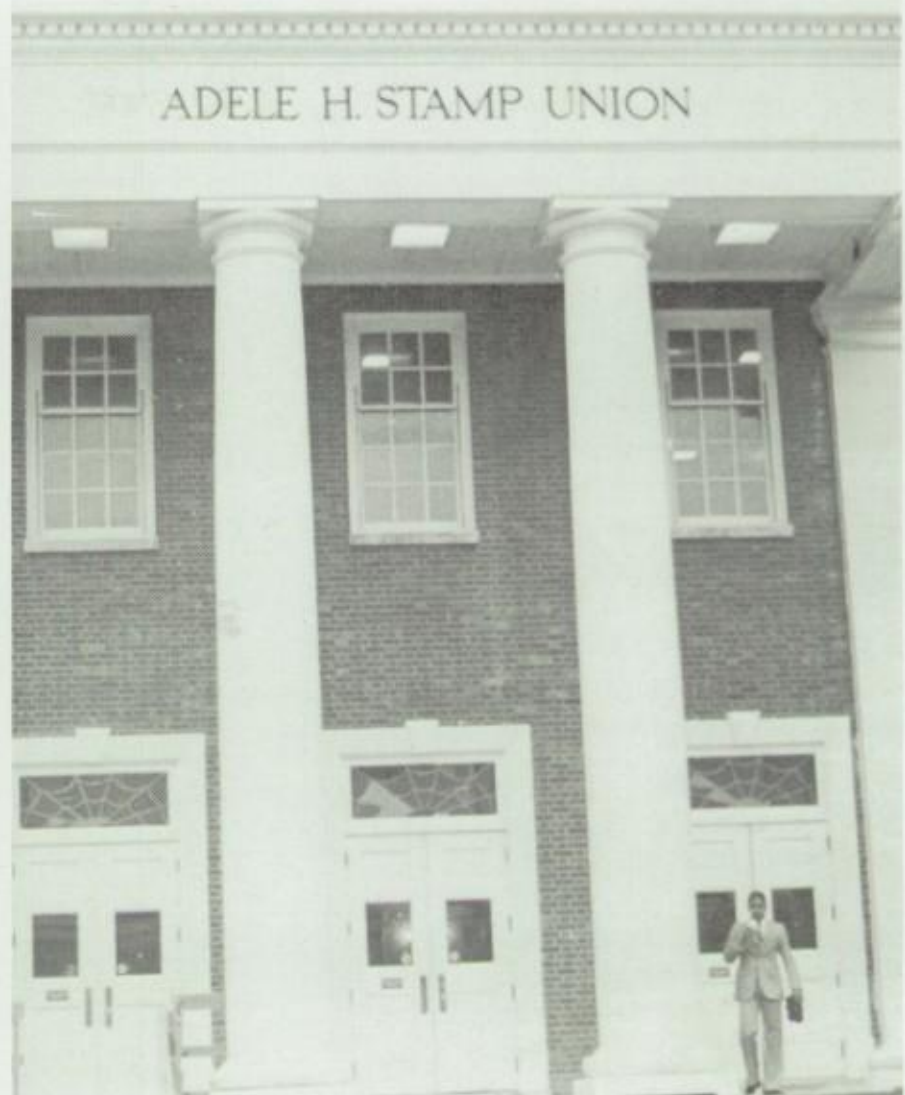

The famous field of the Maryland Terrapins, Byrd Stadium. On Saturday home games, the stadium is packed with colors of red and white. In the off-season Byrd Stadium is often called Byrd Beach!

On the corner of Adelphi Road and University Boulevard, the Adult Education Center is one of the many learning facilities on the campus.

Set on a hillside, the University Chapel, seen from Route 1, shows off a breath taking view. The chapel is one of many beautiful sights on the Maryland Campus.

Supplying movie-going entertainment, fast food shops, and a record store, the Student Union building is always full of excitement.

Having been here almost since the college was established, the "M" is a known trademark of the University of Maryland.

The clubs and activities at Northwestern play an important role in our school. We have clubs and activities waiting for every individual at Northwestern. There are different clubs and activities to satisfy the cultures represented at our school. Clubs at Northwestern range in different areas. There are language clubs such as the French Club, German Club, Latin Club, and American Field Service (A.F.S.). These groups have arranged student exchanges with foreign countries. There are clubs for the gifted such as the National Art

Honor Society, the National Honor Society, and It's Academic. Northwestern's activities range from the High Steppers to the Men's Drill Team. Our Pom Poms and Cheerleaders are activities that help produce overall school spirit. The Student Government Association (S.G.A.) and Class Officers plan activities for the student body to participate in. Clubs and activities require time and dedication on the part of the students involved. Meetings and practices help the clubs and activities plan fundraisers such as candy sales and bake sales. Sponsors are very important and dedicated to their clubs and activities. Without the help of the teachers and sponsors, the activities would be nonexistent. Clubs and activities give students the opportunity to get involved with our school and students grow closer together. Participation in activities strengthens our spirit.

CLUBS

AFS Expands Boundaries

The American Field Service is an active organization at Northwestern. Twenty members strong met in room 103 after school. Under the leadership of Ms. Bettcher and Mrs. Schuler, the group planned interactions with foreign exchange students. The exchanges helped the whole school learn about students from different lands because the students attended classes and went to school activities. The interactions helped Northwestern students see and learn about foreign lands and the people who live there.

Displaying their artistic creativity, members of the 1985 Compass staff stand beneath "the wall".

Dramas Backstage Is Upstage

One of the largest most active organizations in the school is the Drama Club. With the enthusiastic participation of 58 members, the club sponsors the play and skits Northwestern produces. Dennis Dulmage, the Drama Club sponsor is the backbone to all Northwestern's stage productions. He spends long hours producing and directing our schools stage activities. The Drama Department helped to produce three successful plays this year including the fall play, "You're a Good Man Charlie Brown" the winter play which consisted of one act plays and finally the spring musical. Through the club's effort, and the dedication of Dennis Dulmage the Drama Club remains one of the finest clubs in the school.

In the cast of "You're a Good Man Charlie Brown" is Jayne Sullivan, Jim Miller, Lara Carione, Eric Mc Graw, Lilace Mellin, and Al Chiverton.

French Club Plans Trip To Belgium

Fathom member, Jennifer Jarman sneaks down to the Compass room for a Pepsi.

The French Club is sponsored by French Instructor, Mrs. Fretz. The club participated in various activities including fundraisers and trips to Georgetown.

The French club will play a big part in the Belgium exchange during the summer of 1985. They will go to Belgium for three weeks and visit nearby countries. The exchange will include the Belgium students that visited Maryland during the summer of 1984.

Students Launch Research Project Into Space

The Get Away Special is sponsored by Mrs. Grace McGuffie. The group launched a research project into space in June, 1985. Throughout the year the group had planned their trip to Cape Canaveral, Florida in June, 1985 for the launch and landing of the space shuttle. They received awards for their achievement from the Board of Education.

Although it may appear he favors another school, Roy Longaneckers' true loyalties lie at Northwestern.

Jazz Band Rocks

The Jazz Band consists of the "Jazziest" music students in Northwestern. Under the leadership of Mr. Lou Scarci the Jazz Band performed numerous concerts throughout the year, including the December Holiday Concert and many other performances. The Jazz Band was a definite crowd pleaser with their jazzy beat and swinging musicians.

During the Pre-game activities, the High Steppers show the rowdy Northwestern students that they can dance!

We Have Spirit, Yes We Do!

The Northwestern J.V. Cheerleaders were made up of all underclassmen. They practiced hard three days a week and usually had games on one or two days a week.

The J.V. Cheerleaders had a new sponsor this year. A former Redskinette and N.W. cheerleader, Ms. Lou Ann Hill contributed many hours and knowledgeable support to the squad. The girls received new outfits this year through fundraisers. They held bakesales during the SAT's and other organized activities. The young J.V. cheerleaders showed a lot of pep and enthusiasm, steering the way to a successful season in football, wrestling, and basketball.

At a Junior Varsity Cheerleading practice, Lorelei Dacquel takes a break from doing cartwheels.

JUNIOR VARSITY CHEERLEADERS First Row: Captain: Cricket Kovalakides, and Co-Captain: Lisa Marsh. Second Row: Jamie Brewster, Tonja Thomas, Jackie Codi, and Lorelei Dacquel. Third Row: Molly Rutherford, LaShean Miller, Shelley Scott, and Tonya Latham.

KOREAN CLUB First Row: Hae Soon, Mi Young Yim, Mi Son Yim, Sun Ju Ko, and Sun Young Ko. Second Row: Yong Kim, Kwang Choi, Yool Kim and Byung Sung Choi. Third Row: Jin Yu, Pat Matthiesen (standing in for Mrs. Schmidt), Byung Joon Cha, and Kyung Yi.

Lights, Camera, Action!

The stage is dark, the curtain rises, and out comes the actors walking in step with the bright light shining down from the stage lights. Behind the backs of the audience, high up in the balcony, sits the light Tech Crew. The Light Tech Crew is often overlooked but the show could not go on without them. They put in many long hours setting up the lights just right for that final performance. They attend all the rehearsals to make sure the lights are in sync with the actors.

The Light Tech Crew helped make the successful Drama performances the best they could possibly be.

One of the Light Tech members, Tom Provenza also contributes his knowledge in Audio and Sound by D.J.ing at many Maryland dances.

LATIN CLUB First Row: Laarni Dacquel, and Lorelei Dacquel. Second Row: Matalaba Rowell, Christine Thompson, and Julie Price. Third Row: Sarah Headley, Heather Caldwell, and Sponsor: Ellen Benson.

LIGHT TECHNICAL CREW First Row: Tom Provenza, Gail Sanderson, Jeff Nichols, Matt Warnick, and Mr. Miles.

The National Art Honor Society Brushes Up

The National Art Honor Society consisted of Northwesterns most talented art students. The sponsor Ms. DePlachette held inductions into the Art Honor Society in the fall and in the spring. The National Art Honor Society is active in community activities. They painted the window at a nearby donut shop, and illustrated a book to be published by the P.G.C. Mental Health Association.

The Art Honor Society sponsored a successful talent show for a fundraiser. The talented members participated in youth art month and in many other contests. The National Art Society is full of talented artists which some day will have their work hanging next to the Mona Lisa.

Active members of the Martin Luther King Society are Juniors Tonya West, Gina Jones, and Nequel Tobe.

The Voices Of Northwestern

The Northwestern Broadcasting Company is a group of talented students interested in Radio and Broadcasting. The students addressed the school every Monday and Friday mornings and also made after school announcements. The club took a field trip to the University of Maryland and to local radio stations to learn more about Broadcasting skills. Mrs. Lynn Stuart was their advisor and the group met two times a month to plan activities. The voices behind the announcements in the mornings and afternoons kept us up to date and informed throughout the year.

Junior Karen Goheen is happy to be a new member of the National Honor Society.

NATIONAL HONOR SOCIETY First Row: Rose Howe, Katie Goettelmann, Odis Bradford, Joeffrey Trimmingham, Pat Vierra, and Ricardo Rubio. Second Row: Emily Brooks, Ellen Hoke, Meg Bedessem, Ted Coon, Lili Wong, Marie Kelley, Ricardo Viscarra, and Sponsor: Mrs. Wasserman. Third Row: Kim White, Gail Murray, Christina Anzelmo, Sonya Kitchens, Al Chiverton, Denys King, and Andrew Hartness.

The Printing Press Flies

The Northwestern newspaper, the Nor'wester has been re-established in the past few years and now it is better than ever. The newspaper is published nine times a year by the talented editors. The paper included Northwestern News, Sports, and other activities that were going on around us. The paper was 25¢ and was sold in homeroom. A student was asked if he thought the paper was a success and he responded by saying, "I wait every month to see if my name will pop up in the personals and also it's great to keep caught up on the news at Northwestern; I think it's great."

The long hours of practice that musician Fawn Marsh puts in adds to the melodic sounds that leave the strings of her violin.

Future Scientists Of The Year 2000

The Science Club consisted of Northwestern students who enjoyed working in the field of Science. Science teacher, Mrs. Caldwell was their sponsor. The club met once a month to plan activities dealing with the field of Science. The Science Club held assemblies for which they brought experts on Nuclear Energy and Bioethics to talk to the student body. The Science Club also coordinated the Science Fair in March 1985. The Science Club is an active group that is comprised of the Future Scientists of the year 2000.

Success In The Government

Homeroom Representative, Christina Anzelmo takes notes during the SGA General Assembly meeting.

The Student Government played an important role in the success of Northwestern. The motivated group spent many hours planning activities for the school. During the fall of 1984, the SGA planned an outstanding Homecoming, including Pep Rallies, a Pre-Game show, the Homecoming Parade, and the Homecoming Dance.

Throughout the year they held General Assembly meetings to inform the student body about projects they had planned. They sponsored a Canned Food Drive, Toys for Tots Drive, and a Blood Drive. The SGA was also active in recruiting Students Against Drunk Driving (SADD) when they presented a SADD assembly for the school. The hard work that the SGA originated really paid off towards the overall success and spirit of the school.

Northwestern Is #1 In Spirit

The overall spirit of the students body is essential to the success of the school's activities. The Pep Club played an important role in the enthusiastic moral of Northwestern. The Pep Club built school spirit and supported the activities and games that Northwestern held. The members of the Pep Club held meetings three times a month to plan fundraisers and activities to help keep Northwestern #1 in spirit and pep.

Pom Pons Kick Up Their Heels

The 1984-85 Pom Pon squad excelled with talent and crowd appeal. The Pom Pons used their ability to join musical pieces with coordinated dance steps. The Pom Pons were directed by Mrs. Vukovich, who helped their group choreograph the dances. The group participated in various competitions in which they placed very well. The 1984-85 Pom Pons were a well respected squad which made them a spectacular show to watch.

During a Pep Rally, the Northwestern Pom Pons show their spirit from the football stands.

"We have spirit yes we do," was the cry from the Pom Pons as the crowd showed their enthusiasm through their response.

Cheerleaders Take 2nd Place In Competition

The 1984-1985 Varsity Cheerleading squad was superb this year. Under the direction of Ms. Candi Burr, the cheerleaders went on to bring home a second place trophy in the Parkdale Cheerleading Competition on December 8, 1984. The long hours of practice had paid off.

The cheerleaders attended Pine Forest Cheerleading Camp in Pennsylvania during the summer to prepare and learn new cheers for the season. While at camp the Northwestern squad received several honors. They received a megaphone for being "the most helpful and friendly squad", they were also awarded a spirit stick for being one of the most spirited squads every day. At the camp the girls were also picked for the finals. The Northwestern body respects and supports the Varsity Cheerleaders. During the Parkdale Competition, the Northwestern crowd won #1 in spirit for the third year in a row!!!

During the Homecoming Pep Rally, the Varsity Cheerleaders relax before cheering on the classes.

Cheerleading sponsor, Ms. Candie Burr advises her cheerleading squad, by active demonstration as Chrissy Bass watches attentively.

The Basketball season allows the Squad to perform many challenging pyramids.

This 1984-1985 year in Sports involved competitive and enthusiastic players from Northwestern. For the first time, the new Superintendent of Schools, Dr. John Murphy, decided on a new rule for all high school students. Anyone who wished to participate in an activity had to maintain at least a 2.0 grade point average. So, many students concentrated on their grades just as much as the sports they participated in.

The scene opened with fall sports. While people were soaking in the sun and enjoying the warm weather of summer, our athletes readied themselves for a difficult schedule. The first official practice started August 15. The fall sports included Cross Country, Volleyball, Varsity and Junior Varsity Football, and Soccer. While all the leaves were falling off the trees and the weather was calling for snow, winter sports began. These included Wrestling, Indoor Track, Girls' Basketball, and Varsity and Junior Varsity Boys' Basketball.

It's 1985 now and trees are getting greener and the air is getting warmer. Everyone is spending time outside. Football and Basketball seasons are over and it's time to put on our shorts, and short sleeve shirts and participate in spring sports. Spring sports consist of Outdoor Track, Golf, Tennis, Girls' Softball, and Boys' Baseball. The locker rooms are closing, the athletes have handed in their uniforms, and the coaches are thinking about next year.

A WORLD OF DIFFERENCE IN SPORTS

A Whole New Image

This season started with a decision that brought a whole new image to the Northwestern Football Team. The decision was to hire a new coaching staff for the team. Coming off of a discouraging 0-10 record last season, the players went to a camp over the summer and worked very hard everyday after school. Our new coaching staff consists of three ex-football players. Our head coach, John Brooks, is a dominant part of our coaching staff. He is assisted on defense by Coach James Smallwood, and on offense by Coach Cornell Jones.

With key players such as quarterback Damon Ramsey, running back, Donnie Edwards and defensive end David Schmigel, everyone contributed to a successful season for the Wildcats.

The team captains this year are Junior Danny Brannan, and Seniors Maurice Wright and David Upshur. With a final record of 3-7, the Wildcats hopes are up for the future.

This is a familiar scene in some of the football games this year.

There's no stopping Senior Gary Brown when he's on his way across the line.

"Give me this . . . work hard, work hard," says Coach James Smallwood as he calls the plays to our defense.

Our Wildcat defense really stands out as shown by David Schmigel, Bubba Crampton, and Craig Williams. The Wildcats defeated Suitland in that game, 9-6.

Coach says, "If you're number 1, raise your hand!"

The Image Continues With J.V.

"Down even man set" says Sophomore Carl West who is about to start a great play.

Our Junior Varsity Football team started out just like our Varsity team. With new coaches for J.V., James Smallwood, and Cornell Jones, the players put forth their greatest effort for the team.

The captains this year were Sophomores Carl West, Sean Brantley, and Hector Deoleo. Quarterback Carl West was an important contributor to some of the great plays that were made. Finishing with a 3-7 record, our young players had a very respectable season.

This poor Friendly player just can't plow through our great Wildcat defense.

That goal line seems far, far away for the players up against our J.V. defense.

Deciding to do it himself, J.V. quarterback, Carl West, runs it in for the Wildcat score.

The Youngest Team

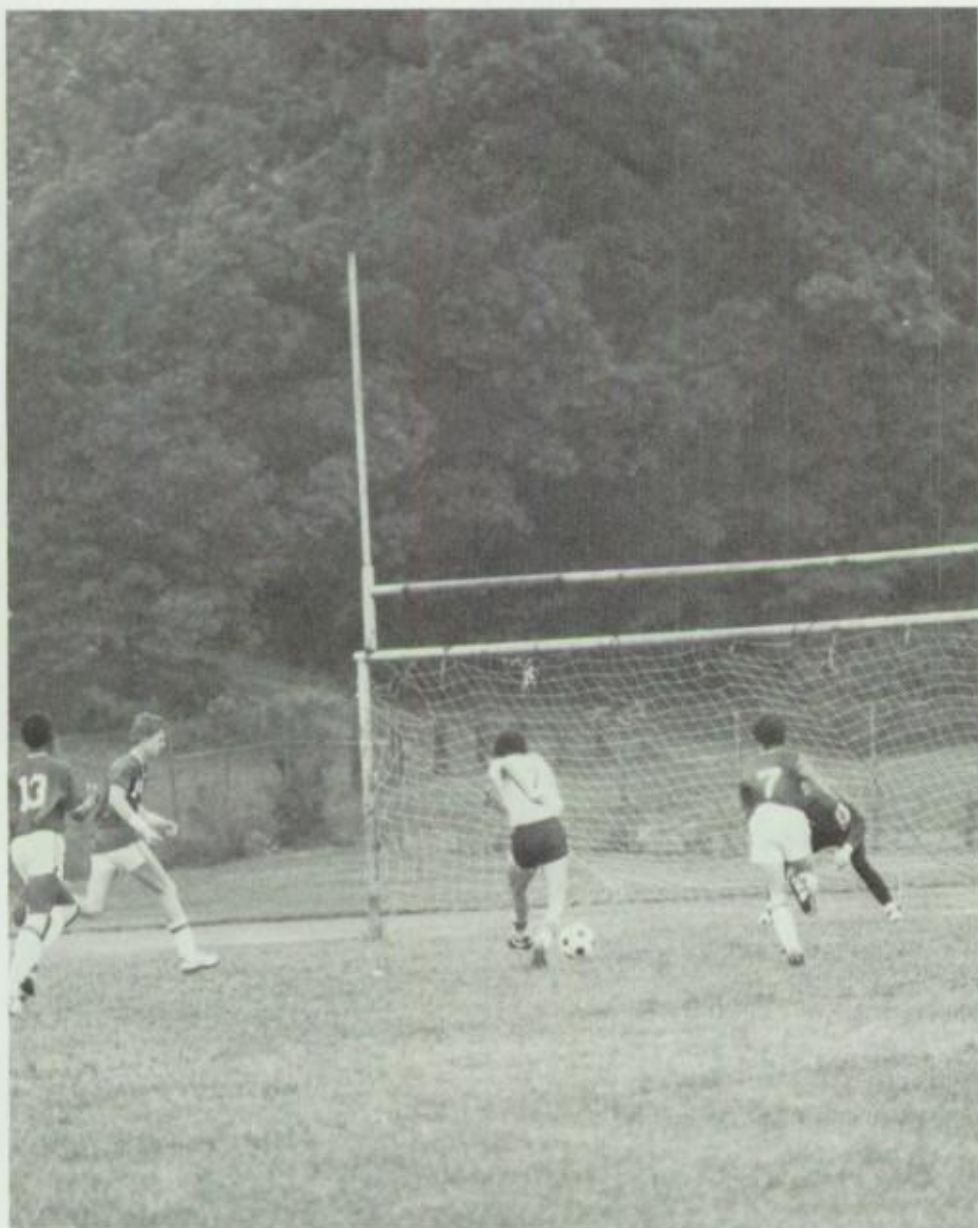

The head is not only used for thinking, says Mario Lone.

This year's Varsity Soccer team was made up of many new players. With a majority of rookies, the team was the youngest High School Varsity Soccer team in Maryland. The rookies consisted of five freshmen and five sophomores. As was evident in the scores, more experience would help. We have a great team with dedicated players and with the experience and the help of coach Tom Stickles, the future is looking good.

Trying to avoid the many opponents next to him, Mario Lone is very confident that he can do his duty.

When it comes to scoring a goal, Onessimo Pasilva is not shy.

To help win the game for the Wildcats, Conrad Williams will stop at nothing.

A Young Team Looks To The Future

Giving it her all, Lynn Rodenhuis scores a point for the Wildkittens.

The Varsity Volleyball team improved on the last year's 4-10 record with a respectable 6-8 finish. As was the case last year inexperience hampered the Wildkittens' season. The future looks good though for the Wildkittens have five returning starters, and the team has a good feeling about next season.

This year's starting lineup consisted of Toni Staunton, Raquelle Street, Lynn Rodenhuis, Stacy Quisenberry, Tina Marshall and Carrie Davis. In the last two years the team has improved their record and with an upgraded team spirit the future is looking good.

The Wildkittens receive the point as Tina Marshall spikes the ball over the net.

The spirits are high as Junior Stacy Quisenberry blocks a hit.

With a little push from Stacy Quisenberry, the ball is over the net and counts for another score.

The room fills with tension as Toni Staunton bumps the ball to avoid losing a point.

Long Time Runners

Ahead of the others David Bottalico runs for the finish after avoiding an obstacle.

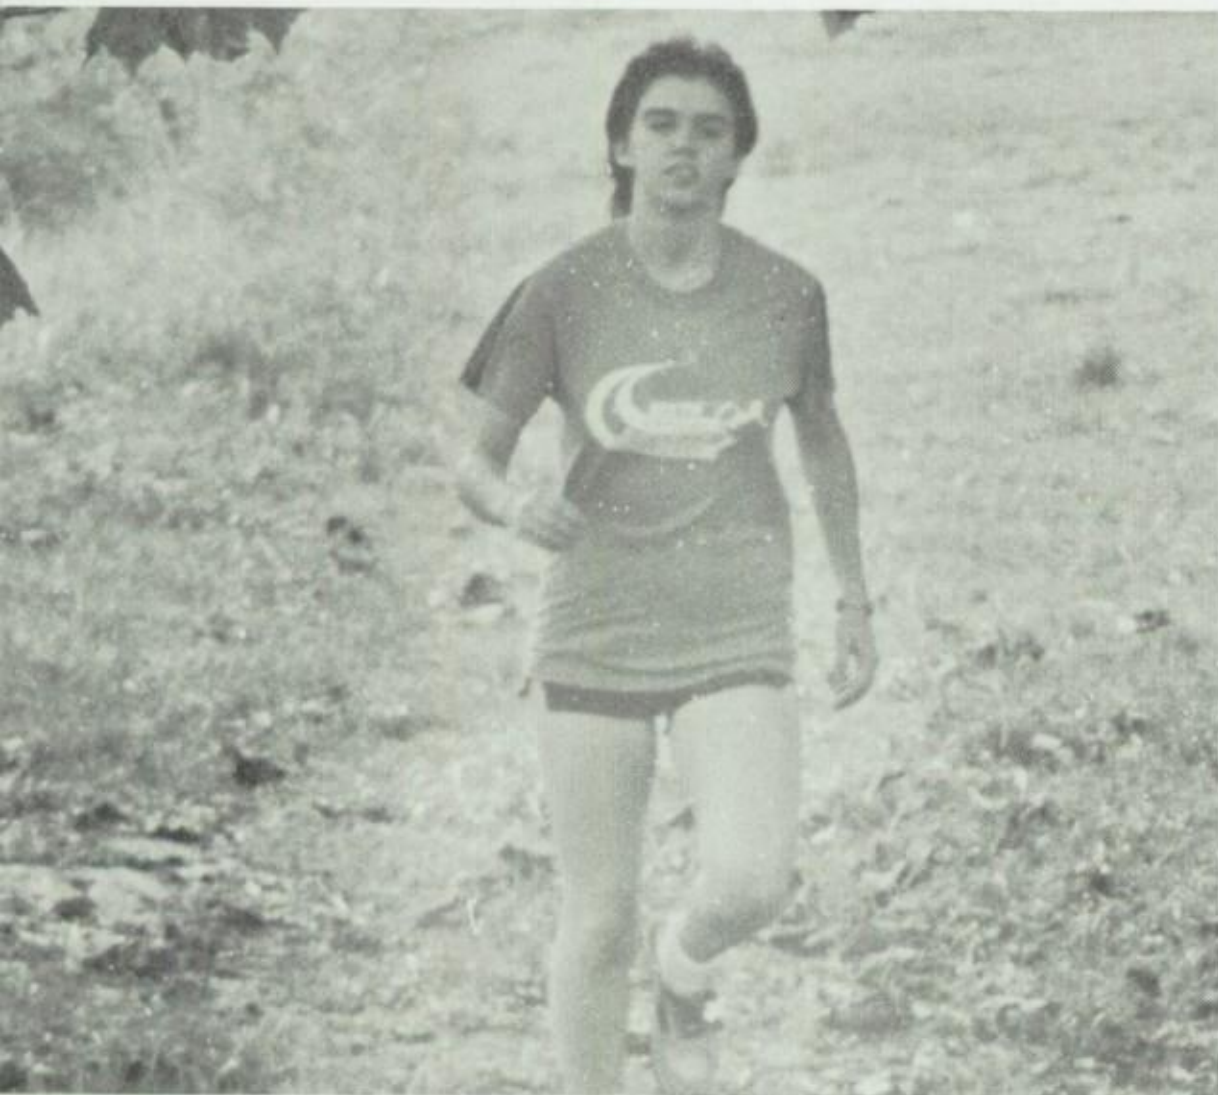

Cross Country is a sport where patience and strong legs are of the utmost importance. Our dedicated runners run everyday after school for many miles to ready for upcoming meets. There is a course around the school, through the woods, and down the hill that they make tracks on during their long, hard practices.

Our Cross Country team ended their season with a 5-4 record. The key runner of the girls' cross country team was Senior Ernestine Marsh. Many experienced runners such as Andre Gordon, Ben Tiongson, and Travis Davis contributed a lot of soles off of their running shoes! The coach this year was Bob Wagner.

Using an enormous effort, Andre Gordon strives for the finish line.

Cross Country can be a lonely experience, but Senior Peggy Woods believes it's well worth it.

With four years of Cross Country experience for Senior Ernestine Marsh, this is just another easy lap around the track.

Sprinting the last mile, Andre Gordon does his best at every strenuous practice.

Another Great Season For The Wildcats

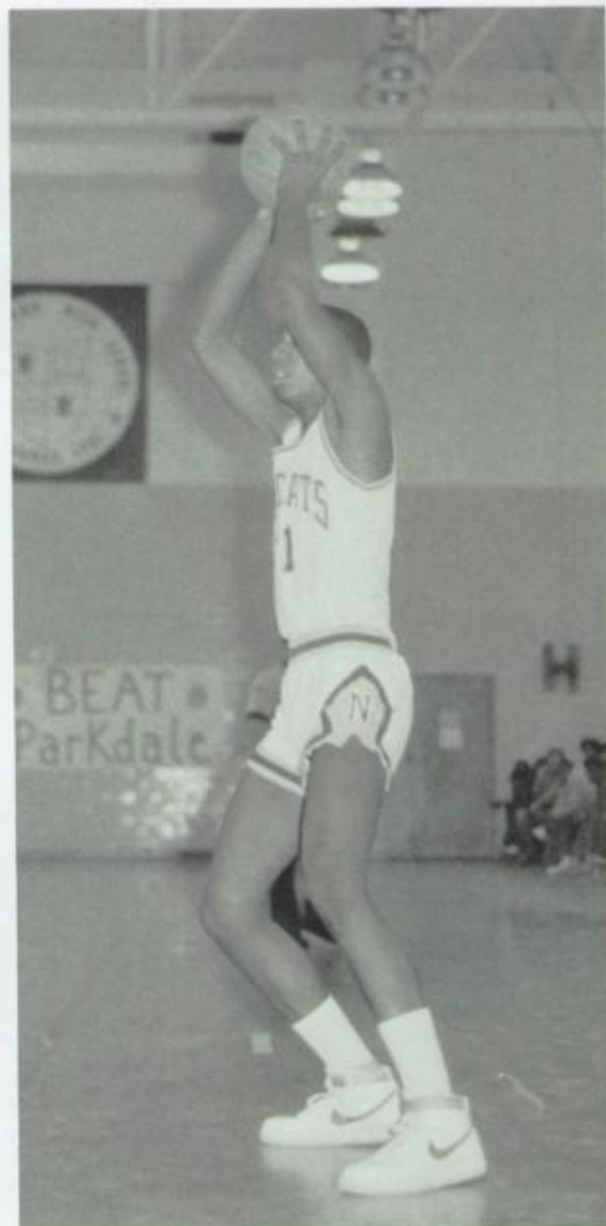

The 1984-85 Varsity Basketball team has again provided the student body of Northwestern with a winning team. This probably doesn't surprise anyone because Northwestern has won the county championship three out of the last five years. This year's team with early victories over St. John's and Friendly has again given the school something to cheer about.

The team's only returning members from last year's team, Clinton Venable, David Gregg, and Mike Morrison give the team much needed experience, while younger players such as Tom Lynch, Damon Ramsey, and Steve McGlaughin contributed additional scoring and rebounding. All this together made a fine basketball team and a joy to watch.

With everyone jumping for the ball at once, we are sure that Steve McGlaughin will come through for the Wildcats.

Searching for a teammate to pass the ball to, Eddie Goode keeps the ball out of his opponent's reach.

Looking toward the basket for a possible score, Clinton Venable avoids his opponents before him.

To assist one of his teammates, Tony Crawford gets ready to pass the ball.

With the DeMatha focus on Wildcat Brian Tucker, other Wildcats close in.

Wildcat center, David Gregg, watches a sure basket.

Going for that fast break, Tom Lynch stretches to make sure of those two points.

Shooting a tough long jumper, Tony Crawford has confidence that he will please the crowd.

Reaching above his opponents, Tom Lynch scores another two for the Wildcats.

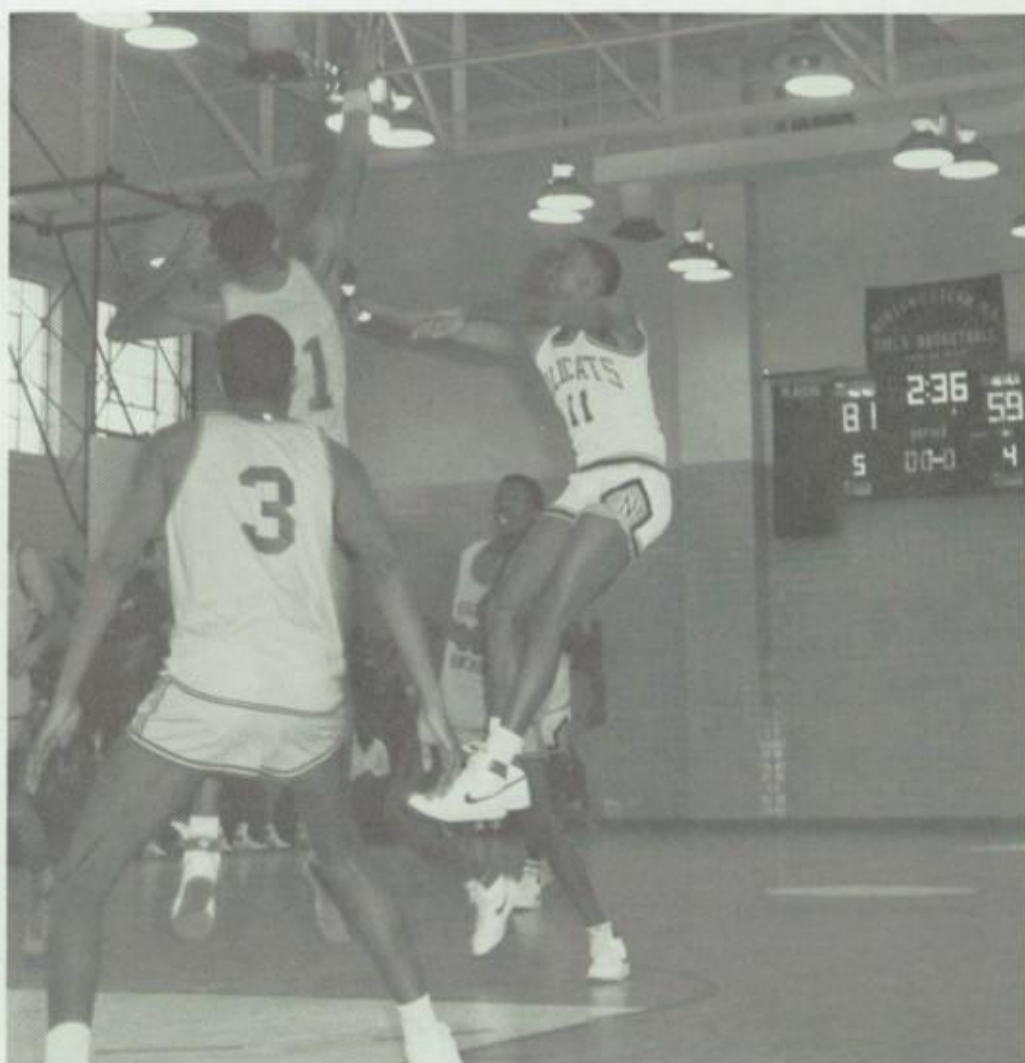

At the game bell against Parkdale, Tony Crawford dribbles the ball up the court for a play.

Rolling the ball off his fingers, Tony Crawford shows his opponent that he can't reach him.

With the high Wildcat winning score, Eddie Goode fakes out his opponent for a sure score.

Against a top ranked team, David Gregg is confident on the foul line.

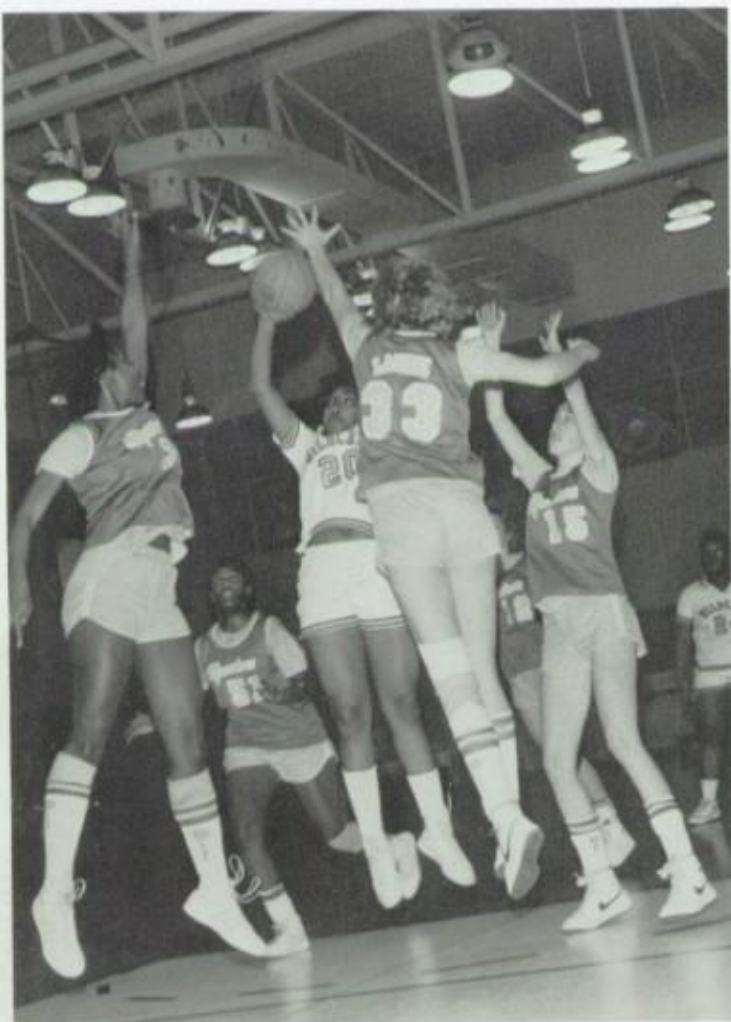

With no one around to distract him, Tom Lynch goes up for another Wildcat score.

Wildcats Strive For Victory

Each girl on the Varsity Girls Basketball team put hard work and dedication into not only the games but also every practice. Even though their record wasn't very impressive, their individual performances were. Each girl gave it her all and did her best. Along with the hard work, the girls had spirit and showed their good sportsmanship in every game. They all were energetic and athletic girls, and with the help of coach Noah Phillips, Northwestern will always have a good basketball team.

The tension is high as Northwestern's Lisa Liller attempts to steal the ball away from her opponent.

Laurel tries hard, but Monet Hammans breaks through and makes a basket.

Racing down the court, Lisa Liller attempts a basket.

With a leaping jump, Kim White aims for the hoop.

Northwestern's Girls Basketball player, Toni Staunton, demonstrates the strategy that is needed to whip the Spartans.

This Laurel player can't believe her eyes as Monette Hemans makes a basket.

In a cluster of opponents, Michelle Mason and Kim White reach for a rebound.

Finesse and balance is just what Kim White proves to her opponent.

Hitting The Mats

For only being a rookie, Darin Mills shows off his talent as a great wrestler.

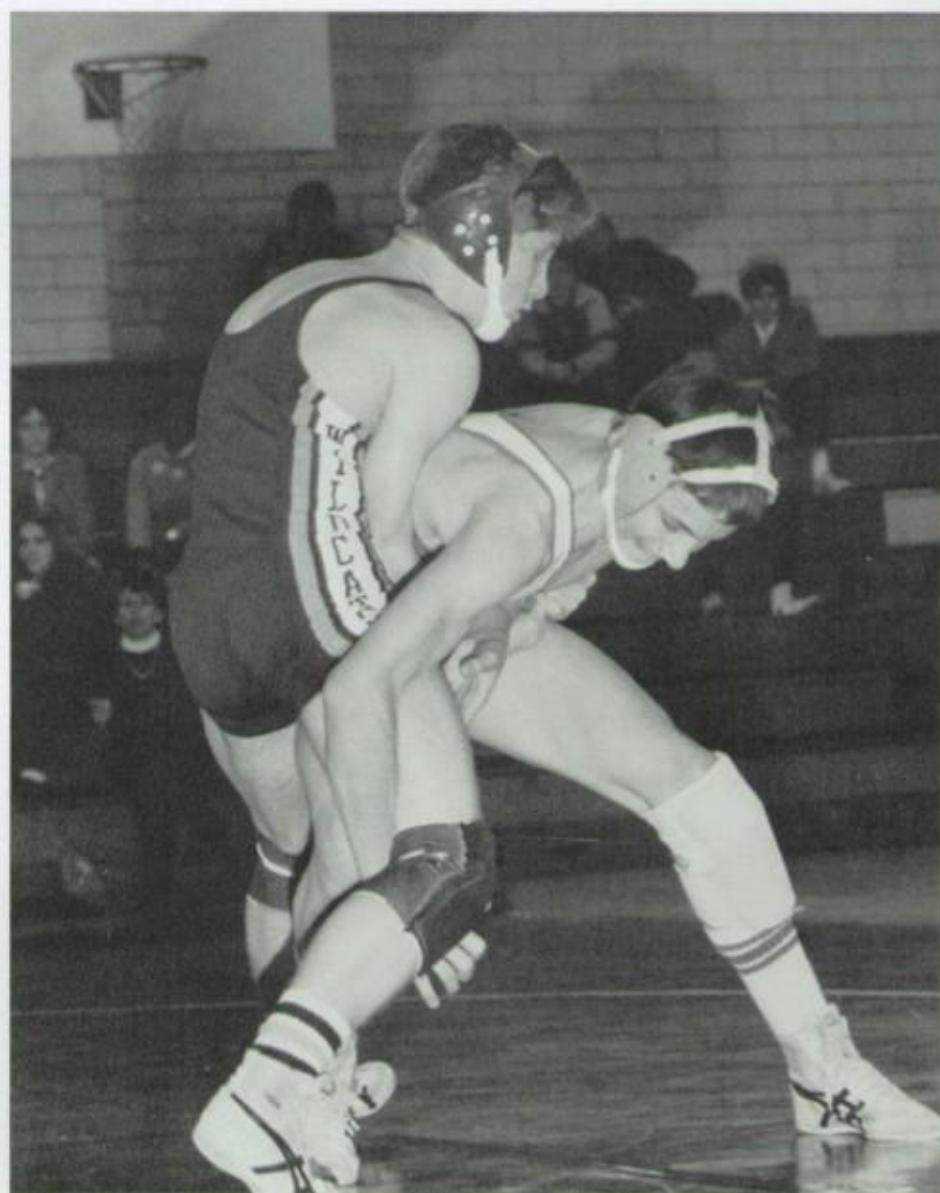

Suprisingly, the Wildcat matmen defeated 7 out of 12 opponents during the 84-85 season. With a poor turnout and early season injuries, our wrestlers were expected to do poorly. Going into post season tournaments, the Wildcat squad was determined to win trophies.

Next year's squad will have to rebuild after losing seniors Matt Daniels, Nick Fuchs, Darryl Freeman, and Dave Mills.

Thanks to the leadership of our seniors, and the skills of our first year coaches Joe Boettinger and former Northwestern standout, Dan Willis, our Wrestling team again proved to be a serious county threat.

With confidence, Senior captain David Mills knows he will please the crowd and his teammates.

In an awkward position, Junior Lou Kerdock finds a quick and impressive way to get out of it.

At the game bell Wrestling match against Friendly, Senior Matt Daniels contributes more points for the Wildcats.

Nearing a pin, Senior Darryl Freeman shows that Friendly wrestler the bright lights on the ceiling.

Future Athletes From J.V.

The Junior Varsity basketball team consists of twelve players who have the potential to become Varsity players but lack game experience.

The team is coached by Mr. Cornell Jones. All of their games started before the varsity games to give the crowd a chance to get "fired up" before the varsity game got started.

This year's team was a young one with only two Juniors, and two Sophomores, while the rest of the team was made entirely of Freshmen. The J.V. Wildcats, were led by Juniors Tyrone Neal, Troy Crawford and Freshman, Jay Bias. The team achieved much success and practiced hard but team members still await their opportunity to become varsity players.

Wildcat Jay Bias shoots "high off the glass" for another Wildcat basket.

Junior Stan Turonis glides for an easy two points.

Running For The Wildcats

Northwestern's Indoor Track team is made up of 10 members, including coach Mike Roberts and Assistant coach Lawrence Kennedy. The runners individual performance were very good, each one put hard work into each meet. Unfortunately, this year there weren't enough runners to earn enough points to win meets. But that didn't stop Ernestine Marsh, a Senior who won the 300 meter dash during the county meet held at the University of Maryland. No matter how large the team, Northwestern's Indoor Track members always did their best and it showed.

Preparing to run the track, Keith Rogers stretches out.

Coming around the bend, the Track team races to find out who will come in first.

Worn out from so many laps, Senior Peggy Woods manages to make it around once more.

On a cold winter day, Ernestine Marsh has no problems clearing the hurdles.

With a spurt of energy, Ben Tiongson makes his way around the track easily.

Running around the track, Sydney Findley and Travis Davis prepare themselves for the upcoming meets.

Baseball Bats A Thousand

The 1985 Varsity Baseball team was an experienced one having lost only two players to the '84 graduation. The team was coached by Mr. Glenn Roe for the third year in a row. Through all three years, his teams have come within points of the play-offs.

The Wildcat Baseball team was led by Seniors Victor Valerio, Roy Longanecker, Tom Blankenship, Mark Williams, and Charles Reading. As shown, the team was dominated by Seniors. The team worked hard during the practice days of early March in order to prepare themselves for their first game against defending state-champion, Bowie High School, on March 21.

Making the diving catch, Charles Reading discourages the batter.

Doing his best, Phil Hughes runs to snatch a grounder.

During baseball and softball practices, Roy Longanecker picks up a ball that was hit to him.

Practicing his throwing abilities, Tommy Blankenship looks far to throw to his teammate.

Saving the car from getting smashed by a baseball, Roy Longanecker makes a great save.

Wildcats Determined For Victory

The softball team gained a lot of rookies for the '85 season.

The 1985 Girls' Softball team was favored to have a great season mostly because of last year's team. With last year's record of 15-5, the Wildcats lost only one player due to the '84 graduation. The team was determined to regain the enthusiasm, efforts, and the skills of the year before.

The dominating seniors of this year were ready to go further than last year. They did not want to stop at the Regionals, they were ready to win the State Championship.

With the skillful efforts of returning Senior starters. Kim White, Lisa Liller, Peggy Turner, and Junior Karen Goheen, the Wildcats did their best and proved themselves to be winners. With the support and help of the coach, Mr. Jerry Unger, the team had a respectable season.

While the softball players are awaiting a ball hit their way, a baseball player makes a catch in their field.

Hitting softballs out to the players, Coach Jerry Unger and Peggy Turner wait for the ball to be returned.

Stretching to hit a popfly to Senior Peggy Turner, Coach Jerry Unger hits a high one.

Basketball Playoffs: Taking It To The Limit, Taking It To The Top

The Northwestern Basketball team entered the Regional Playoffs this year for the fourth time in five years. They began the tournament seeded fourth and set to meet Blair High School in the first round at Northwestern.

The game was never close as the Wildcats dominated the whole game. The final score was Wildcats 81, Blair 63. The victory over Blair took the Wildcats into the semi-finals against first seeded Springbrook High School at Walt Whitman High School. The game was filled with excitement and the first half left the Wildcat crowd anticipating a victory. The second half began and quickly the Blue Devils of Springbrook built a 13 point lead. The lead faltered and rebuilt itself throughout the third period until the 5:47 mark of the fourth period when the Wildcats began the comeback the crowd had been waiting for. With the offensive power that all opponents are accustomed to, the Wildcats opened up a five-point lead with a minute left to play. That much firepower was too much for the Blue Devils to overcome. The game ended with the score—Northwestern 45, Springbrook 44.

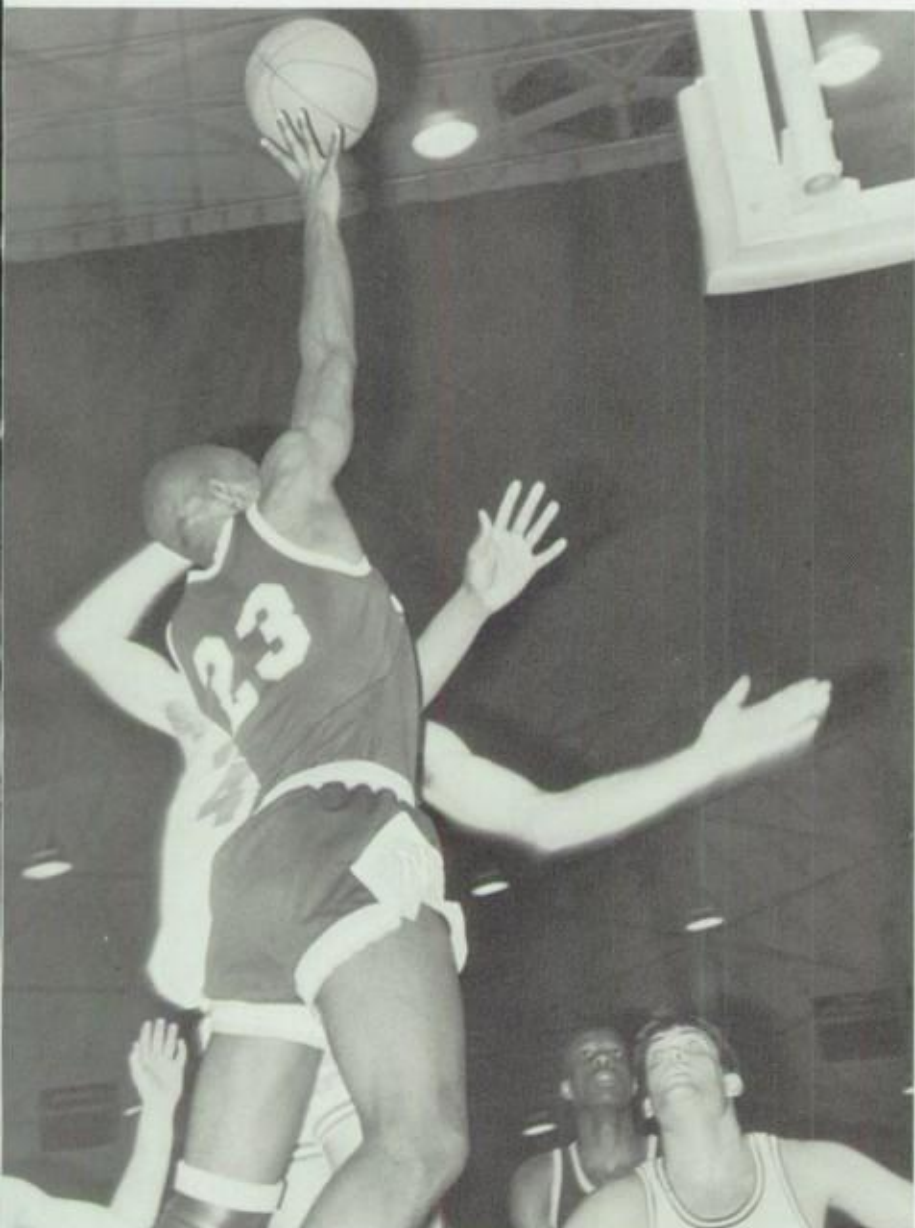

The stage was set for the Regional Final against Wootton. The Northwestern fans came to Walt Whitman High School in large numbers with larger expectations. The Wildcats played hard but were unable to get it together the way we, as fans, had seen them do so many times before.

The Wildcat fans supported and cheered until the last second had expired and after the game was over they were still proud to be Wildcats.

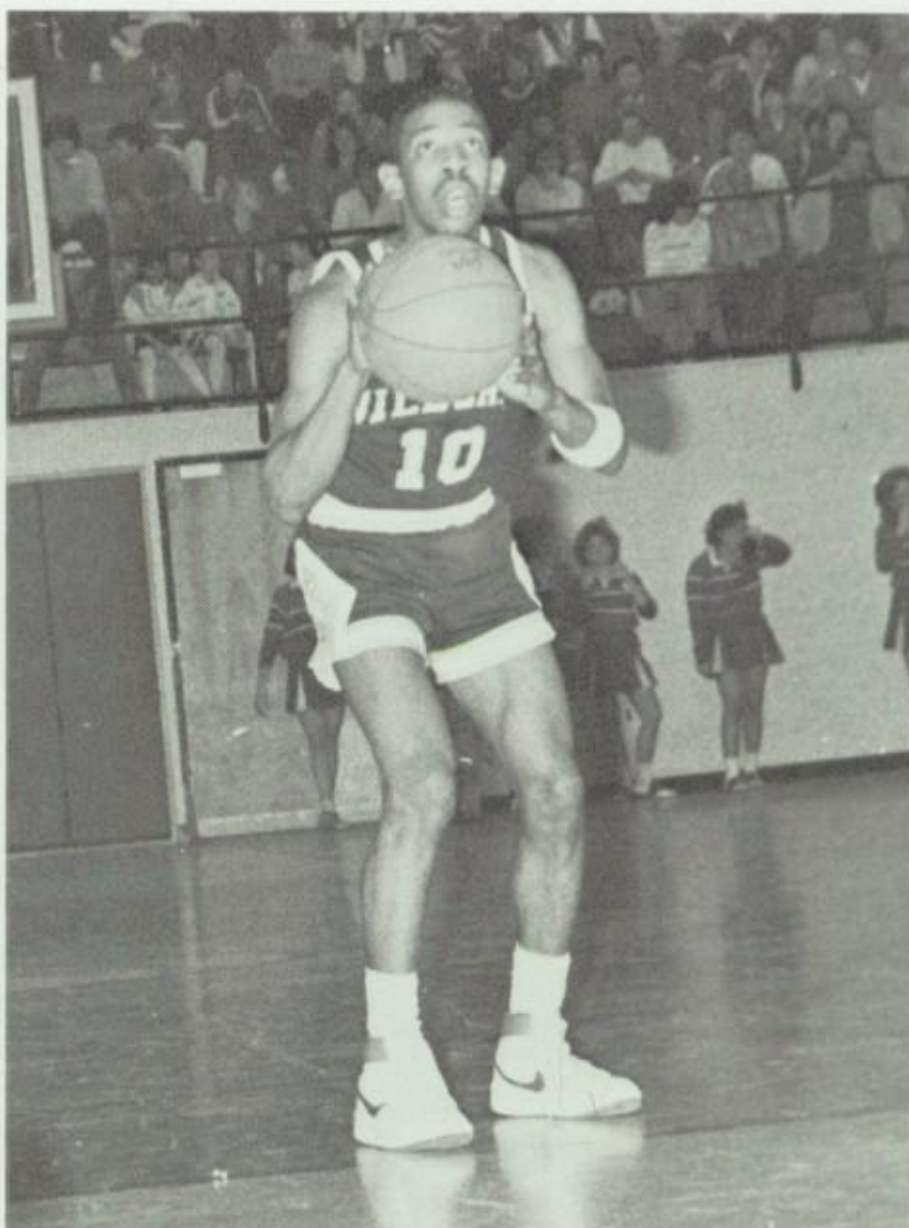

Trying to get around his opponent, Mike Morrison attempts a score.

Sliding by the Wootton players, Mike Morrison goes up for two points.

Concentrating only on the basket, Clinton Venable adds points to the score.

At the playoffs against Wootton, many Northwestern students and fans came to support our Wildcat Basketball team.

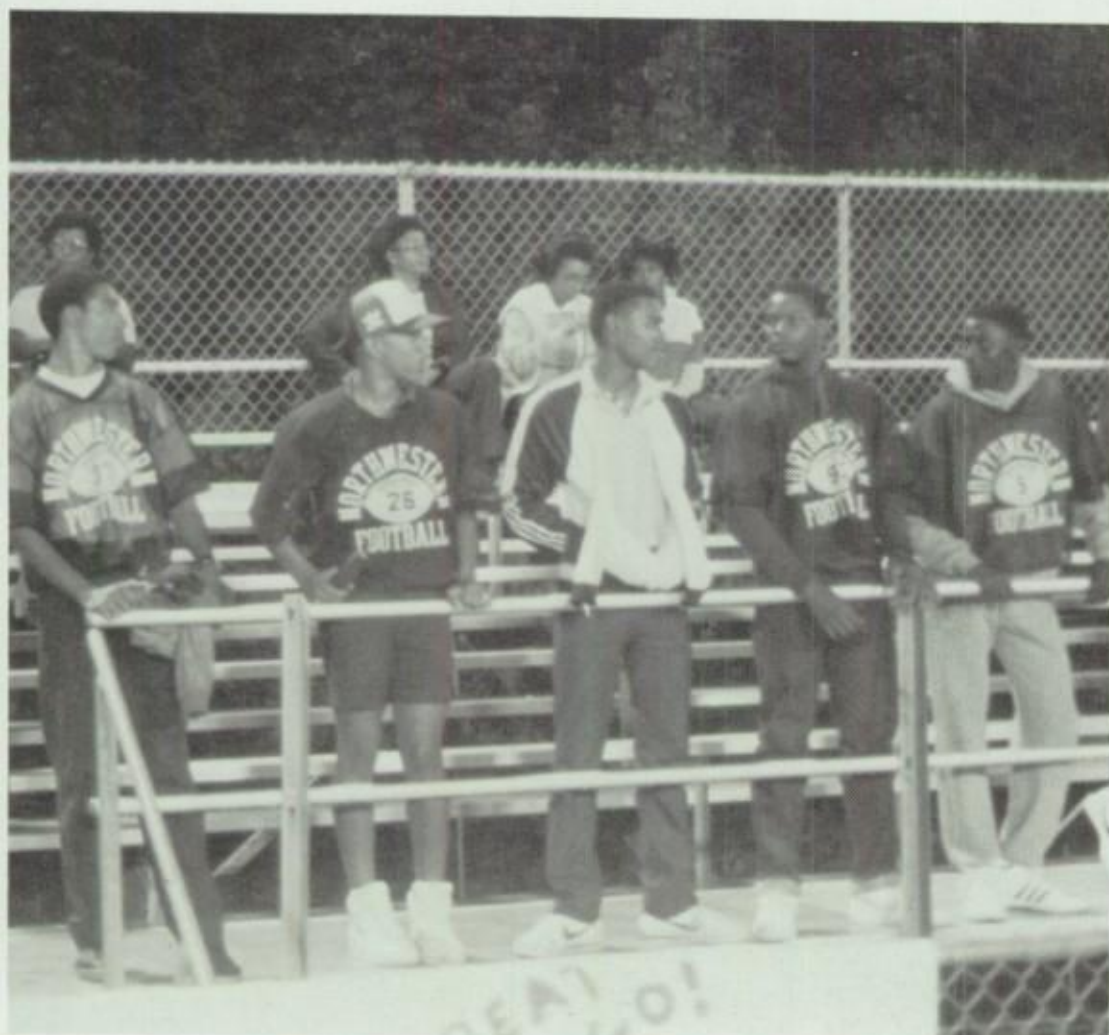

Supporting The Home Team

This 1984-85 season in Sports was full of ups and downs. One thing that kept the spirit alive in our teams were the Wildcat fans and supporters. Many students and friends came out to cheer on our teams to victory.

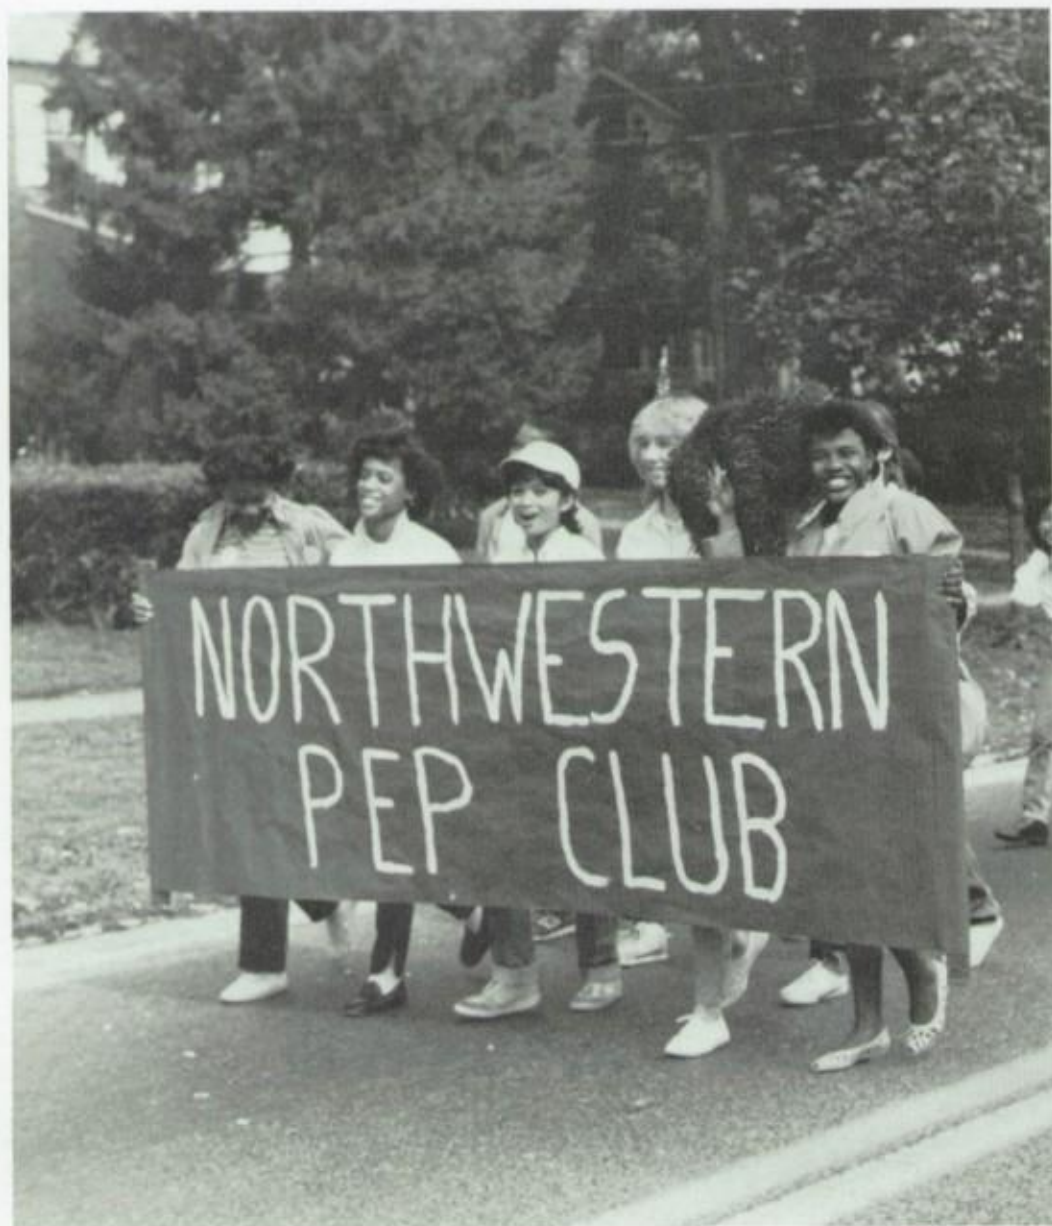

Many people claimed our school was the most school spirited. There was a cheerleading competition at Parkdale High School where our cheerleaders participated. The competition originated three years ago. All three years, our school has won the most school spirit award. Parkdale also hosted a Pom Pon competition that we were a part of. We, again, received the most school spirit award.

Thanks to all of the Wildcat fans who came out in their blue and white, our teams were always encouraged to do their best.

N.H.S. Sports Are Supported 200% By Fans

The 1984-85 school year brought about many changes in Northwestern, different people different schedules, and different teachers. Also, the repairs made around the school made it look different.

For the Freshmen, this is a new beginning, a chance to change their image and reputation. For sophomores, this year means getting to know Northwestern a little better than before. Juniors take this year as an opportunity to prepare for their last year. This is the year for the Seniors; a final chance to leave Northwestern better than they found it. After this, they will go on to reach broader horizons.

The people at Northwestern form a world of difference. There are different cultures different races, different religions and ideals. The difference of the school enhances its uniqueness. This all comes together to form our school, Northwestern. In Northwestern there is a place for all of us, we all fit in somewhere. Each of us is important to the school in some way. Together we make a difference.

If we just take a moment to look around the halls of Northwestern, we would see that the people are all different. There is a world of difference in our school. The difference and togetherness go hand in hand throughout Northwestern. People in our school are supported and encouraged to be different.

Teachers at Northwestern have spirit and vitality that is displayed throughout the whole school. They help each of us to reach our goals and rainbows

Everyone comes from different parts of the county. Some walk while others ride for miles. We all come from different backgrounds and cultures. Coming to school is a way for all of us to learn from one another. The minute we step into the door, we come together to form Northwestern. Some of us will take the knowledge that we acquired from Northwestern to further our education.

Northwestern has a style all its own. We have acquired a reputation for excellence. We all strive to keep this image a continuous and ongoing one.

Several different people were asked "What do you like most about Northwestern?" The majority of them said "the people." People make the school and people make the difference.

PEOPLE

They Are Wise, Witty, And Spirited

Some of our teachers here at Northwestern sky dive, have been behind the Iron Curtain in Hungary, draw portraits, traveled to the Middle East, and one co-owns a bus tour business! Sounds interesting doesn't it? These interesting people make up our faculty.

Our faculty has had an extensive education. Mrs. Graham attended the University of Hawaii, while Mrs. De Plachett was enrolled in the International Institute of Interior Design. Mrs. Benson went to the University of Mainz in Germany. Most of the teachers attended the University of Maryland. Most of Northwestern's graduates have followed in their footsteps.

You would be surprised at all the activities the teachers do in their spare time. Some teachers say, "What spare time?", while others ski, read books, go camping, and spend time with their grandchildren. Still, other teachers, like Ms. Sollazzo, "Think of difficult assignments to give my students."

The teachers who devote their precious spare time to improving Northwestern's reputation are the MOST INVOLVED teachers. They were voted for by the rest of the teaching staff. They are: Ms. De Plachett, Mr. Wagner, Mrs. Vogel, Ms. Burr, Ms. Bettcher, Mrs. Schmidt, Mr. Dulmage, Mr. Scarci, and of course our hard working and devoted principal, Mr. Fennell. There are those teachers who find the classroom a little boring if they don't add a spice of life to teaching, such as: Mr. Braccia, Mr. Price, Mr. Stickles, Mr. Lippman, and Mr. Warcol who were voted as CLASSROOM CLOWNS by the other teachers.

They Are The Faculty

Having so many teachers nominated for MOST SCHOOL SPIRITED, showed us that teachers do care about the outcome of a Northwestern-High Point football game or a Northwestern-Potomac basketball game. The teachers have relit the old and dying candle of spirit in their faculty rooms and in their classrooms. They have invigorated Northwestern with a growing reputation of spirit and excellence. Teachers nominated as MOST SCHOOL SPIRITED include: Mrs. Graham, Mrs. Schmidt, Ms. Duff, Ms. Burr, Mrs. Vukovich, Mr. Brooks, Mr. Wagner, Ms. Bettcher, Ms. De Plachett, and Mr. Fennell. There are teachers who not only attend the games but also participate in sports themselves.

These teachers are the MOST ATHLETIC. Mr. Walsh coaches the tennis team and enjoys boating. Mr. Wagner is the coach of the boys varsity basketball team. Mr. Unger coaches wrestling and girl's softball; he also has participated in wrestling and baseball since he was in high school. While attending the University of Maryland, Ms. Burr was a cheerleader, she now sponsor's the varsity cheerleaders of Northwestern. After practice, Ms. Burr plays outfield for her nearby softball team.

Senior Class Of 1985

The Senior Class of 1985 has spent four years of their life at Northwestern, the first class ever to do so in the history of Northwestern. What makes the class work? Class President, Marsha Lessley and her Executive Committee. The officers met every Thursday during the 1984-85 school year. At these meetings, they discussed and planned special activities such as the Senior Class trip, the Prom, and Graduation. With the help of Sponsors Mr. Thomas Stickles, Mr. Louis Arnold, and Mrs. Janet Kite, the committee has made a most memorable year for the Seniors.

The Seniors have had a busy year. During Homecoming, the Seniors won 1st place in the float competition and at Class Night. Seniors ordered caps and gowns, got their portraits taken, ordered announcements, went on class trips, participated in Spirit Week, and went to the most memorable night of their lives, the Prom.

All of these events made the Seniors last year the best of their high school years. After the seniors graduate and go out to pursue their careers, they will never forget Northwestern High School and the Class of '85.

You Know Senior Slump Has Set In When:

1. You wake up an hour late for school and don't really care.
2. You find yourself with a concentration span of five minute at the most.
3. Your teacher starts asking you if you're on medication because you have slept through the class everyday this week.
4. You leave your books on the bus and hope someone does you a favor by tossing them out the window.
5. Suddenly gym is your favorite class and you find yourself pleading with the gym teacher to let you stay there four periods out of six.
6. You have constantly been late to all of your classes because suddenly five minutes isn't enough to get from one room to another.
7. Now when you go to the car just to get some books a mysterious force compells you to drive out of the parking lot and not return until the next day.
8. You have mastered the art of looking at the teacher and not hearing a word she has said.
9. When Fridays roll around your teachers don't even need to call out your name for attendance because she knows you have your usual Friday Flu.
10. The phrases "I'll do it tomorrow," "College that's definite maybe" and "I live for graduation" have all become popular in your everyday vocabulary.

Although we can not offer a cure for this sometimes fatal illness we can leave you with this thought: Though we may have fallen a few times to the Senior Slump we have always pulled our act together even when it has seemed impossible. After years and years of hard work we finally made it!!! Congratulations Class of 1985.

WHY MORE AND MORE HIGH-TECH FIRMS ARE SOLD ON PRINCE GEORGE'S COUNTY

[AND, WHY WE SELL MORE OF THEM THAN ANYONE ELSE.]

There's a very good reason for the business boom going on here. In fact, there are three:
Washington. Baltimore. And Annapolis.

Prince George's County is convenient to all of them. Plus three major airports. One of America's largest ports. Railroads. Interstates. And the new D.C. subway system.

Local government is decidedly pro-business. Taxes are low. Incomes are high. Financing is plentiful and easy to come by. And the area labor pool boasts the highest concentration of scientists and engineers anywhere in the U.S.

The really tough decision isn't whether to move here. It's when—and where. And that's where the Kenneth H. Michael Companies come in.

The Advantages Of Dealing With A Home-Grown Firm.

Nobody knows Prince George's County like the Kenneth H. Michael Companies.

Nobody sells more commercial and industrial buildings. Or has more exclusive listings. Or knows more about leasing space. And it's not hard to figure out why.

Our headquarters—and our homes—are here. When we sit down with a zoning board, we're sitting down with neighbors. When we step into a banker's office, there's a familiar face across the desk.

But if this approach sounds rather informal, be assured that it's also thoroughly buttoned up.

Our staff includes top-notch architects, attorneys, interior space planners and property managers. Specialists who can follow through from site selection and zoning to development and leasing. Our computer can churn out a list of every available building and site in 24 hours. And as for our success stories, they include literally dozens of corporate and industrial parks like the three pictured here.

Start Dialing—And Then Start Packing.

If that sounds like the kind of track record you'd like to know about, why not fill out the coupon below. Or call Gary Michael collect at (301) 341-1166.

He'll be happy to discuss your firm's needs and our capabilities in greater detail. And help you find the space you need to grow a brighter future in Prince George's County.
